

HOME RULE FOR CITIES URGED AT CAMPUS PARLEY

ous city officials formed informal groups for "shop talks."

Seasons of the annual health conference, held in connection with the Commonwealth Conference being held here, will open Thursday night at 8 o'clock at the Eugene chamber of commerce with the public invited to attend.

The subject for Thursday evening's discussion will be "Social hygiene, venereal disease and economics and their interrelation in the state of Washington." W. Ray Jones, of Seattle, will lead the discussion.

Dr. P. A. Parsons, of the university, will speak on "The social aspects of the depression." Dr. A. H. Ross, Eugene, president of the Central Willamette Medical society, will preside.

Permanent Program Seen

The federal government henceforth will conduct its huge relief programs upon a permanent basis, upon the assumption that effects of the present depression will be noted for many years, it was declared Wednesday night by Frank Bane, director of the American Public Welfare association, in an address before the Commonwealth Conference, now in session on the university campus. The CWA and other relief agencies have been temporary measures, designed to take care of immediate situations, and have served to bring the country through what would have been the most disastrous winter of the present economic crisis, he pointed out.

The new federal relief program, which will have $350,000,000 of which to work, will be much more efficiently organized than the CWA, and will take into consideration actual need of people to be employed. The maximum work week will be 24 hours, with a minimum wage of 30 cents per hour, and men will be given only enough work to provide for their needs and the needs of their dependents.

Program Is Divided

The new program will cover three fields, urban, rural, and that of "stranded populations." In the cities relief employment work will be carried on much as it is now, but in rural areas an attempt will be made to keep people on their own farms. They will be paid for making improvements and for rehabilitation work on their property, in place of attempting to transport them about to various "jobs."

For the "stranded populations"—communities of people who have depended upon a basic industry that has been wiped out by the depression—the program will be two-fold. The government will attempt to introduce new industries into the communities so that the people may find employment, or may transfer the people to centers of industry where work may be obtained.

Hangover Predicted

Mr. Bane sketched the growth of government relief and re-employment agencies, and declared the CWA and others had made an excellent record during the past few months, and had aided the country through what would have been the worst winter of the four years of depression.

"It is time now to look ahead, however," he said. "We must realize that the depression will have a 'hangover' that will last five, ten or perhaps more years. In the name of economy many social agencies and many actual necessities in public work have been curtailed, to the detriment of the people as a whole."

Dr. Parsons Elected

The Oregon Civic Council, an organization that will have for its purpose the coordinating of all regional, county, city and community planning groups in Oregon, was formed here Wednesday. Dr. P. A. Parsons, head of the department of sociology and director of the bureau of municipal research and service, was named chairman by the group. He was empowered to appoint a state-wide committee which will complete organization of the council in the near future.

MARKS DECISION STORY

the majority believe he could not be elected.

The reason for this belief lies in the character of the man himself. An indomitable fighter, outspoken in his public appearances, a man who reaches out and gathers in opposition and then slaps it down, Scott has stirred up considerable animosity in various sections of the state, of which Lane county has its share. Scott is said to have the support of Meier republicans, but might meet opposition in the old guard ranks and there is the hitch. The party needs a man that can hold the split party together in order to defeat democrats this year.

On the other hand, Dunne is favored by many of the old guard, but not so much by the Meier people. So there it is.

Field Badly Split

Another man expected to announce soon is State Treasurer Rufus Holman, who, if he enters, will compete with Sam Brown and W. E. Burke for the so-called progressive republican vote. Charles Hall is an avowed candidate, but is not mentioned much locally, or throughout the state.

The candidacy of Frank Loneragan, Portland, is receiving much attention now that Marks has dropped out. Incidentally, it is a safe bet that all of these, Loneragan, Hall, Brown, Burke and Holman, felt slightly relieved at Marks' decision. In connection with Loneragan, it is believed much of the effort to get Earl Snell, of Arlington, into the gubernatorial race is calculated to split votes, divide support so that Loneragan can get the nomination.

Shelton Throws In

The race for the secretary of state ship saw a new candidate Thursday when J. E. Shelton, well-known in Eugene and known over the state for his newspaper activities and as former manager of the Oregon State Motor association, formally announced his intention to seek the democratic nomination and filed his declaration at Salem.

Shelton was in Eugene Saturday hobnobbing with the democrats at the sessions held at the Osburn hotel and at that time it was rumored he would shortly file for the job.

In Eugene, where he still has business contacts, he formerly was connected with the Morning Register and the Eugene Guard. He also engaged in the newspaper business in Bend.

Elbert Bede, of Cottage Grove, is expected to clarify his position on the republican side of the fence later this week. With Shelton in for democrats, S. S. George in for republicans and Bede being mentioned, Lane county seems to have a corner on this job for the present at least.

TWO SPEAKERS ON ACTIVE PROGRAM AT THURSDAY MEET

Two speakers were on the program for the weekly luncheon meeting of the Eugene Active club Thursday noon at the Eugene hotel.

Prof. Jesse H. Bond of the University of Oregon school of business administration faculty discussed the topic "Spotlight on Insurance," in line with observance of financial independence week.

Asking the question why the spotlight on life insurance, Mr. Bond said there were many other ways to find financial independence, and then went on to point out the advantages of life insurance. Life insurance combines and reconciles a regard for self and families with a regard for other people and their families. In thinking of this angle, one can regard the premium in these parts. One is for investment, an accumulation for self. Another part goes to pay for the beneficiaries of the policy holder. There is a third part, however, that has to do with the policy holder. Many die without completing the full number of years that their policies run, thus leaving before they have paid up their policies in full. The difference between what they have paid in and that which goes to their beneficiaries is paid for by others who are paying on their policies. Mr. Bond pointed out as the unselfish way of looking at life insurance.

There has been a change in the character of life insurance salesman, also, life insurance has made a fine record as an institution during the past few years of depression, he said.

Quoting some figures, he showed how in 1930 $64,000,000 had been paid out for policies that had not been taken out a year when the holders died. Along with this interesting figure was one that some 30,000 policies in that same period were allowed to lapse within a year before the holders died.

In the year 1933, $3,000,000,000 were paid out from life insurance companies. In the last four years, $11,000,000,000 have been paid out enough. If evenly distributed, to give $800 per capita in the United States, or $4000 over a period of four years to every family, counting five to the family, he said.

Speaking briefly on how the insurance companies have been able to make good so well, he said one consideration was the investment policies, which are done through expert guidance and carried on into a great diversification. Then there has been the regularity of outgo from the companies. Too, the life insurance companies do not have to sell anything at depressed prices, he added.

Donald R. Husband introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Genevieve Turnpseed appeared before the club to tell about the work and aims of the National Business and Professional Women's club federation and the aims of the local club affiliated with the association.

For the national group she told how the clubs had raised the business standards for women, had worked to give a broader education for every professional woman, had worked to have at least a high school education for every business woman. She said also that women are not in business for pin money but as a permanent thing. She then outlined the work of putting back 10,000 "white collar" women to work as a big project for the national federation at present.

Speaking of the local situation she said the local club had done much to give scholarships and loans and to help girls get a business education and then she outlined the main project, that of beautifying and preserving the natural beauty of the Skinner butte park. She asked the support of the Active club in making this a city-wide project. J. Don Smith introduced the speaker.

The local club's charter, night dinner dance was announced for April 5 at the Lee Duke cafe. An invitation was read from the Portland club for its charter night on April 28.

published an open letter to Premier Gaston Doumergue charging that former Premier Camille Chautemps, in office when the Stavisky scandal broke, and Chautemps' brother-in-law, now in public office, instigated the deaths of Stavisky and of Albert Prince, chief magistrate in the Stavisky investigation.

2—Superintendent Alfred Canaling, of the special branch of Scotland Yard, returned to London yesterday after a five day visit here, and planned to consult the British home office today regarding allegations that prominent Britons were intimately associated with Stavisky.

3—Deputy Philippe Henriot, whose persistent charges exposed the whole Stavisky scandal, testified yesterday before the parliamentary investigating committee. So sensational was his testimony that it was withheld until policy could follow it up. One charge he made was that Stavisky had instigated the death of Deputy Andre Galmot at Cayenne several years ago.

Private Operation Of Airmail Pushed

WASHINGTON, March 22.—(AP)—

President Roosevelt speeded work for return of air mail lines to private concerns at a conference today with officials of the postoffice and commerce departments and Attorney General Cummings.

The group was called in as efforts were made on Capitol hill to hasten the new legislation for contract bidding.

Apparently the president is preparing for action as soon as he gets the necessary legislation.

LABOR CRISIS STORY

Sixth avenue was dispersed only when a patrolman riding in the sidecar of an armored motorcycle displayed a riot gun.

A few minutes earlier this same group was broken up momentarily when a foot patrolman, going to the rescue of a driver seized by the strikers, drew his revolver.

Cars Are Wrecked

The wrecking of cars and beating of drivers this afternoon first broke out when the strikers began a march from strike headquarters, 19th street and Third avenue, to go to city hall to ask for the right of "peaceful picketing" at the major fleet garages.

On the march downtown the strikers halted half a dozen cars, beating their windows, ripping out their ignition wiring and beating the drivers. After the visit to city hall the men started back up Broadway, pausing occasionally to disable taxicabs.

Turning off Broadway into Houston street, the crowd marched to Lafayette street and moved north again. At that point they encountered Mayor F. H. LaGuardia and the crowd surrounded the private limousine in which he was riding. Some of the strikers booed and others cheered the mayor.

LICENSE POWER READY

WASHINGTON, March 22.—(AP)—President Roosevelt may require industrial concerns to obtain a license to operate. This power is given him under section 4B of the national industrial recovery act. It says:

"Whenever the president shall find that destructive wage or price cutting or other activities contrary to the policy of this title are being practiced in any trade or industry or any subdivision thereof, and after such public notice and hearing as he shall specify, shall find it essential to license business enterprises in order to make effective a code of fair competition or an agreement under this title or otherwise to effectuate the policy of this title, and shall publicly so announce, so no person shall, after a date fixed in such announcement, engage in or carry on any business, in or affecting interstate or foreign commerce, specified in such announcement, unless he shall have first obtained a license issued pursuant to such regulations as the president shall prescribe. The president may suspend or revoke any such license, after due notice and opportunity for hearing, for violations of the terms or conditions thereof.

Any order of the president suspending or revoking any such license shall be final if in accordance with the law. Any person who, without such a license or in violation of any condition thereof, carries on any such business for which a license is so required, shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not more than $500,000 or imprisoned not more than six months or both, and each day such violation continues shall be deemed a separate offense."

Florida Robbery Dillinger Chases

ST. CLOUD, Fla., March 22.—(AP)—Search for John Dillinger continues in Florida and other southern states today after witnesses to $10,000 bank robbery here late yesterday identified one of the bandits as the notorious outlaw.

Three unmasked white men, escaped northward in a small machine bearing an Indiana license number, forced Cashier Paul Kirtpatrick to open the Citizens State bank vault and carry the loot to their waiting automobile.

APPLY FOR LICENSE

Application for marriage license was made at the office of County Clerk Dillard Thursday afternoon by Marion Smith and Helen Tucker, both of Junction City.
