

REV. MR. BEISTEL SPEAKER AT UNION SERVICE SUNDAY EVE

Rev. Frank S. Beistel, pastor of the United Lutheran church, was the speaker for the first of the union services for local churches, Sunday evening.

STEEL CODE STORY

The public press and platform everywhere unite in these days in declaring that the people of our generation need a lot of saving.

"Can it not be corrected? Wise men of noble purpose have offered their lives and programs for human betterment and sometimes have seen their ideas applied to the problems of their times with the same enthusiasm that characterizes the Roosevelt policies of the 'new deal' but after a short period of trial they have broken down in practical results.

With the elimination of these paragraphs, the code specified only what the recovery law specifies as relative to the freedom of the workers to join or form whatever unions they please.

Perkins Attacks Hours. Instead of numerous wage zones with differing hourly rates, ranging from 25 cents in the south to 40 cents in the highly industrialized areas, she proposed that the number of such zones with a differential be determined by a thorough study of living costs.

"In view of the privileges and the freedom granted to the industry by the government to combine for the purpose of eliminating evils that beset the industry," she said, "it is disappointing to find that in facting section 3 for the production of coke, the industry did not rise to the opportunity of ruling out the seven day week from the steel industry, the 12-hour day and all unduly long working hours.

"The proposal for an average of 40 hours per week within any six month period not only permits those evils to stand in the face of thousands of unemployed who are begging for work, but it will intensify irregularity of employment by stimulating unduly long hours during some months to be alternated with very little work during other months so that the average may be kept down to 40 hours.

"It is not my purpose to suggest the exact number of hours that the industry ought to set as the maximum. The hours per week and per day ought to be and will have to be determined by the number of iron and steel workers now unemployed that have to be reabsorbed, and to a certain extent by the technical processes of the industry.

"Thirty-six hours per week which is hours a day for six days, or thirty hours, which is six hours a day for five days, offer interesting opportunities for re-employment of large numbers of persons.

how the hours, wages and other questions would be settled. Johnson explained to newspapermen he was dissatisfied with the retail code as submitted last night, and had ordered it rewritten. This was the process being undertaken today.

"I haven't seen what they have done today but I am not going to approve it unless I am satisfied," he said.

old but the crowd fell away and his pupils were slow to learn. Reformation is not enough. The world cannot be saved by noble purposes and good intentions. Morality will do no good for men are not good.

"The kingdom must wait another power. Then came Pentecost when out of heaven there came forces that created new powers and gave a dynamic that changes man within. The timid disciples that locked their doors for fear of the Jews now went out upon the highways as champions of a living faith and dull pupils then became and have ever continued to be the teachers of the world. The little kingdom begun in obscurity has entered the peasant's cabin with warm sunshine and has wedged its way beneath king's thrones to change or overthrow. Manifestly the force is now abroad at last that men might not perish but have everlasting life. But it is a regeneration of the individual within and not the reformation or imposition of laws without. There are no theories of government that will wholly succeed.

"The church is guardian and appointed administrator of this regenerative power. No other association of men works in this field. If the church fails the world must suffer the consequences. If the church is true to its divine commission, forces will be released to lead the world out of the present morass to higher levels of virtue and happiness. The kingdoms of this world will then become the kingdoms of our Lord."

meeting to throw out the controverted matter; and they were congratulated by Secretary Perkins amid applause. The company union section of the code had asserted a belief on the part of the manufacturers that this provided the best method of dealing with their employees.

Beyond that it outlined a plan for employ representation in such unions with a stipulation that the final decision in all disputes should rest with the highest officers of the company involved.

With the elimination of these paragraphs, the code specified only what the recovery law specifies as relative to the freedom of the workers to join or form whatever unions they please.

Applying at the opening session of hearings on the code, fixing pay and hours for the industry, Secretary Perkins asserted it did not make adequate provision for the abolishment of child labor and severely criticized the proposed method of apportioning hours.

MONDAY PROGRAMS

HEILIG—"The Match King," with Warren William and Lill Damita. Ends Monday.

McDONALD—"College Humor," with Bing Crosby, Richard Arlen, Jack Oakie, Burns and Allen, Mary Carlisle. Closes Tuesday.

COLONIAL—"Be Mine Tonight," with Jan Kiepura, Magda Schneider and Sonny Hale. Last times Wednesday.

STATE—"Private Lives," starring Norma Shearer and Robert Montgomery. Ends Monday.

REX—"Private Detective 62," with William Powell and Margaret Lindsay. Monday last day.

Lill Damita, who plays the female lead opposite Warren William in "The Match King," which closes Monday at the Heilig theater, was chosen as the one actress who could suitably interpret the role, after a careful weighing of the possibilities.

One of the beautiful dancing co-eds seen in the musical production, "College Humor," showing Monday and Tuesday at the McDonald.

of all Hollywood's talent. The selection of just the right actress was sifted down to two players, Lill Damita and Greta Garbo. The latter being unavailable, as she had returned to her native Sweden for an extended stay, the plum was awarded to Lill Damita. The choice of Damita has proved a most happy one for she gives the somewhat exotic role of a beautiful Continental actress an ingenious twist that makes her characterization most fascinating. The film is one of great dramatic power, and Warren William, in the title role, gives his finest interpretation to date. The picture ends Monday, with "Below the Sea" the Tuesday attraction.

An impressive and versatile all-star cast is featured in "College Humor," Paramount's boisterous musical story of college as it ought to be, which closes Tuesday at the McDonald theater. Bing Crosby, Richard Arlen, Mary Carlisle, Jack Oakie, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Lona Andre and Mary Korman, who between them represent stage, screen and radio, play the leading roles in the picture. The Rex-Rox Co-Eds, a comely chorus calculated to drive racing alumni back to the alma mater, prance in and out of the action. Coach Howard Jones of the University of Southern California football team, plays, as you might suspect, the role of Midwest University's football coach. "College Humor," is a musical in the new style. Its lavish production, glittering cast, fast story, crackling dialogue and entrancing music represent the Paramount studio's determination to have it stand as the season's smash musical hit.

Norma Shearer and Robert Montgomery join in a novel duet in "Private Lives," in which they are costarred by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and which closes Monday at the State theater. In this scene Miss Shearer sings for the first time in pictures, using the song number written by Noel Coward for the original stage production of the hilarious farce. It is titled "Some Day I'll Find You," and as the scene opens on a hotel balcony, Montgomery is whistling the melody. As he whistles, Miss Shearer emerges on an opposite balcony and starts to sing, accompanied by Montgomery's whistling accompaniment. This smart comedy ends Monday, and will be followed by "Me and My Gal" on the State screen Tuesday.

"Private Detective 62," a fast action melodrama with tasty love episodes closes Monday at the Rex theater, with William Powell in the stellar role. The plot concerns a love racket in which a private detective deals with the methods used by an unscrupulous private detective agency to obtain or manufacture evidence for the divorce courts, at the instigation of jealous husbands and wives. Powell, in the title role, as a discredited secret service operative craves for want of a better job, until he is ordered to frame a woman with whom he falls in love. Thereupon he quits his job and devotes his time and efforts to rescue the girl from an ex-trremely delicate situation. "The King's Vacation" comes Tuesday.

"Be Mine Tonight," the Universal special now playing at the Colonial theater, is international in its scope. It was produced by Gaumont pictures under the direction of a Russian, Anastas Litvak, working on Swiss exteriors, with a cast including Polish, German and English principals. Audiences in America are enabled to see this innovation pictures through the showmanship of Carl Laemmle, who purchased the American distribution rights. The film will close Wednesday.
