

McDonald Offers "Little Miss Marker"; Heilig Dunne-Dix in "Stingaree"

"Witching Hour" Comes To State; "All Quiet" To Close At Colonial

Augustus Thomas' poignant drama, "The Witching Hour," long a favorite in theater circles, has been brought to the screen by the amount, with Sir Guy Standing, John Halliday, Judith Allen, Tom Brown, Gertrude Michael and William Frawley in the leading roles. "The Witching Hour," which opens today at the State theater, has one of the strangest, yet most tender and romantic plots ever conceived. It tells the story of old love coming to life to save and strengthen a newly born romance, and includes in its exciting events a murder committed under hypnotic spell and a thrilling court room vindication.

New loves are coming into the life of Spencer Tracy in rapid succession. Helen Twelvetrees is his newest in "Now I'll Tell You," double-billed with "The Witching Hour." Miss Twelvetrees earned the assignment to the leading female role of the forthcoming production on the recommendation of stellar work in "All Men Are Enemies," completed recently by Fox Film.

Richard Dix and Irene Dunne are regarded as co-stars in "Stingaree," RKO-Radio's eventful melodrama, opening today at the Heilig. These stars have not appeared together in a talking picture since their sensational success in "Cimarron."

HEILIG—Sunday to Tuesday, "Stingaree," with Irene Dunne, Richard Dix; Wednesday and Thursday, double bill, "Ever in My Heart," with Barbara Stanwyck, plus "Countess of Monte Cristo," with Fay Wray, Paul Lukas; Friday and Saturday, double bill, "Cross Country Cranks," with Lew Ayres, June Knight, plus "Smoking Guns," with Ken Maynard.

REX—Sunday only, double bill, "Lazy River," with Jean Parker, Robert Young, plus "Jimmy the Gent," with James Cagney; rest of week unannounced.

success in "Cimarron." "Stingaree" is a dash and sympathetic Australian bandit who spends his spare time composing music. The role gives him an opportunity to return to the adventurous, twinkling-eyed roles he acted in the days of his early success. Miss Dunne, opposite, has her opportunity to exploit thoroughly her beautiful voice. In "Stingaree" she sings both popular and operatic songs. The story, adapted from the "Stingaree" series by F. W. Hornum, author of "Baffles," deals with a great love between the two, born when "Stingaree" comes to rob the home of a humble relative and servant. He helps her and escapes to his romantic mountain lair, right through a chain of mounted police sworn to kill him. After one glorious night of love, he starts her on her cherished and to fame by sacrificing his life. In a surprise climax, Miss Dunne tries to sacrifice her glory for him but he balks her by staging an elaborate escape during which he goes so far as to kidnap the governor general of all Australia and his cabinet. That gentleman's official cement. Thereafter, the beautiful opera singer never marries, but is followed about the world by a mysterious, romantic looking man.

Outcomes of the Seventies in Australia together with the appearance of historic characters of the period London, where better scenes in the story are laid, lend spectacular interest to the production.

Refusing to life the famous character in Damon Runyon's celebrated story, "Little Miss Marker," states Boland and Shirley Temple, together with a host of other talented stars, are featured in the Paramount film version of "Little Miss Marker," which opens at the McDonald today. The picture tells the story of a girl, friendless and penniless, who is forced to adopt a little girl for a bet. As time goes on the girl is headed little by little, she is to be tender and loving, stimulating him to win back his self-respect and honor. In a startling rapid climax he sacrifices a fortune to free the child from death and wins the love of Dorothy Dell, whom he had been worshipping at a distance for years.

"Return of the Terror," one of the most unique and baffling mystery dramas ever screened, is double-billed with "Little Miss Marker." The screen play by Eugene Solow and Peter Milne was suggested by the cleverest of all of the mystery dramas of the famous author Edgar Wallace. The story concerns a series of crimes, the first of which is the killing of a number of patients at a private sanitarium for which the superintendent is convicted and confined to an insane asylum. John Halliday and Mary Astor star.

"Jimmy the Gent," the Warner Bros. picture starring James Cagney, closes tonight at the Rex after a 3-day run. The picture is based on the hilarious comedy romance by Laird Doyle and Ray Namaro and concerns two crooks who are both trying to expose the other to impress the girl they both love. The story unravels in humorous vein the unique racket of their chasing, that is, the hunting down of lost heirs in order to inherit unclaimed estates. And the two notorious heir chasers, James Cagney and Alan Dinehart, do not stop at bribing persons to act as heirs and coaching them into perjured testimony.

Bette Davis is the feminine lead. The mysterious backwater Bayous of Louisiana—the "Caluses"—least known of all American peoples—the smuggling of Chinese on the Gulf Coast—and romance under warm southern skies are all blended into "Lazy River," new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer drama, double-billed with "Jimmy the Gent." Heading the cast of this unusual offering are Jean Parker and Robert Young as the young lovers who bring fast-moving adventure and conflict into the sheltered world of an obscure fishing village. Both give portrayals that surpass all of their recent efforts, including Young's role in "Carolina" and Miss Parker's great triumphs in "Little Women."

The greatest war film of all time comes again to the screen. "All Quiet on the Western Front," Universal's picturization of the world-famous novel by Erich Maria Remarque, closes today at the Colonial theater. Four years ago the picture was made at Universal City. That was in the spring of 1930. But today "All Quiet on the Western Front" is more timely than ever before. Its very timeliness, as explained by Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, is the reason for presenting it again. Mr. Laemmle says: "This picture is brought back at a time when the whole world is again fearful of war. The story was written by one who hated war because he knew from experience that it is hell, not glory. The mothers of the world will welcome it and will urge their sons to see it. It is greater than mere entertainment, because it is a war against war itself. As a showman and as a hater of legalized murder, I am intensely proud to offer it to the public again." When "All Quiet on the Western Front" completed its initial runs throughout the world, Mr. Laemmle promised that should war again threaten the world, he would re-issue the classic film. Now he keeps his promise. With Europe, Cuba, Asia and the Far East so many powder magazines ready to be ignited, he comes forth once more with what critics hail as "the greatest antidote to war which has ever been placed on the motion picture screen."
