

SPECIAL AUDIT TO BE RELEASED BY CHANCELLOR KERR

monious meeting in Portland Monday passed a motion by E. C. Sammons, chairman of the finance committee, demanding the secretary of state to produce the report. So far efforts of newspapermen to obtain the report failed, although Kerr's answers to special audit items was given out by the secretary of state. The contents of the special audit, other than those answered by Kerr, have not been made known. Kerr's replies covered 57 pages of closely typewritten material.

Private Use Charged
Charges against Jackson included shortages in his inventory accounts, irregularities in handling accounts, use of materials for his own use, six weeks paid vacation of a truck driver, and employment of his daughter in his own office, and general laxity in the conduct of his business affairs. The chief criticism here in the entire matter is the attempt to suppress the audit. It was believed the irregularities cited were in themselves minor, and would have been corrected without public sentiment had the original audit, completed during the legislative session last February, been made public at once.

Records at the secretary of state's office showed that E. D. Ruess, who made the much-discussed audit was hired by Hoes August 1, 1932. He worked for 11 months, confining his service to an audit of Oregon State College finances. His salary was $175 monthly and expenses while away from Salem.

Confers on Report
Buell was released July 1, 1933. The secretary of state's office reported that Buell was originally employed on a temporary basis with the time of his service estimated at two months. Buell's release had nothing whatever to do with his audit findings, Hoes' office reported.

According to Hoes, Buell's initial report of irregularities was submitted to the secretary of state in February. The report was sent to Dr. W. J. Kerr but not to the board of higher education. Shortly thereafter Kerr and C. L. Starr, chairman of the board, conferred with Hoes and Otto Kuhn, in charge of the auditing department. The report was then turned over to W. A. Jensen, executive secretary to Chancellor Kerr at Corvallis.

Jensen Prepared Answer
The report released by Hoes was compiled by Jensen, Jensen compiled with the Buell remarks, refutation for each charge. Numerous veiled attacks on the auditor are contained in the 57-page document in which, in the main, the actions of Jackson who was criticized by Buell are fully defended.

In Jensen's reply, statements from E. M. Smith of the business office at Corvallis, an extended statement from Jackson, and extended affidavits from employees of the college under Jackson's direction. Reference is made in excerpts from Buell's audit to "signed and sworn statements" in Buell's possession which allegedly confirm Jackson's irregularities. These statements are not included in Jensen's report nor were they available at the secretary of state's offices.

Johnston's court Wednesday afternoon on charges of operating trucks without license and Lyle Paul, another brother, was assessed a like sum for failure to have a public utilities commission license.

The men are sub-contractors on the Siuslaw highway between Cushman and Florence. The judge announced that he would suspend the fines when the men obtained license plates and paid the costs of action.

SCOUT LEADERS TO MEET HERE FRIDAY

The secret of conducting Boy Scout troops in small towns will be explained by A. W. Frazee, troop committee man of Leaburg, at the meeting of scout leaders of the Willamette council to be held at the chamber of commerce building Friday evening, Sept. 15, at 7:30 o'clock.

Mr. Frazee has been chairman of the Leaburg troop committee since it started in 1928 and the troop, number 21, is considered a model troop for small towns. Every boy in school, who is of scout age, is a member of this troop.

Troop committeemen and other scout leaders of every section of the Willamette scout council are urged to attend the meeting Friday night when important phases of scouting, as it applies to communities outside Eugene, will be discussed.

Many Coming For Lumber Meeting

A large number of lumbermen from all parts of western Oregon, are expected to attend a meeting at the Osburn hotel Friday night, according to H. J. Cox, secretary of the Willamette Valley Lumbermen's association.

The meeting is to be held in an effort to give every operator in the district under the code a thorough understanding of its provisions, it is announced. A similar meeting was held at Tacoma, Wash., Wednesday and one will be held in Portland Thursday.

In order to provide for those who desire to attend the meeting, which will begin with a dinner at 6:30 p. m., it is requested that reservations be made by calling Mr. Cox, whose telephone number is 1870 or call the Osburn hotel.

Poultry Products Not Under U. S. Act

Poultry products are not classed as basic products and therefore do not come under the farm administration law. Eugene poultry raisers were informed by Miss Edna B. Reed, manager of the Pacific Cooperative Poultry Producers association, at a meeting of the Eugene Poultry association at the chamber of commerce Tuesday night.

Miss Reed was the principal speaker at the meeting which was called by Cecil B. Pearce, Springfield, president of the association. Approximately 100 poultrymen were present.

Lane County Man Dies in Hospital

John Thomas Smith, a native of the Junction City district and who had lived there a greater part of his life, died at the state hospital in Salem Tuesday night, according to a message received Wednesday by County Judge Fred Fisk. Smith had been a resident of the Lane county farm for some time before being sent to the state hospital a few months ago. He was about 60 years old.

Siuslaw Forest GETS $8000 FUND

An additional sum of $8000 has been allotted the Siuslaw national forest for public works projects, it was indicated by Fred H. Brundage, assistant regional forester, who was here Wednesday.

This money is to be expended on small jobs in the forest that cannot be reached by the men from the C C C camps, according to R. S. Shelley, supervisor of the forest. They include small stretches of roads and work on telephone lines, and the erection of cabins for firemen. Most of the work will be done next year, Mr. Shelley said.

While here Mr. Brundage announced approval of the several projects outlined by P. A. Thompson, supervisor of the Willamette national forest, to be carried out under the allotment of $40,000 recently announced for this forest. The projects include a 25-mile section of road between Odell lake and Waldo lake and several trails.

Truck Owners and Drivers Cited to Appear in Court

Owners and operators of several trucks in the western part of Lane county have been cited by state police officers to appear in the Eugene justice court on charges of failure to obtain proper licenses for operating.

W. C. Bruckman who operates a truck on the Siuslaw highway appeared before Justice of the Peace Dan Johnston Wednesday on a charge of failure to have a public utilities commission license when transporting articles for hire and he was allowed to go when he paid the costs and agreed to get a license.

Others cited to appear on this charge were H. E. Wiseman, Lyle Paul, Lester Morgan and Charles D. Stennett.

Complaints were issued against Edlefen and Wgant, highway contractors, for failure to have drivers' licenses for three of their trucks at work on the Siuslaw highway and eight truck drivers employed by the same firm were cited for having no drivers' licenses.

Officers Look For Birds, Find Still

When two state police officers went to the home of Isaac Newman on Hansen lane north of the city, Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock to look for Chinese pheasants which Newman was thought to have killed during the day, they found no pheasants but a moonshine still instead. Newman was locked up in the county jail and was to be taken to Portland Wednesday to appear in federal court.

The officers had a search warrant and looked in all the lower rooms and the basement for dead pheasants and finding none there, started upstairs. "You can't go up there," Newman said to the officers, but they did and found the still in one of the rooms. It was warm from recent operations, the officers said. The plant was of 25 gallons capacity.

P. O. Gunstad Dies Here Wednesday

P. O. Gunstad, for 22 years a resident of Eugene, died about 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at his home on 1403 West Sixth street. Mr. Gunstad was born November 12, 1859, in Norway, and had lived in Oregon since 1905.

"Anybody that does anything for somebody else without getting something out of it is a sucker." That was Jimmy Dolan, light-heavyweight champion world's, philosophy. Then Jimmy killed a man, and his views suffered a change. An interesting combination of boxing, romance and drama is contained in "The Life of Jimmy Dolan," which closes Wednesday at the Heilig, starring Doug Fairbanks, Jr., and Loretta Young. Both leads give excellent characterizations, while Alene MacMahon sparkles in a sympathetic comedy role.

Scene from "Aniakchak," Alaska film made by Bernard Hubbard in the "valley of 10,000 smokes", which closes Wednesday at the McDonald as part of a double bill with "Doctor Bull."

A 6 foot giant, clad only in a leopard skin loin-cloth, nonchalantly drinking the water in your gold fish bowl? That's the situation Frances Dee stepped into in "King of the Jungle," thrill picture closing Thursday at the State, and was she embarrassed! Buster Crabbe plays the role of the "Jungle Man." He is the join-cloth. Come down to the State today and find out how the lord of the jungle happened into a Bronx living-room, dressed in "scanties" only.

He brought them into the world and he saved them out of it. He was the target of malicious gossip, and object of professional contempt, but in the crisis he alone could be depended upon to pull them through. Such a man is "Doctor Bull." Will Rogers latest starring picture which closes Wednesday at the McDonald as part of a double bill with "Aniakchak," Alaskan scientific film. Will gives a grandly sympathetic characterization of the small-town doctor, and the film packs more human-interest and heart throbs than "State Fair."

A new angle on the eternal triangle is "I Loved You Wednesday" which closes Wednesday, at the Rex. Warner Baxter, Victor Jory, Mimi Jordan and Elissa Landi are the parties involved, and the film is full of passion, dialogue and clever situations. The plot revolves around the idea of "I loved you Wednesday, but Thursday is another day." Masterful characterizations are given by all the principals, and the film is one of the best of the more sophisticated dramas of the season.

Lillian Miles isn't listed as the star, but the blonde torch singer almost steals the show in "Moonlight and Pretzels," luring musical comedy closing Thursday at the Colonial. How that gal can sing! Roger Pryor, son of Bandmaster Pryor, is excellent in the role of a songwriter, while Mary Brian is adequate as his small-town sweetheart. As far as we're concerned, however, this is Lillian Miles' picture, and that's the reason we stayed through three showings. There are eight new songs, plenty of dancing.
