THE temperature here is officially 98 degrees as I write. On the street it is as many over a hundred as you can count on a thermometer.

Bavaroise is a drink to make you enjoy a hot day. You need six ounces of sugar, yolks of eight eggs, one vanilla bean, two pints of strong tea, one pint of milk, one-half pint of whipped cream and a few drops of your favorite flavoring essence.

Boil a piece of cinnamon in a pint of water, add sugar, juice of two lemons and rind of one. Allow to cool. Crush strawberries, currants and raspberries, mix them in the syrup and strain. Add a quart of ginger ale to the syrup and pour the mixture over the fruits. Serve with a large piece of ice in a punch bowl.

Don't undertake too much yourself. Order has a certain coolness about it but leave hard cleaning and window washing and so on for cooler weather.

Keep the house dark. If you have an electric fan in the room where the children play, it is better to place it so it stirs the air but does not blow directly on small bodies at close range.

TODAY'S RECIPES

WHEN days are hottest, nothing in the world tastes as good as an ice cold drink. If you're tired of serving the ubiquitous lemonade, why not try a few new cold drink recipes? Many a woman has earned new respect for her culinary accomplishments from her family and a reputation as a popular hostess by having a few good cold drink recipes up her sleeve.

A cherry drink which is simply delicious and, in addition, looks handsome in your tall glasses, is very easy to prepare. You will need two pounds of red, sour cherries, six ounces of sugar, one lemon, one-half pint of maraschino cherries and one pint of ice water.

Pit the cherries and pass them through a sieve. Crush the pits, using a hammer or rolling pin. Add the cold water and sugar, stir well and filter through a piece of clean cheese cloth. When ready to serve, pour in syrup from the maraschino cherries. Garnish each glass with a maraschino cherry and a slice of lemon.

A melon concoction is something new and delicious. Here's the way they make it at Mayfair House: One pound or ripe melon pulp, two tablespoons of orange blossom water, six ounces sugar, one pint of ice water and carbonated water to taste.

Pass the pulp through a sieve and pour in a boiling syrup made of six ounces of sugar and a pint of water. Filter through a piece of fine cloth. Pour into your glasses, add a large piece of ice, orange blossom water and carbonated water to taste. Serve with two small melon balls in each glass.

Feed mint tea is something to make your guests sit up and take notice. To make it, you need six balls of tea, one bunch of fresh mint, three lemons and one-half pound of sugar.

Make a quart of strong tea. Boil together the sugar, water and the rind of one of the lemons. Add finely chopped mint and juice of two lemons to this syrup. Boil a few seconds, strain and place in ice box to cool. When you are ready to serve, mix the syrup with the tea, add plenty of cracked ice and serve in tall glasses with a slice of lemon and sprig of mint to each glass.

Bavaroise is a drink to make you enjoy a hot day. You need six ounces of sugar, yolks of eight eggs, one vanilla bean, two pints of strong tea, one pint of milk, one-half pint of whipped cream and a few drops of your favorite flavoring essence.

Cream together the sugar and yolks of eggs. Pour in boiling milk, perfumed with vanilla and the boiling tea. Whip vigorously. Allow to cool, add a few drops of flavoring essence and serve ice cold with a spoonful of whipped cream on top of each glass.

Kaltschale is something to delight the heart of any cold drink connoisseur. Take one-half pound of peaches, one-half pound pineapple, one-quarter pound melon, one-quarter pound of raspberries and white currants, one pint of strawberries, one pint of red currants, two lemons, one-half pound sugar and one quart of ginger ale.

Boil a piece of cinnamon in a pint of water, add sugar, juice of two lemons and rind of one. Allow to cool. Crush strawberries, currants and raspberries, mix them in the syrup and strain. Add a quart of ginger ale to the syrup and pour the mixture over the fruits. Serve with a large piece of ice in a punch bowl.

Double Irish Chain Pattern No. 448 — By Laura Wheeler
The Double Irish Chain, Pattern No. 448, is a pattern that has appealed to quiltmakers for generations. Made entirely of squares, its simplicity, which in no way lessens the effectiveness of the pattern, lends much to its popularity. It is usually made in three colors, two of which form the chain that gives it its name. In many of the old-time Irish Chain quilts the chains was made of scraps of material, the smallness of the square pattern piece making this most economical.
