

WIDE INTEREST IS SHOWN IN TESTS OF MARKSMANSHIP

Nation-wide interest in the muscular coordination tests for riflemen, a research project at the University of Oregon carried on by Dr. R. H. Seashore and Raymond D. Adams, has resulted from publication of the results of their work. It was announced here today. Letters from every part of the country, from educational institutions, scientists and from rifle clubs have been received, requesting further information on the project.

The tests given to expert riflemen and to other groups proved that riflemen excelled in five tests for steadiness, leading the psychologists here to believe that it may be possible to discover the best prospects for good rifle shots before the men are sent on the range for training.

Complete information on the entire research project has been requested by Waldemar Kaempffert, science editor of the New York Times, who has informed Dr. Seashore that he will write an extensive article for the science section of his newspaper. Dr. J. Edwin Kirkpatrick, of Los Angeles, wants to make use of Dr. Seashore's apparatus in testing alcoholic intoxication, while Joseph F. Meister, of Temple University, wishes to make use of the tests in physical education work.

Several letters were received from rifle and marksmanship clubs. One of these came from the "National Rifle Association" of Portsmouth, Ohio, and it carried with it an invitation to Dr. Seashore to attend the association's national meet. From this quaint name, it is believed that the club probably dates back to days when charges were rammed down into the old "muzzle loaders." A letter was also received from C. B. Lister, secretary of The National Rifle Association, and from Ed McGovern of Lewiston, Montana, whose letterhead carries the slogan, "No more sensational shooting." Mr. McGovern is writing a book on rifle shooting and has asked Dr. Seashore to write a foreword for it.

Information is also desired by the Braintree Rifle and Pistol Club of Braintree, Mass.

Dr. Seashore is associate professor of psychology at the university, and has done outstanding research in the field of muscular coordination. Apparatus which he has designed is now in use in many institutions. Mr. Adams was a graduate assistant in the department last year and already has done considerable research work of note.

Information on the project of testing riflemen for steadiness was deemed of sufficient importance by both Associated Press and Science Service, national news agencies, to send out several hundred words by telegraph to the hundreds of newspapers which they serve. It was these reports which brought the project to the attention of the many who have written in for information.

Flapper Fanny Says:

A windbag often produces gales of laughter.

to pay the code cost of 15 cents per 1000 egg hatching capacity, with a minimum fee of $2 is a violation of the code. Two copies of all catalogs and sales literature must be filed by every operator that comes under the code with the co-ordinating committee at Kansas City. Failure to do so is a violation of the code.

"All forms of misleading advertising are a code violation. Each hatchery operator is responsible for his own advertising. Literature already printed that violates the code will not be allowed to be distributed.

"Whenever chicks or poulets are sold as of the strain of a certain breeder, such chicks or poulets must be 100 per cent pure of that strain.

"Chicks or poulets cannot be sold less than cost. All listed prices must be filed at Kansas City. Any change in chick prices must be in the mails 48 hours before becoming effective or may be made by wire 24 hours before becoming effective. Producers of chicks or poulets must bear in mind this code is a federal act, not an act of Oregon.

"Heavy penalties are provided for violations of the code. The penalty for any violation is the same as the penalty for all other codes; namely, $500 and prison sentence, and the fine is repeated for each day the violation is willfully made.

"The county agents and extension poultryman, aided by the press and volunteer workers, are trying to compile a complete list of all who may come under the code. A short extension of time has been provided as a protection for Oregon operators who may have taken the situation lightly. This is the last appeal before final lists are submitted. The extension service is in no way involved in carrying out the code or reporting violations. It is interested only in compiling the names of those coming under the code as they have been instructed to do by the code authorities. Each operator is for his own protection urged to see that his name is on the list by getting in touch at once with County Agent O. S. Fletcher."

Information On Poultry Code Is Given By Fletcher

Information on the provisions of the poultry hatcherymen's national code was released in a statement from County Agent O. S. Fletcher here. Following is the information:

"Since Feb. 3, 1934, the Commercial Breeder and Hatching Industry code has been actively in effect in Oregon.

"All persons in Oregon that produce chicks for sale, do any custom hatching for hire, deal in or sell chicks or poulets or ducklings come under the code with one exception—the person who uses eggs produced on his own farm and hatches them in his own incubators and none or less than 500 chicks in the calendar year.

"Each hatchery operator that comes under the provisions of this federal code must have posted in his hatchery a 'code compliance certificate' on and after Feb. 1, 1934. Many operators have not availed for this certificate. Failure to operate without it is a violation of the code.

"When chicks are sold as blood tested, a descriptive label not less than 4 by 5 inches must be pasted on the box stating when the parent stock was tested, what disease they were tested for, what method was used, by whom tested and whether all reactors were removed. A failure to comply is a violation of the code. Giving extra chicks or poulets beyond the actual number ordered is a violation of the code.

"The code prohibits the setting of eggs that weigh less than one and five-sixths ounces each and averaging less than 23 ounces to the dozen, at the time they are placed in the incubator.

LOWELL WINS BUT COMMUNITY PLAY TRYOUT IS CLOSE

The community dramatic clubs of Pleasant Hill, Trent and Lowell presented three plays last night at Trent in an elimination contest for the county dramatics championship sponsored by the Grange. Lowell was adjudged the winner, but the decision was close.

Pleasant Hill presented "Miss Maria," a rather sober but appealing drama of the '60's. The stage was set with authentic pieces of that period; the costumes were the real thing; groupings were well arranged and effective. Real beauty was achieved in the good technique on the part of the director, Mrs. Allan Wheeler and cooperation by the cast. Miss Anna Parks in the title role was charming and consistent; Jed Wheeler, as the elderly lover, did an excellent characterization. Mrs. Hattie Jacoby in the somewhat humorous part of "Rose" was consistently in character. The entire cast did good individual work, and if they had played more "to each other," they would have been nearer the award.

The second play was "Wenches on Wednesday" by Trent, Mrs. Frank Kimball directing, and this play showed fine work on her part. The groupings were well-planned, the settings and costumes adequate and the characters well cast. Timing was good and the actors played together.

Mrs. Clarence Rice as the Italian concert singer did an outstanding piece of work and Barry Manner as the young son of the family was so realistic with his wincing that the audience suffered pangs of hunger (they are the reviewers favorite fish).

Lowell put on the third and prize-winning play, "Hugo in a Hurry." Mrs. Gwen Powers, directing. Joe Walker as Hugo and Harold Fosner as Mr. Sparks were convincingly funny and the rest of the cast played up without a hitch.

The play took first place because it achieved speed, rhythm and naturalness in addition to being adequately set and cast. Perhaps it was lucky in drawing the closing play on the program. Anyhow it had that touch of confidence which made it "click."

All three plays were greeted by a large and enthusiastic audience, and the judges in order to reach any decision had to go into "the fine points."—G. N. T.

NEW TERRAPLANES ON DISPLAY HERE

The new 1934 Terraplanes and Hudsons have arrived in Eugene and are on display, announces Elmer Gilbertson of Monroe Motors, 837 Pearl street. Terraplane and Hudson distributor for this territory. This new line of cars, which are said to be the finest in the history of this company, may now be seen by the public.

Larger and more luxurious bodies of ultra modern type are mounted on chassis designed on the basic principle of unit-engineering which characterized the Terraplane for 1933. It is this principle which was responsible for the unprecedented record of performance and ruggedness established by this car, according to Mr. Gilbertson. The Terraplane Six is made on a wheelbase of 112 inches and 116 inches. The Hudson Eight is made in two wheelbase lengths, 116 inches and 123 inches.

The exceptional smoothness for which Hudson-built engines have been famous since the introduction of the Super-Six is even accentuated this year. The six-cylinder Terraplane which takes the place of last year's model will have a larger motor, the displacement being increased from 193 to 212 cubic inches due to an increase in the bore of the engine from 2 1/8 inches to 3 inches, and the stroke from 4 3/8 inches to 5 inches, making the dimensions now 3 3/8 bore and stroke.

The new six-cylinder engine develops 80 h. p. at 3600 r. p. m. It has a compression ratio of 5.75 to 1. On the Deluxe series six, which is on the 116 inch wheelbase, there is a composite aluminum and iron head which raises the h. p. to 85 at 3600 r. p. m. with a compression ratio of 6.25 to 1.

The two Hudson eight-cylinder engines also have a full 3 inch bore this
