Cascara Peeling To Start April 1

PORTLAND, March 21.—(AP)—The probability that the opening price on cascara or chitin bark this season will be between 2 1/2 and 3 cents a pound was mentioned here today as one of the largest dealers announced that the bark peeling will start in Pacific northwest centers between April 1 and 15. This is fully three weeks earlier than usual.

The opening prices, tentatively set at from 2 1/2 to 3 cents, will be practically the same as last year.

Holdings of the bark by dealers at Pacific northwest points are rather liberal, it was said here, as the buyers probably will not be as eager to bolster values as they did a year ago.

M'ALEXANDER IS ROTARY SPEAKER; 158 ARE AT MEET

A very successful inter-city club meeting and ladies' night program was the gathering put on Tuesday evening by the Eugene Rotary club at the Osburn hotel. Places were laid for 158 at the dinner with others coming in later for the program, featured by a talk by Major General U. G. "Rock of the Marne" MacAlexander.

More than 50 were present from Salem, Roseburg, Corvallis, and Albany. Dean James H. Gilbert, president of the Eugene Rotary club, presided as toastmaster.

Mrs. George P. Winchell responded for the women and welcomed the visiting ladies. Van Smith responded from the Albany club. Lee Bennett from Corvallis, Harris Ellsworth from Roseburg, and Bill McGilchrist, former Rotary district governor, from the Salem group. Dr. Charles E. Hunt of Eugene led the group in community singing.

A highlight event of the program was the appearance of the Eugene Gleemen in a group of solos, directed by Tom Kaarhus, assistant director of the chorus. The Johnson Sisters presented their novelty act. Greetings were read from the club's district governor, W. J. Dismore.

Major General MacAlexander, introduced by Dean Gilbert, said his story was but the tale of an old soldier. The soldier is the only pacifist after all, he declared, because when people can get their troubles settled in no other way they have to call in the soldiers to restore peace. "We get peace. But we fight for it," he said. Discussing then the importance of preparation and training, he declared, "You demand victories. To get victories, you have to get better soldiers, better training, better equipment, etc. But that is the situation anywhere, on the battlefield, in the college hall, on the street," the speaker said.

Before he described the second battle of the Marne as the key event turning the tide of the war, a subject for which he is noted as a lecturer, Major General MacAlexander made several comments of the results of the war, of the realism which has come where idealism has gone. He likewise took several raps at France and the French attitude.

With preliminary statements regarding the first American soldiers who landed in France, who were trusted by no one, believed by the allies to be too soft to fight, and believed by the enemies to be too cowardly to fight, the speaker then described the maneuvers and scenes at the battle of the Marne, telling how the nerve, courage, and common-sense of the Americans caused the rout of the Germans and the turn in the war and won for them the title of "Rock of the Marne."

Major General MacAlexander had an enlarged diagram or map and a picture of the Marne valley to illustrate his talk. "The history of the world was changed in three days," he said in speaking of this battle as the key point of the campaign of which it was a part.

The committee arranging the dinner and program was headed by C. P. Tillman. Chase Gardens provided big boxes of roses that were distributed to the ladies during the evening.

"Happy Days Are Here Again" Says Classified Page

An indication that times really are improving is found in a study of the Register-Guard classified ad page. Whereas for the past three years the "help wanted" section of the page has been practically nil, and the "positions wanted" has been crowded, the two have opened up now, so that as much space is filled by ads seeking people to work as those seeking work for people.

Another interesting fact reported by the ad department is that it is becoming very difficult to find housekeepers and maids.

Government Would Recover 9 Million

LOS ANGELES, March 21.—(AP)—Recovery of $9,282,561 from Edward L. Doheny, multimillionaire oil magnate, was demanded today by the federal government in a suit attacking as fraudulent three petroleum leases in the Elk Hills fields of Kern county, Cal.

Revising the oil scandals of the Harding administration the suit cited a recent ruling of the United States supreme court, holding the leases were obtained by Doheny's Pan-American Oil company through collusion with former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall.

CALLS MORATORIUM BISMARCK, N. D., MARCH 21

Governor William H. Langer of North Dakota today declared a moratorium upon business and corporation debts on the grounds that the continued closing out of such debts would be "disastrous to the general welfare of the state."

"MR. AND MRS. BERNADOTTE"!

They're just plain Mr. and Mrs. Sigvard Bernadotte, leaving London's Register Hall after their marriage. But the reason this crowd pressed about the building to glimpse them is because the groom is Sweden's former Prince Sigvard, and his bride a German film actress, Erika Patzek, a commoner for whom he renounced his royal rights.

Heilig. The principal star, Claude Rains, is never seen, while Gloria Stuart, as the girl who loves, never enters his arms. It's an entire, taut, blend of comedy and thrills, with some punch shots that will make your hair stand on end. Recommended.

Vern Godfrey brings that thrilling drama, "The Road to Ruin," to the Colonial today. He has doubled it with "One Year Later." Haven't seen either, but the first is similar to the silent production, except that it is entirely remade, with sound and modern photography. Where are YOUR children tonight?

Dick Arlen and Judith Allen star in an interesting little picture of fishing, "Hell and Highwater," at the Rex today. Both give good performances. Double billed with Ed Wynn in "The Chief."

"The Girl Without a Room," sprightly comedy of Parisian art and artists, opens today at the State. With Charles Farrell, Charlie Ruggles and Marguerite Churchill in the starring roles, the picture moves rapidly, has plenty of good gags, and is naughty but nice. About a young artist who wins the Paris award when his picture is hung upside down. Lots of other complications.
