BLACKBERRIES AND BLACKCAPS COMING IN PLENTIFULLY

Blackberries and blackcaps are more plentiful in the Eugene markets than at any time yet this season and prices are lower as a result. Buying prices Saturday were $1 to $1.25 a crate for blackberries and $1 straight for blackcaps.

While wheat in the Chicago market was lower Saturday than the day before there was not enough difference to affect the Eugene price which still stood at 74 cents a bushel.

All other Eugene prices were steady. Prices follow:

Wheat Is Weak and Corn Is Stronger

CHICAGO, June 30.—(AP)—Contrasting sharply, wheat made a weak finish today and corn a strong one, influenced largely by differences expected in July unofficial crop summaries due on Monday.

FEDERAL CONTROL BEGINS WITH LOW EBB IN ACTIVITY

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP)—The stock market passed out of the self-governing picture and into federal control today without any noticeable fanfare or cheering. While prices held fairly even throughout the brief session, the trading pace was around the slowest rate in the past ten years. Transfers approximated 180,000 shares. The close was steady.

The market bade farewell to the second quarter of the year in the midst of a heat wave which drove most speculators out of the city and left the boardrooms virtually deserted. Brokerage sentiment, while gloomy because of lack of business, were still fairly optimistic for the "long pull."
