The city of Eugene to bond retirement program and deflation of the bonded city, a re-financing plan called by the finance committee of the city council, the city attorney, the city recorder, following the mayor in referring to them at the council Monday night.

Details of the plan are yet to be worked out. In essence, it would consist of a program of re-financing the city's bonds, extending the time for payment of the bonds, street paving and sewerage, now sadly delinquent. Recorder R. S. Bryson, Tuesday.

Program in Danger

The city's bond retirement program is in danger of being abandoned through the payment of these bonds. Mr. Bryson said, "Collections have been falling off during the past few years and at the present rate, or rather lack of payment, it is not possible to pay the bonds on schedule. This means that if something is not done for that reason, the city's bond retirement program is in danger of being abandoned through the payment of these bonds."

There are three classes of persons owing the city payments on bonds.

Extensions Sought

Persons who are meeting payment on a fairly regular schedule are not concerned with them. Those who have practically paid their property because the city has not amount to more than they place on the property. This class also virtually takes care of itself as the property will be sold upon by the city and sold, but who, due to the economic conditions, are unable to raise

FIRES SLOW, RAINS FALL IN OREGON WOODS

General Precipitation Aids Fighters Battling Monster Blaze

MORE MOISTURE DUE

3-C Workers to Be Kept On Front Until All Danger Past

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 29.—(AP)—"Rain!" The exultant cry rang through the smoking woods in every fire fighting camp in northwestern Oregon as heavy showers during the night ended an immediate crisis in the coast range mountains where for 15 days the greatest forest-conflagration in Oregon's history had been raging.

To the 4,000 sweating, begrimed and weary men who had battled blistering heat and unsurmountable odds in a futile attempt to control the great fires, the rain meant at least temporary respite.

Defense Improved

The wind had died, humidity was high and heavy mists were being borne through the woods from the cold Pacific ocean. The showers during the night and this morning were not sufficient to extinguish the fires which have destroyed an area of more than 1,200 square miles, but the moisture dampened the woods and rendered slow and difficult the progress of the creeping fires.

Further rain and heavy fog on the coast was predicted by the weather bureau. But the fire fighters were not satisfied to rest on this promise, and those in charge of the work continued to work persistently at their defensive system. Should the weather clear and a dry period of east winds and hot weather ensue, they knew, another crisis might be precipitated.

Loss already has been variously estimated at between $15,000,000 and $25,000,000.

Scenes of Early Boyhood Visited By Lane Pioneer

W. H. Griffin of West Springfield, member of an early Lane county pioneer family, made a trip a few days ago to some of the scenes of his boyhood in the vicinity of Jasper and Dexter. He visited the old homestead near Jasper where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Griffin, who came here in 1853, first settled and ate apples off a tree that was planted in those early days.

The first time Mr. Griffin ever went to the grist mill at Dexter with his father was by means of ox team and he recalls making a trip to Portland by team for supplies. It took a week or more to make the trip one way in those days.

Mr. Griffin also visited the same place of Fall creek where he cut his first ax and said he could almost point out the spot where he first wielded the axe on the tree.

Mr. Griffin's parents were members of the "lost party" of immigrants that made the trip over the Cascades by way of the Willamette pass and came near starving to death before succor arrived from the valley.

Five Killed When Big Plane Crashes

CLOVIS, N. M., Aug. 29.—(AP)—Five persons fell to their death in a tri-motor Transcontinental Western Airlines plane when the plane crashed against the south end of Mesa mountain and caught fire near Quay, N. M., 60 miles northwest of here early today.

The plane caught fire the minute it crashed into the side of the high plateau and the two pilots and three passengers were trapped in the blazing plane. Their bodies, according to reports received here, were not badly burned.

3 ARMY FLIERS DIE

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 29.—(AP)—Three army fliers were killed in a mid-air collision near Randolph field today. Those killed were Lieut. Harley R. Grater, Lebanon, Ind.; Cadet William Pasche, Chicago, and Cadet Harold R. Sandberg, Denver.

Lane Relief Agencies Face Problem In Providing Funds For Use In Coming Winter

Preliminary to the raising of funds for a Eugene relief chest again this winter, the matter will probably be taken up by George H. McMorran, director of the chest last year, at the weekly meeting of the County R. F. C. committee Wednesday. Mr. McMorran said Tuesday.

Plans will also be made soon by the county court and the Lane county chapter of the American Red Cross for the annual winter relief work throughout the county.

Discussing the matter of the relief chest, Mr. McMorran said that something will have to be done soon and an organization of some kind will be formed. While the necessity for relief may not be as great this winter and next spring as it was during the past year, there will still be hundreds of families in Eugene and Lane county that will have to be assisted, he pointed out.

Money is still coming in on the pledges made last year to the relief chest, but the records show that there has been little more than 50 per cent of the amount pledged collected so far. Pledges amounted to approximately $10,000 but only between $5,000 and $6,000 has been taken in.

Under new regulations recently promulgated by the government relief agencies Lane county as well as the state at large will be compelled to raise $2 for every $1 given by the government. It was pointed out by Mr. McMorran, and some method that will be different from any heretofore employed to raise such funds must be devised or no government funds will be forthcoming at all, Mr. McMorran declared.

"If we cannot raise such a fund we will just be out of luck, because the federal relief agencies are not going to give us anything unless we raise our share. The state at large probably will need over a million dollars and the government will supply but a third of the amount."

The county court has formulated no other plan of relief for the coming winter than it has been following in the past. County Commissioner Crowe said Tuesday. There will undoubtedly be a demand for relief this winter, he said, but if the sawmills continue to run during the winter the situation will not be nearly as bad as it was last year. On the other hand, if the mills cease operations

Early Response Gratifying; M'Morran Praises Cooperation

Arrangements were under way Tuesday for a grand evening of the Blue Eagle in Eugene Friday. A community mass meeting is set for 8:15 at the National Guard armory.

The program will include a varied offering of music and a few short, snappy speeches to give the people of Eugene a comprehensive idea of the scope of the NRA campaign and to develop their enthusiasm for the cause of re-employment.

Short Talks Planned

General George H. McMorran, in charge of NRA activities in Eugene, was busy Tuesday noon completing the program for the evening. He is receiving highly cooperative responses from those he is asking to participate in the evening's entertainment.

The speeches are to be kept short. Mr. McMorran explained, and one of the qualifications of each is a good speaking voice, which will insure his being heard in the big auditorium. Those who have already been listed for the evening are Edward F. Bailey, Eugene attorney, newly appointed manager of the home loan bank branch; Mrs. Genevieve Thompson, head of dormitories at the University of Oregon; Rev. Father F. P. PAYING TEACHERS REMAINS PUZZLE

Staff Faces Prospect of Selling Warrants At Best Offer

Eugene school teachers who are to be employed here next year will receive notice of their election following the special meeting of the school board Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, and they will know their salary scale, but they will not know how and when they are to be paid.

Election of teachers will be accomplished at the board meeting with their salaries based on the same scale as last year. But what will be used for money and when whatever is used will be paid the teachers is another matter and probably will not be solved for some time.

No contracts are being signed as yet, according to Superintendent H. H. Gould and none may be drawn until after school has started. Drawing of contracts pending a decision between two alternatives for paying teachers.

1—If Eugene banks will assure the district that they will cash three-fourths of the warrants, leaving one-fourth to be deferred until a later date, as was practiced last year, contracts will be made out on a basis of 12 installments in the teachers' salaries. That is, the teacher will receive 12 monthly payments, each warrant being for three-fourths the monthly salary.

2—If banks will not assure the cashing of three-fourths of the warrant value, the contracts will be drawn on a basis of payment of the full monthly amount to the teacher each month over a five months period, leaving the teachers to dispose of the warrants as best they can.

If the old plan of teacher payment is used, teachers will have their first payday when school opens, Sept. 11. If the new plan is put into effect, the first payday will be on Oct. 1.

Emergency Menus Often Based On "Stories From Real Life"

By MARIAN LOWRY

This week's forum might be called "True Experiences Contest," because most of the suggestions already in are based on actual cases where hostesses were suddenly faced with the problem of preparing a meal quickly for several unexpected guests.

Practically every housewife has had this problem and it was for that reason that this week's topic, "Emergency Menus" was selected, following a suggestion by a contributor.

It is a simple matter for you to sit down and remember just what you prepared for such an emergency meal. There are no restrictions as to what food should be used in this menu, the purpose of the contest being to find out what you can do in an emergency with what you have on hand. Of course, the menu must be edible and attractive, not just any conglomeration of foods that you happen to find on the pantry shelves. One purpose of the contest is to meet the emergency with a planned and somewhat balanced menu, even though it be planned in a few minutes.

The suggestion was contributed with view of preparing something quickly and easily for touring visitors who might drop in to see you. There are numerous other occasions, however, when the housewife is faced with the situation of an emergency menu. Perhaps you have some suggestions along these lines.

All contributions should be in by Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock at the Register-Guard office. Nine cash prizes are to be given, $1 for the first, and 50 cents each for the next best eight.

Below are printed two more of last week's winning entries:

Peach Roll
8 peaches.
1½ cups sugar.
2 cups water.
