BEER ORDERED REDUCED

PORTLAND, Ore., May 8.—(AP)—Blaming high-powered beer for most of their troubles, members of the state liquor commission have decreed that after July 15 draught beer containing more than 3.6 per cent alcohol may not be sold in Oregon. The order will not apply to bottled beer.

This action was taken by the liquor control commission last night at a momentous meeting which followed by but an hour or two the statement by Governor Meier that he was displeased with the work of the board and was giving it 30 days time upon which to organize on a "sound, efficient and business-like" basis.

In reply the members of the commission addressed a communication to the governor stating it would appreciate "any suggestion you may care to make which would react to the benefit of the people of this state."

SILVER PLANS STORY

ain had been sounded out on another conference but was not at present ready to engage in such a parley.

Thomas disclosed that a heavy tax was in prospect on the profits that present holders of the metal were expected to make in event of nationalization.

He said he expected silver prices, under the plan, to rise immediately to 50 cents an ounce in the United States and that holders in theory would reap about $30,000,000 between that figure and the price today.

LABOR TROUBLES STORY

in Milwaukee. A similar number returned yesterday as four major disputes were settled.

About 10,000 operatives in the Amoskeag mills were idle because of a walkout in the cotton division, but the textile workers union ordered them back, refusing to sanction the strike.

Some 500 workers in the Ladish Drop Forge agreed to return after union recognition was granted, with an immediate increase of 10 per cent in wages and another 10 per cent raise in 60 days if business warrants.

Violence marked the leather workers' strike at Peabody, Mass., where five workers were attacked yesterday. About 1500 Peabody leather workers have refused to join in an agreement that returned 6,000 fellow workers to their benches.

A strike of Pacific coast longshoremen was called for tomorrow at 8 a. m. Gulf port dock workers are on strike.

The gasoline pumps of independent operators in Cleveland were locked in sympathy with the strike of 2,000 attendants of the major oil companies.

Howard S. Merriam, Goshen apple grower and candidate for the republican nomination for the state legislature, will be honored at a luncheon at the Osburn hotel Thursday noon, it was announced Tuesday by Elmo Chase and W. A. Ayres, who are in charge of the event.

Friends of Mr. Merriam will gather at the event to honor him for his many activities in behalf of the agricultural industry of this county. It was said. It is planned to have a short history of Mr. Merriam's work in the county recounted. Other details of the program will be announced later.

"It is planned to make this dinner something in the nature of a testimonial dinner, with various friends of Mr. Merriam paying tribute to his work in this county," said Mr. Chase.

Akin Murder Case Before Grand Jury
PORTLAND, Ore., May 8.—(AP)—The supposition was strong here today that important new evidence had been uncovered in the investigation of the slaying last Nov. 20 of W. Frank Akin who, at the time of his fatal shooting, was conducting an investigation of the affairs of the Port of Portland.

A county grand jury investigation of the old murder case swung into its second day today, but the district attorney was close-lipped.

10 Men Are Burned In Elevator Blaze
ST. LOUIS, May 8.—(AP)—Ten men were burned, six of them seriously, in a violent grain dust explosion today in the Missouri Pacific elevator at the foot of Primm street.

The blast shattered all of the windows in the huge structure, broke long cracks in the upper portion of the building and caused a fire in 1,600,000 bushels of grain stored there. The fire burned half an hour.

Florence Man's Body Not Found
The body of W. A. Reindl, Florence man who lost his life while fishing Sunday, had not been found Tuesday morning, the coroner's office reported.

Mr. Reindl, who with his son operated a service station at the Heceta junction north of Florence, had been fishing on the North Heceta Jetty when he was dashed off by a huge wave. His body is thought to have been carried out beyond the bar.

INSULL JAILED STORY

Illinois supreme court, defender of Insull.

"If the government thinks we are bluffing, the government will find it is mistaken. We cannot raise this amount."

"When John Factor was held for removal to England recently the government only placed him under $50,000 bond."

High Ball Sustained
Federal Judge John P. Barnes listened briefly to the arguments.

"The only question before the court," the jurist said, "is the amount of bail which would reasonably assure the presence of this defendant at his trial."

"The question as to how much money or property a man has, has nothing to do with the amount of bail. Under the circumstances I am of the opinion that the suggestion of the government is not excessive."

Insull, to whom thousands were plying, sagged in his chair. Thompson pleaded again, but the court had decided.

"That is my best judgment," Judge Barnes concluded, and rising, withdrew into his chambers.

Deputy marshals assisted the broken man to his feet, marched off with him to the office of U. S. Marshal H. C. W. Loubenheimer where only an hour before Insull had been delivered into his custody by Burton T. Berry, the president's messenger, who had brought him from Istanbul.

Arrest and Fine Follow Recent Potato War Here
An echo of the recent "potato war" in Eugene was the arrest Tuesday of Floyd B. Colerick, connected with a local produce store, on the charge of acting as a commission merchant without a license. He appeared in Justice of the Peace Dan Johnston's court where he was given the minimum fine of $25, which was suspended "on good behavior."

Colerick was accused of hauling a quantity of potatoes on consignment which, it was alleged, constituted the act of being a commission merchant.

A representative of the state department of agriculture was here investigating the case, also other matters in connection with the so-called potato war. At least three different grocery stores were engaged in the "war," each offering potatoes below the established code price until they were being offered as a free premium with the purchase of a certain amount of groceries.

Construction work is under way on SOS airports and landing fields established or improved under the program undertaken last December by the department of commerce and CWA.
