GENUINE PIONEER CAKE RECIPE IS BROUGHT FORWARD

Aunt Laura Applegate's Prize-winning Burnt Leather cake, made from the first cake recipe used in Lane county, will be served at the Pioneer Ladies' Whist party to be held Friday, July 27 at 2:30 o'clock at the Osburn hotel. One hundred and sixty invitations have been sent to pioneer ladies who have lived in this vicinity fifty or more years. Mrs. Frank L. Chambers is general chairman.

The Williams' Bakery will bake the cakes with one large one measuring 15 inches in diameter and ten small cakes measuring eight inches in diameter. Miss Anne Whiteaker, grand marshal of the pioneer parade, will cut the cakes.

Pioneer ladies are to bring their relics and articles of former days to the whist party for display. Prizes will be awarded for cards and the Gypsy Gray Woodcarvers have donated a replica of the Hampton ox yoke, which crossed the plains in early days, made from the black walnut grown near the Cartwright hotel on the Lorane highway.

The recipe for Aunt Laura Applegate's prize cake follows:

Ingredients

1½ cups white sugar
½ cup shortening. Butter preferred
2½ cups Sperry's Cake Flour
1 cup sweet milk
2 eggs, separated.
2 teaspoons full baking powder
1 teaspoonful vanilla
2 tablespoonsful burnt sugar syrup

To Burn Sugar

Put 1 cup white sugar in a sauce pan. Set on stove, and let come to a boil, stirring to prevent lumping. Let burn till it gives off intense heat, and becomes real dark in color. Remove from stove, add ½ cup boiling water, stirring. This amount of syrup makes enough for three batches of cake.

To Mix

Cream sugar and shortening. Add egg yolks unbeaten. Stir well. Add milk and 2 cups flour. Beat well. Add ½ cup flour with baking powder well mixed. Beat. Add well beaten whites of eggs, and last, the two tablespoons burnt sugar syrup. Divide into three layers, and bake in medium oven. Ice.

Icing

1 coffee cup white sugar
½ cup hot water.

Boil without stirring till it threads. Pour over beaten white of one egg. Add one tablespoon burnt syrup syrup. Teaspoon vanilla. Beat. Well chopped walnut meats add to it's attractiveness, but not necessary.

three days, and enough tinned and other non-perishable food to withstand a siege of 20 to 30 days. Milk trucks still were running and bakery wagons continued to operate but there was no assurance as to how long this would continue.

Two thousands California national guardsmen continued to hold the state-owned San Francisco waterfront in a military calm. Scattered instances of violence continued elsewhere in the city and the police mobilized for extraordinary duty. The plans of Acting Governor Frank F. Merriam were awaited anxiously to to whether he would extend the national guard lines farther into the city in case of recurring disorder.

Strikers Spread Rapidly

Besides the striking longshiremen and marine workers, more than 6000 union men aready were on strike in the bay area, about 5000 more were ready to join them Saturday and the central labor council's strike "strategy" committee called a session at mid. afternoon to determine its recommendations for the 65,000 union men in the city. A general strike recommendation was commonly expected.

The East Bay cities, including Oakland and Alameda, were similarly situated, with thousands of union men already on strike and others awaiting advice from the Alameda county labor council as to their future course. There are about 45,000 union men in the east bay district.

The negotiations remained virtually in status quo, with the president's board still trying to get employers and maritime strikers together on arbitration. The employers previously agreed to arbitration of the longshoremen's issue but the latter had stood firm in its refusal to arbitrate the matter of control of the hiring halls. The longshoremen finally said they would put the arbitration matter to a referendum provided the employers would agree specifically to arbitrate the issues in the other maritime strikes also. On these matter the board worked as the spectre of the general strike moved nearer and nearer.

Travelers began leaving San Francisco when hotels issued warnings that they would be able to serve meals only two or three more days.

Fifteen cases of dysentery were reported in a downtown apartment house. Health authorities attributed the outbreak to "antiquated Food" and warned citizens to cook viands thoroughly.

Whether electricity, gas and transportation service would continue in the event of a general strike remained uppermost in the minds of the populace. Mayor Angelo J. Rossi said every effort would be exerted to keep light, power and sanitation agencies functioning. Some clogging of garbage chutes due to a slowing down of the disposal system was reported but the scavenger workers remained on the job. Street car men were reported ready to walk out.

Dairymen said they would ask the protection of troops of the movement of milk trucks was interrupted. Bread wagons continued operation.

LABOR TO DECIDE

PORTLAND, July 13. —(AP)—A statement that settlement of the waterfront strike controversy here will "be prompted by civic and commercial organizations refraining from urging strikers to accept arbitration," was issued today by the strike strategy committee of the Central Labor council.

"This committee," the statement said, "takes the position that labor should be permitted to define its own policies without interference from outside groups."

The strategy committee met for three hours this morning in a secret session for discussion of strike developments. Aat noon there still was no indication when a vote might be taken on the question of submission of union issues to the federal mediation board. It was said, however, that E. P. Marsh of Seattle, United States department of labor representative, was on his way here, possibly to supervise a vote by the local unions of waterfront workers.

The only untoward event of the days was the wounding of a special officer by a regular policeman. The special, Elmer Newbill, 48, suffered a slight wound in the fleshy part of the arm, after he reputedly pointed a revolver at Patrolman Crisp who drew his own gun and fired. The affair occurred in front of centrol police headquarters. Patrolman Crisp said he saw Newbill running up the street with two men in pursuit. Newbill had a revolver in his hand. He said the two men, longshoremen, had attacked him and he fled. The longshoremen, however, said Newbill had drawn his revolver on them without provocation and that they threatened to take it away from him, whereupon he ran toward police headquarters.

Patrolman Crisp joined in the chase, and as Newman reached the door of the central station, Crisp said, the special turned suddenly and aimed the revolver at him. Crisp fired.

said. Each pump will bear a sticker showing this trade name.

Following is a statement prepared by the emergency committee Friday:

"Due to strike conditions and an impending gasoline shortage it has been deemed advisable by the representatives of the ten oil companies operating in this area to form an Emergency Petroleum committee, whose function will be to ration out present supplies of all companies so that commercial, industrial, and agricultural business may carry on in a normal way.

"With the complete cooperation of gasoline consumers to limit themselves to this normal daily supply, it was thought by the committee, that the Eugene area would continue to maintain sufficient stocks for the duration of the present strike condition.

"Service station dealers have been asked to limit the sale of gasoline to consumers to five gallons per car provided that said car has less than five gallons in the fuel tank at time of delivery.

"Motorists contemplating vacations can be assured of a reasonable supply at all points on the coast."

No price increases, due to increased cost in shipping gasoline into this area by rail, are anticipated at the present time, company officials declared.

Officials emphasized the fact that gasoline supplies here were sufficient to serve the community, but they urged cooperation in conserving the supply in the present emergency.

Action of the teamsters union in going on strike in San Francisco further complicated the local situation Friday.

At the Eugene Fruit Growers plant, J. O. Holt, manager, said 60 cars of canned goods, marked for shipment, were tied up here. Much of the produce from the local cannery had been going to San Francisco during the tie-up in Portland, but Friday morning Mr. Holt received a wire from the Bay city ordering him to cease shipments there. With teamsters out on strike, the produce could not be moved after it reached the city, he was informed.

Operations at the cannery will be continued in order to take care of ripening produce, however, Holt declared.

Operations will be halted only in the event rail shipments of sugar, needed here for the pear season, fail to materialize. The pear season starts about the middle of August and if sugar cannot be obtained by that time, the cannery will be unable to handle the pears, Holt announced.

General fruit consignments are arriving here, fruit concerns said Friday, though shipments are uncertain.

Flour shipments are being held up and unless strike conditions change shortly, a flour shortage is feared here, wholesale grocers stated Friday. There are considerable quantities of flour here at present, but no new shipments are being received now.
