

WHEAT MEETINGS WILL CONTINUE IN COUNTY THIS WEEK

The third of a series of meetings in Lane county on wheat production control problems was held Saturday night at the Danah hall in Junction City with a good attendance of wheat growers in that district. The first meeting was held at Irving Thursday and the second at Springfield Friday.

Other meetings scheduled by County Agent O. S. Fletcher are as follows: Coyote creek community, Monday, Aug. 21; Pleasant Hill, Tuesday; Cottage Grove, Wednesday. All meetings will start at 8 o'clock.

One feature that appears to loom large in the minds of wheat growers in this county in connection with the wheat plan, judging from the number of questions concerning it, is the matter of use of the "contracted acreage" which is the official term used to refer to the land to be taken out of wheat in accordance with the acreage reduction contract.

Only broad principles have been laid down in this connection so far, says County Agent Fletcher, saving some important points to be interpreted finally. However, here is the very latest information he has on the subject:

In the first place, the fundamental idea of the agricultural adjustment administration is that such land as is contracted to be taken out of wheat shall be rather "put in cold storage for the present," as one high official put it. In other words that the wheat plan provides cash compensation for taking that land out of production, hence a grower should not expect to continue it as equal income-producing acreage with the rest of his farm.

Thus, it is pointed out, the government contracts to make benefit payments for three years in return for acreage reduction for only two years, as the first payments apply to the 1933 crop on which no reduction is required. This is in contrast to the cotton situation in the south where contracts called for actual plowing under part of this year's crop.

Take, for example, a farmer who has been growing an average of 100 acres of wheat producing 25 bushels to the acre, or 2500 bushels total. He gets an allotment of about 54 per cent or 1352 bushels which at the minimum payment promised of 25 cents a bushel brings him a little more than $337.50 in addition to the sale of the wheat. Thus, taking this first year's benefits only, he is paid from about $18.50 to $37 an acre for his 10 to 20 acres of "contracted acreage" the amount per acre depending on the percentage reduction he will be required to make.

Therefore it would appear, says County Agent Fletcher, that any returns a farmer gets for this acreage taken out of wheat can be considered pure "velvet" above compensation already received.

The government recognizes, however, that the land would best not be allowed to stand completely idle to become a breeding place for weeds, so here is the exact regulations as set out in the specimen contract:

"The contracted acreage of 1934 and 1935 shall not be used for the production of any nationally produced agricultural product for sale, but may be used as follows: Summer fallowed, planted to soil-improving or erosion-preventing crops, or to food crops for home consumption on this farm, or to feed crops for the production of livestock (or livestock products) for home consumption or use on this farm."

Lane county land not used for wheat may be utilized for planting the following seed crops which will be in demand in the country: red clover, hairy vetch and Austrian winter peas. Alfalfa also may be grown to feed cattle already kept on the place. It is not in line with the program, however, to grow more alfalfa than needed for cattle already maintained, as that would be creating further surplus, Fletcher pointed out.

EUGENE NRA STORY

Block By Block Campaign Number Ten will represent the women in the city organization setup which will make the block by block campaign and unemployment survey. The local chairman of the NRA will report to the county chairman, the county chairman makes her report to the state chairman but the metropolitan area chairman are to report to the state chairman and also send a duplicate report directly to the Head of Women's Work at the National Headquarters.

The NRA executive committee was to meet Monday afternoon at four o'clock at the McMoran and Washburne auditorium to discuss the cooperation of the general public in helping merchants put the NRA program into effect. Merchants are to strictly observe hours and wage scales and the retail prices and it is necessary that the consumers do not ask undue favors and attempt to get out rates if the plan is to be successful.

The executive committee is composed of General McMoran and his four aides, Edward F. Bailey, George Turnbull, Bayard Welch and Dr. Allie M. Smith. E. G. Harlan will also meet with the group and the majors have also been invited.

Grocers Meet Again An important meeting has been slated for Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the chamber of commerce when all grocers of Lane county will gather to iron out their difficulties in selecting a code. The session has been called by General George H. McMoran and he will point out the necessity of the merchants cooperating and presenting a united front to put the campaign over.

Painters to Meet The painters will meet Tuesday and Wednesday. It was decided at their meeting last week that painter-contractors and journeymen painters should have separate codes since they have different problems to face. The journeymen will meet Tuesday evening at 7:30 at the Eugene Mirros and Glass plant and the contractors have their session Wednesday at the same hour at the chamber of commerce. Wood dealers also gather Tuesday at the chamber of commerce. The annual meeting of the Oregon Turkey Growers' association will be held Tuesday at Oakland beginning at 11 o'clock in the morning. O. S. Fletcher, county agricultural agent, is among the large group that will attend from Eugene. All Lane county members of the association are requested to attend the meeting to support the nomination of Joseph Kupetz, a Lane county grower, for director of the association.

Other meetings, announced for this week from Mr. Fletcher's office include a meeting Monday evening at 8 o'clock on the wheat control program at Coyote Creek community club near Gillespie Corners. Tuesday evening a similar meeting will be held at the Pleasant Hill high school and another is planned for Wednesday evening at the Cottage Grove high school.

THEATRES

MONDAY'S PROGRAM HEILIG: "Cocktail Hour," with Bebe Daniels, Randolph Scott, Charles B. Clary, and Randolph Scott. Closes Monday.

HEILIG: "Double Harness," with Ann Harding, William Powell, Ends Tuesday.

HEILIG: "Her First Mate," starring Zasu Pitts and Slim Summerville. Closes Wednesday.

HEILIG: "Cavalade," with Diana Wynyard, and all-star cast. Last films Wednesday.

HEILIG: "Gabriel Over the White House," with Walter Huston, Karen Morley, Franchot Tone and Dickie Moore. Ends Monday.

Today's most vivid headlines from Washington form the engrossing subject matter of "Gabriel Over the White House," which opened Sunday at the State theater, and bids fair to be one of the outstanding films of the decade. The anonymous novel on which the picture is based is already a literary sensation, appearing early in February, it immediately leaped into the best-sellers class. As the first photoplay which has taken a United States president through the turmoil of modern days, it is considered to be the most daring motion picture ever produced. Walter Huston plays the part of the president, and Karen Morley, Franchot Tone, Arthur Byron and Dickie Moore appear in supporting roles. Monday is the last day.

Three members of the cast of Fox "Cavalade," which opened a four-day run at the Hex Sunday were also in the original cast when the drama was presented at Drury Lane theater, London. They are Una O'Connor, Irene Brown and Merle Tottenham, and all have the roles in the film they created on the stage. Diana Wynyard and Olive Brook head the large cast, which details the story of the Marston family, through more than a generation. The film has received the highest ratings wherever it has played, and many thousands have applauded its excellent acting and thrilling story.

The wedding of an earnestly marriage minded maiden to a love-and-leave-em playboy and its resultant conflict are the entertaining subjects of "Double Harness," co-starring Ann Harding and William Powell, which closes Tuesday at the McDonald. Miss Harding and Powell's pre and post-marital problems form the theme of the picture. Ann works the old badger game on Powell to effect marriage with him, and they learn of this trick and use it to snare him. Then he rebels, and she is forced to win him all over again. Henry Stephenson, Lillian Bond, George Meeker, Lucile Browne and Reginald Owen are seen in supporting roles.

MOUNTAIN RESQUE STORY

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) from the south where they are sheer cliffs. Pence, nevertheless, tried to scale the rock walls. A piece of rotten rock gave way and he fell backward. Only the chance that he slid against a big boulder kept him from dropping into the crevasses of Jefferson Park glacier far below—a certain death.

Two Go For Aid Sopocoy and Kueemel immediately started out for aid, leaving the other two with Spence. Since fog and mist were blowing over the mountain, the Mazamas waited until 5 o'clock to start up the mountain, when it would be possible to follow the boys' footsteps in the snow. The party included Mr. Waldorf, Dr. Paul Spangler, camp doctor, Lynn J. Darcy, leader, John D. Scott, Ed Marshall, Harold Roberts, and Fred McNeil.

Emergency Crew on East Since the boys thought they had reached the summit saddle, in which case it would have been necessary to take Spence down the east side of the mountain, two men, E. S. Kramer and Edward E. Burgland, were sent out immediately to the Pamela Lake C. C. Camp 17 miles distant, where a relief party was to be organized to meet the rescuers on their journey down the Milk Creek glacier. It later turned out that this was unnecessary, since the boys had failed to reach the top and the rescue party returned the way it went up.

Finally Find Victim This group, equipped with alpenstocks, alpen ropes, crampons, and emergency rations which many Mazamas and Obidians carry in their packs for just such a situation, picked up the boys' footsteps in the snow on their way up the mountain, and after a three-hour climb, peered over the rim of a saddle and located the injured boy and his two companions on the side of the Jefferson Park glacier. Pence had been carried to a place of partial protection from the wind. At that time the party was at the 5000-foot level, the temperature very low and the wind blowing a gale, according to Mr. Waldorf.

The party spent just enough time on the mountain to make a stretcher of alpenstocks and blankets, build a fire of pitch sticks, solidified alcohol and candles and heat bouillon made from cubes carried in their packages, for the injured tree trooper, and then for the entire party, Dr. Spangler bandaged the boy's leg, using splints brought along by the party.

On the downward trip one member of the party went ahead to keep the group from crevasses and dangerous places, and after reaching the steep snowfields one end of the stretcher was dropped to the snow and the injured boy was dragged in the manner of the old Indian litters. He was taken to Paradise park and left in care of three senior Boy Scouts from Albany, who stayed with him until a C. C. C. party arrived to take him to Breitenbush Hot Springs by pack horse Sunday evening.

The boys were fortunate that experienced mountaineers were in the vicinity of the mountain at the time of the accident, according to Mr. Waldorf. The Mazamas concluded their annual two-weeks outing Sunday morning.

Major Charles H. Corlett, commander of C. C. C. division headquarters in Eugene, stated Monday morning that the tree troopers in the camps in this division will be very strongly persuaded not to climb the higher and more dangerous mountain peaks of this vicinity. Easy climbs to the top of the lesser mountains are encouraged as part of the recreational program for the C. C. C. boys, he added.
