his vifification, if he could have an unprejudiced jury. But, if Julius Meier is to be the jury, he is convicted before the trial regardless of what the evidence might show. The only benefit of asking for the hearing would be to give the people of Oregon a chance to get the truth, which they have not gotten yet and which they probably will not get unless the hearing is held. Roseburg News-Review—It is extremely unfortunate that so important a body as the board of higher education should be troubled with dissension. Unquestionably C. L. Starr is a sincere and able man but if the governor feels that the board can function better under different leadership it is best for all concerned that the request for resignation be granted. Salem Capital-Journal—These objections to Mr. Starr's methods existed as long ago as when he was regent, and occasioned the resignation of some regents. They were stressed when the legislature of 1929 took a day off in fervid oratory to reject "Little Ike's" nomination to the merged board, but later reconsidered his appointment under pressure of "Big Ike". Mr. Starr was not only chairman of the board, but the board itself, which occasioned the friction. He has been a hard worker for the success of the institutions along his own lines, and vainly strove for harmony between the colleges in the process of consolidation. He overplayed his hand when he forced the election of Dr. Kerr as chancellor, for 25 years of enmity is not to be forgotten overnight. One not aligned with any of the institutions should have been selected. Albany Democrat-Herald—Governor Meier has taken the right course in asking for the resignation of C. L. Starr from the chairmanship of the state board of higher education. The chairman has been the storm center of the board for too long a time. His removal from the board will be a step toward that accord and harmony which is so sorely needed for the proper administration of the state's higher educational institutions. This newspaper believes that secret methods on boards of higher education are out of place. The success of the institutions depends on public confidence and public confidence is not the fruit of a warring board. Nor can men be expected to be complacent members of a board, whose chairman practices methods of secrecy and stealth. Astoria Budget—Chairman Starr apparently fell into the trend of thought common to public officials of long standing who are prone to believe the offices they hold and the establishments which they control are theirs of inherent right rather than by public trust. These officials often conduct these affairs to the best of their ability and in the utmost of that which they believe to be right, but in so doing may forget that the public is entitled to its judgment of their stewardship, and that such judgment cannot be rendered when public business is conducted behind a veil of secrecy. Such may have been the motive and attitude behind Starr's action in concealing, even from fellow members of the board, an important matter dealing with the operation of an institution, in the conduct of which they had just as much interest and responsibility as he. As a rule, when an official acquires this viewpoint, it is better that he make way for someone else, and the Governor was left with little choice to do other than he has, and demand a resignation. Oregon City Enterprise—Chancellor Kerr is the product of expediency. Afraid of losing the university, influential Eugene citizens accepted him as a compromise. It was a political deal engineered presumably by C. L. Starr, a devious worker. The elimination of Dr. Hall and the acceptance of the "ancient enemy" was a bitter pill for the university partisans and they have been choking on it ever since. Dr. Kerr received a welcome in Eugene about as warm as an iceberg in the North Atlantic. He has been the victim of continual sniping; his opponents in and out of the university are alert to get something on him. We feel that a great injustice is being done Chancellor Kerr, and would have it otherwise if we could. On the other hand he knew fully the circumstances; was aware of all he was getting into, and knowing, went willingly into it, if not actually helping to pull the political strings from back stage. The demand of Governor Meier for the resignation of Kerr's leadership, C. L. Starr, looks ominous for the chancellor, whose support on the board hangs by a thread of one man. Politics made Dr. Kerr chancellor. Those who stand by politics must expect to fall by politics. The Oregon Statesman, Salem—Governor Meier has called for the resignation of C. L. Starr from the state board of higher education. It is a belated move which would have come more appropriately at the beginning of his administration when he was flush with a "new deal." Starr hangs over as a politician from the Patterson regime. We have credited him with a sincere interest in education, combined with political dark-room methods. There should be no particular regret over his passing, provided some stronger man is named as his successor. Bend Bulletin—The gravity of the situation has been recognized by the governor. With the choice before him of allowing things to go on as they have been going on, or of applying a remedy, he has elected to apply the remedy. The news announced that Governor Meier has asked for the resignation of Chairman C. L. Starr from the board. When the political significance of the name of Starr is recalled, the courage shown by the Governor in taking this action must be at once conceded. The Governor has not dodged the issue. He has accepted the responsibility that is his. Medford Mail-Tribune—The plain disagreeable truth is the chancellorship of President Kerr has not been a success. . . . Regardless of the qualifications of Chancellor Kerr there will be no harmony till Chancellor Kerr steps out. . . . This is expressing no judgment on the rights and wrongs of the situation. It is merely facing facts. Baker Democrat-Herald—Certainly Starr deserved a good spanking for suppressing the audit, but he was getting that from other board members and the press. The deal in itself would not justify his removal. What will be its effect? The answer depends largely on whom the Governor appoints to replace Starr. If he merely appoints the Sammons-Pierce faction and thereby fosters a drive to remove Chancellor Kerr, he will plunge the educational system into worse turmoil than it has known before. The election of a new chancellor under present conditions would be a veritable "battle of the century." will do. The job pays nothing. It takes a lot of time. He is one of the few men on the board who have had experience as an educator. Higher education with him has been a hobby. We did not agree with him about a lot of it, but he is honest, sincere, intelligent and whatever he does he does because he thinks it is best for the young people of Oregon. Under the law he is entitled to a public hearing. If such a hearing is held, there would be no question of
