EDITORIAL—The other day I read one of Findlay's squibs, and he said how it would be a mistake to get rid of all the Chain Stores, and his angle is interesting. He says that among the thousands of Chain Stores in the United States they have some efficient help, and this help has some money saved; all the Chains were forced to get a lot of this help would go into business for themselves, producing more stores and a personal contact and business between the dependents a great deal more representative than at present. Mr. Findlay's slant on the situation may be correct, but it's a hard slam on Wall Street.

"It's a Bully good Cigarette"

SO FAR as I can tell . . . and I've smoked a lot of them . . . CHESTERFIELDS are always the same. They have a pleasing taste and aroma I smoke 'em before breakfast and after dinner. I smoke 'em when I'm working. I smoke 'em when I'm resting. And always they satisfy. They suit me right down to the ground.
