

Heilig To Present "Where Sinners Meet"; Colonial Has "King of Jungle"

McDonald Will Bring Bernie In "Shoot The Works", "Dr. Monica"

Years of married life in one laugh-packed lesson is what the Heilig theater patrons will get when "Where Sinners Meet" comes to its screen today. The picture is a production of the Heilig stage play, "The Dover Road," and it is a story of a man and a woman who are married and live together for years, but who are not really married. THIS WEEK'S BILLS

Heilig—Sunday only, "King of Jungle," with Buster Crabbe; Monday to Saturday, "Flying to Rio," with Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers.
McDonald—Sunday to Wednesday, "Shoot the Works," with Ben Bernie, plus "Dr. Monica," with Kay Francis, Monday to Saturday, "The Flying Dutchman," with Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers.
Colonial—Sunday to Tuesday, "The King of Jungle," with Buster Crabbe; Wednesday to Saturday, "The Flying Dutchman," with Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers.
State—Sunday to Tuesday, "The King of Jungle," with Buster Crabbe; Wednesday to Saturday, "The Flying Dutchman," with Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers.

convention. Against this background of friends, enemies, acquaintances, the love story of Winters, the town milliner, and Shadwell, son of the wealthy, unfolds and becomes a scandal and later a front page item. John Boles plays the lead role and Helen Winton is the other member of the central triangle.

McDonald, of musical fame, features Paramount's "Shoot the Works," revealed that his own has not been unlike the part in this, his first motion picture. "Shoot the Works" was directed by Ben Hecht and Gene Markey, and features Jack Oakie, Billie Burke, and Arline Judge. The picture is a story of a man and a woman who are married and live together for years, but who are not really married.

chill, Benita Hume, Onslow Stevens, June Clyde, Barry Norton, Natalie Moorhead, Walter Catlett and Betty Blythe. The story covers the exciting period between the entrance of America into the World war and the cataclysmic stock market crash of November, 1929. Against this panorama of American life is portrayed a vitally poignant love story which has never been equalled for sheer emotional quality on the screen. Even Stahl's own "Back Street" is unimportant beside the romance of Margaret Sullivan playing a naive, adorable Southern belle and John Boles, the handsome thoughtless officer, Miss Sullivan, making her movie debut straight from "Dinner at 8" on Broadway, will also make screen history by her brilliant performance. You will see a new star born here.

The Colonial presents, for the last time Sunday, the Buster Crabbe thriller picture, "King of the Jungle." It's another in the Tarzan series, and though we haven't seen it, we understand it's really exciting entertainment. Crabbe certainly has the physique to represent Tarzan, while his acting ability, as demonstrated in recent films, is adequate. We suggest you drop in, and take the kids. Next Thursday, though, comes the picture, "Manager Vern Godfrey is bringing back the greatest of musical comedies, "Flying Down to Rio," with Fred Astaire, Gene Raymond, Dolores Del Rio, and Ginger Rogers. A superb plot, marvelous music, and well acting. Grand songs, too, such as "Carolina," and "Orchids in the Moonlight." Don't miss this, even if you've seen it before. It'll be the fourth time for us.

Rex has an amusing double bill for today. "It's 'Smarty,'" with Joan Blondell, and "The Avenger," with Ralph Forbes. Don't know a thing about the latter, but the first is plenty smooth entertainment. Warren William is co-starring with Miss Blondell in "Smarty," and Edward Everett Horton has an important supporting role. Story of a wise-cracking gal, Joan, married to Warren. Her constant stream of chatter gets on his nerves, and he socks her. Promptly she divorces him, marries sympathetic Edward Everett, who feels she has been abused. Before long though, her never-ceasing flow of conversation gets on his nerves, and he lays one on the button. Joan then returns to Warren, and it all is happy again. The plot is complicated by several other gals, and it crackles with snappy remarks. A hilarious picture, in the manner of "Goodbye Again."

McDonald Dancing School Successful

The success of the first dancing school started at the McDonald theatre has prompted James O'Connell to continue the dancing school each and every Saturday into the fall season. He also announced that classes would be held on Wednesday morning of each week starting July 25.

Charles Bilderback of the Jean Hardest school of dancing is in charge of the school and he was engaged at considerable expense and mothers are urged to bring or send their children to the theatre this Wednesday to meet Mr. Bilderback and gather the details of the novel dancing school.

A charge of 25 cents is made per student and this entitles the youngsters to participate in the instruction and admits them to the regular McDonald screen show. The age limit has been set at 16 years and students may start as young as three years of age.

CONFESSES MURDER
SEATTLE, July 21.—(U.P.)—First degree murder charges probably will be filed against J. H. Hendricks following his confession that he killed Mrs. Ruby Barton, deaf mute, with a flatiron in a fit of anger. The 40-year-old Tacoma carpenter forced his victim to marry him July 7 although she was legally wed to another man.

Great Britain, Canada, France, South Africa, Holland and the Philippines combined imported 25,125 slot machines from this country in 1933.

Good Will Offer Pageant Program

Patrons of the McDonald theatre Thursday night will have an opportunity of witnessing a specially prepared Oregon Trail pageant musical program which will be presented by Merle Good and his McDonald theatre orchestra. One of the outstanding features of the entertainment program will be the addition of Pacific coast tap dancer and eccentric comedian. The boys in the band have an assortment of old time novelty numbers which they will present along with the usual comedy blackout skits.

Truman Hutton has arranged a new violin solo for his contribution and he announced today that he would present for the first time on any stage a surprise saxophone trio combination.

The Merle Good combination will appear only on Thursday night at 9 o'clock and will support the feature pictures "The Old Fashioned Way" and "She Was a Lady."

W. C. Fields and "She Was a Lady," featuring Helen Twelvetrees and Donald Woods. James O'Connell, McDonald manager, stated that prices would remain as usual.

GERARD CAUTIOUS
NEW YORK, July 21.—(U.P.)—James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, called for Europe today on the Italian liner, Rex, announcing that he would carefully avoid Germany "because I don't want to get bumped off." Gerard has been one of the Hitler regime's severest critics.

A new synthetic oil or lubricant, especially adapted for airplane and other motors, has been discovered in old-fashioned paraffin.

Whisker Judging Party Scheduled Saturday Evening

Bushwhackers from Eugene and all surrounding cities will gather Saturday night at eight o'clock at the corner of Eighth and Willamette for the last of the weekly contests, and a gay time, with lots of prizes, is promised for all present.

Eugene whisker growers will have some keen competition on the part of out-of-town competitors. It is rumored, and a large delegation from several cities will be on hand. A separate prize classification has also been provided for visitors, it is announced.

Prizes will be offered for the best gray beards, best full beards and best trimmed beards. Out of town competitors will be judged and prizes awarded in these same classifications. This will be the final meeting before the grand judging, set for next Wednesday night. Prizes for both events will be valuable this time, it is announced.
