

Butterfat, Butter To Cut; Week Ragged For Stocks

WHEAT DROPS AND SOME EGGS ARE UP; HOGS OFF BIT

Butter and butterfat will be cut here a cent Monday, following word from Portland the prices were to decline there effective Monday. The new prices will bring sweet cream fat to 18 cents and the sour to 16 cents, both buying quotations; and wholesale prices on butter to 25 cents on the extra print, 24 cents on the extra print, and 22 cents on the standard print.

In the egg list, New York extras were listed up to 19 cents Saturday, and standards to 17 cents, other buying prices continuing unchanged.

Wheat dropped again Saturday here, bringing it down to 72 cents. The local price did not drop in proportion to the cuts in other markets, Friday.

New barley and oats are quoted as follows: Barley, $19; oats $20 to $25, the gray oats, much of which was frozen out last winter, being considerably higher.

Harvesting is under way fairly generally but only a little of the new grain has been hauled in as yet.

Poultry, livestock, and other markets remained unchanged Saturday, although hogs lost some 15 cents off late Friday, according to Portland's market reports.

In the vegetable list, Golden Bantam corn is coming in now. Beans are flooding the markets. Some fine peas continue to be shown.

Following was the price list for the day here:

MARKET INTEREST AT LOW EBB; WAIT FOR DEVELOPMENT

By JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)
NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(P)—The stock market traced a rather ragged pattern during the past week. Market interest was at low ebb with traders content to await tangible developments of the progress of the national recovery campaign and the administration's monetary policies.

The stock exchange was closed today in accord with the summer schedule. Volume for the past five trading sessions was around the same figure as a week ago.

Grains were erratic during the week, doubtless reflecting nervousness over the inability of the trade to formulate a code acceptable to the farm administration. The government's crop report, forecasting the smallest wheat crop in 35 years, apparently had no effect on prices, for wheat broke, on the following day the maximum amount permitted, for a single day's fluctuations.

Bonds moved within a narrow range throughout the entire week and foreign exchanges gave a colorless performance. Commodities generally showed no deeply-rooted prejudices one way or the other.

The high spot of the week, from the standpoint of the financial community, was the visit of the administration's monetary experts to the "summer White House" at Hyde Park.

Domestic industrial news was marked by publication of the U. S. Steel Corporation's report showing unfilled orders for July. On the whole, the decrease in the backlog was larger than expected and the stock market reacted almost immediately upon publication of the figures. Railway equipment companies were buoyed a bit by increased current orders, but bank clearings declined.

Week-end trade reviews emphasized that the recent halting of the production rate was constructive, in that it gave increased employment a chance to narrow the spread which has heretofore been evident between output and consumption. Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., forecast a robust sales gain in the fall.

PORTLAND MARKET GENERALLY FIRM

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 12.—(P)—Pressure against poor grade butter continues on the open market for cubes but top scores are holding up well. There was no change in the price list for the week-end either on the open market or on the produce exchange.

Make of butter continues chiefly below top score which has created a weakening situation for the offgrade while forcing fair strength for extras and standards.

Butterfat values are at least steady. Trading in the egg market continues to reflect more or less steadiness with the exception of undergrades which are weak. There was no change in the general price list for the week-end.

At the week-end there was no change in the chicken trade here. Heavy hens continue in strongest call in relation to supply but the big volume of business is in lights which are in big supply.

General maintenance of country meat prices is shown for the day, a condition that has ruled in all lines except beef from the week's opening. Beef remains slow.

Betterment in the tomato market is again showing. Local stocks were insufficient to take care of needs. Operators who were depending upon low priced Yakima stock to break the market were finally forced to get their needs from The Dalles.

Slow opening of the peach trade continues. Retailers are well stocked with California Elbertas and J. H. Hales but appear to show little interest in Oregon Crawford's. A few local Elbertas are also showing.

There is a weaker tone for local potatoes with further increase of offerings. Much of the stock is of good quality and favorable size. However the trade is demanding the long varieties and appears willing to pay a premium for quality.

PORTLAND LIVESTOCK
PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 12.—(P)—Cattle: 1907, calves 345 for week. Trade was practically on the same basis as ruled a week ago in steers and she stock, while bulls, calves and vealers have not shown any change for several weeks. Much offgrade quality arrived during the week with extreme low values in effect.

Hogs: 3707 for week. Trade appeared steady most of the week insofar as price was concerned, but the undertone was not so favorable on account of Missouri river hogs being landed here at lower prices than quoted here. Late Friday there was a loss of 15c indicated with a general top of six dollars for best light butchers. Feeder pigs continued in good demand up to five dollars for best weights.

Sheep and lambs: 3987 for week. In general there was no change in price for either sheep or lambs. For lambs the general top was held at $8, while Mt. Adams and Mt. Hood stock was slightly higher.

STATE—Double bill, "Hidden Gold," with Tom Mix, and "What No Beer?" with Buster Keaton and Schnozzle Durante. Last times Saturday.

"Gold Diggers of 1933," the musical extravaganza which has been packing them in all week at the Colonial, will be held over until Tuesday. Replete with comedy, drama and luring music, the picture is one of the outstanding films of its type to show here, and local audiences are loud in praise of it. The cast reads like the Hollywood honor roll, and the 200 chorus beauties are Heaven's gift to tired business men or anyone else for that matter. Joan Blondell, Warren William, Ruby Keeler, Dick Powell, Alne MacMahon, Ginger Rogers, Ned Sparks and Guy Kibbee play the leading roles.

One of the most amusing comedies on a local screen in recent months ends a two day run Saturday at the McDonald, with Edward G. Robinson playing the title role. It is "The Little Giant," and depicts Little Caesar trying to crash society. When the election of Roosevelt appears to seal the doom of the 18th amendment, Bugs Ahearn, Chicago beer-baron played by Robinson, decides to step out of the racket while he has his chance, and goes to the west coast to break into the "400." The "swells" take him for the greatest ride of his career, however, and he has to send back to Chicago for his own boys to avoid a prison term. The "Chicago method" of tightening out difficulties is a riot of laughs. Manager Ray W. Jones has also booked in several entertaining short subjects.

PUBLIC MARKET HAS GOOD TRADE

The Producers' public market had an exceptionally fine day Saturday with a world of vegetable and fruit produce on display.

Golden Bantam corn is coming on now, quoted at 20 cents a dozen ears. The fruit displays were especially varied and of fine quality, Saturday. Many peaches were seen of the early varieties. Plums are very numerous now, several kinds being on the market. Some fine strawberries were seen Saturday and the apples are getting of excellent size and quality now. Many of the Late Duke cherries are still on. There is still rubarb for those wishing to combine in pams, marmalades, etc., as well as for sauce.

Butter, eggs and poultry all continued unchanged.

Quantities of green beans, summer squash, and the bunch vegetables were stacked about the market.

Wonderful displays of flowers were out for the day's trade, too.

Following was the price list for the day:

"Somewhere in Sonora" was the destination of John Wayne and his miracle horse Duke, appearing in the picture of that name at the Rex Saturday. Doug Fairbanks, Jr. in "Love is a Racket," completes the double bill. Both films are good entertainment, Wayne appearing as a hard-riding son of the old west, while Fairbanks enacts the part of a Broadway columnist. Incidentally, here's a tip for Lee Tracy fans. Leo plays a featured role in "Love is a Racket," one of the first films he made after leaving the stage, and he does his bit in this picture just as pleasingly as in his starring productions since.

Buck, the screen's leading exponent of two-gun roles, rides, shoots and makes love in his best manner, and not only saves his aged father from the tyranny of a

Edward G. Robinson as "Bugs Ahearn," Chicago beer-baron in the uproarious comedy, "The Little Giant," closing Saturday at the McDonald. Robinson is seen as the retired mobster trying to crash the "400."

Suds to the left of them, suds to the right of them, cops in front and gangsters behind. That's Buster Keaton and Schnozzle Durante in "What No Beer?" which is playing as part of a double bill at the State Saturday. Tom Mix in "Hidden Gold" makes up the program. Keaton and Durante play the parts of amateur brewers, and start selling illegal brew to two rival gangs of mobsters. They have their difficulties but the picture ends with the two comics national heroes.

COTTAGE GROVE NEWS ITEMS

COTTAGE GROVE, Ore., Aug. 12.—(Special)—The increased purchasing power of residents of Cottage Grove at this time compared with this date a year ago is indicated by the fact that postal money orders issued for the quarter ending in July this year totalled $8,099.78, while for the same quarter last year they were only $3,716.42. For the quarter which ended in April this year money orders issued totalled $4,228.88, showing a gain for the quarter just past of about 35 per cent.

Corn that compares favorably with that raised in the central corn states is growing on the A. Woolcott ranch on Silk creek. Former residents of Iowa say it is as good as any they ever saw there. It was planted on clover sod, stands eight feet high, is of the Yellow Dent variety and gives promise of a large yield.

What a 16-year-old boy with determination may do to a job to which he is unaccustomed is illustrated by the crops being raised by Harold Boslaugh on the Thornton Corners nine-acre place owned by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Boslaugh. He has never before done farm work. Harold has done all the work, has 3 1/2 acres of Yellow Dent corn, oat hay that has cut 2 1/2 tons to the acre, an acre of splendid potatoes, more than enough stuff for the family and sufficient stock feed and a few cows. Most of the corn will be to five pigs.

Sidewalks on both sides of the street were ordered at the night meeting of the city council held last week. The city engineer and the council decided the sidewalks on the west side of the street and the council decided the sidewalks on the east side of the street. The sidewalks on the west side of the street were ordered at the night meeting
