

DR. BOYER GIVES TALKS FOR LIONS CLUB WEDNESDAY

A summary of the recent higher education conference held on the University of Oregon campus and comments on ideals of higher education were presented to the Eugene Lions club at its meeting Wednesday noon by Dr. C. V. Boyer, president of the university.

The idea back of the conference was to bring certain men of reputation in economics, the social field and those connected with the new deal and have them present the changes and new outlooks and connect such with the ideals and tendencies in education, Dr. Boyer said in speaking of the meeting in general.

Quoting Dr. Norman F. Coleman of Reed college, Dr. Boyer said there are three social trends to observe—one towards greater leisure; another towards the weakening or cessation of personal profit motive in business; a third, the development of the cooperative scheme in agriculture and industry.

To consider along with these tendencies are the questions of what is higher education doing, and what does higher education need to do? Education, he pointed out, has responsibilities to the social scheme, the adult and the student.

With such a conference, higher education acquires a new outlook. It is customary to think of higher education in terms of institutions and curricula, but Dr. Boyer said the curricula being considered in two phases, one for absorbing the accumulated knowledge of the past, the other, research for the continuation of knowledge.

Other tendencies have come in, however. And now there is the relationship to the social scheme or the commonwealth. At present, the speaker pointed out, there is a distinct tendency to emphasize the individual, not the courses. There is the idea to adapt education to the needs of the individual. There is the responsibility to develop all individuals along the lines that best complete their personalities, that best develop their abilities as to make them of the greatest service to themselves and to the community.

On the social side, he continued, there is the tendency to give that work which will imbue all with social ideas, that will give them social attitudes. On the natural science side, there is the plan, not that all should become scientists, but that they acquire an attitude for science and know what is going on in the science field.

More and more these tendencies of education are called for in the movement for adult education, because the trend towards more leisure time calls for more education for adults. Courses must be worked out to fit the wants and needs of all persons and all sides must be considered. As an example, Dr. Boyer spoke of labor people, who want more social science, say along the lines of economics and distribution, as well as something in literature and the arts to use their leisure time.

Referring to the forums on social planning during the conference, Dr. Boyer said there was the point that either democracy has to function through economic planning, or there will be a breakdown and an economy system will be forced upon us; and the question, can democracy preserve itself through cooperative planning? Higher education enters into the problem by informing the young people of the situation and organizing the curricula in such a way that they meet these problems.

Higher education no longer can be considered as an institution, because it has become the unit which fits in with the new scheme and makes each individual happier and of greater service to himself and community, the speaker pointed out.

Higher education has not lost its old need but it must now extend its activities. A new conception of higher education must be the development, continuous throughout a man's life, to develop his capacities to the fullest and to make him of the greatest service to self and community, he added.

Percy W. Brown introduced the speaker, Miss Katherine Mishler, played piano solos for the special music. The club gave a special "toast" to honor Miss Cora Moore, club pianist who directed the stinging in the recent Oregon Trail. Wayne Akers led club singing. James Rodman was announced as a new member, a transfer from the Omaha, Neb., club. Roy E. Morse will be in charge for next week's program.

Walterville House Destroyed by Fire
WALTERVILLE, Aug. 1.—(Special)—The residence of Marvin Drury, one-half mile east of the Walterville power plant, was destroyed by fire starting about 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The cause was not determined.

Loss was estimated at between four and five thousand dollars as the house, woodshed, garage, car and all household contents were consumed by the flames.

Two near-by barns full of hay and another house were endangered by the fire, but the wind died down and the fire did not spread.

tempt of Long to usurp the city police power.
Almost two score militiamen held the city registration voting office which they stormed Monday night. Machine guns looked from the windows across a narrow street toward city hall.

Governor O. K. Allen's proclamation of partial martial law, applying to the city hall area, continued in effect.
Ward and precinct leaders of both factions muttered. Ordinary citizens stared wide-eyed at the fully armed state soldiers in the voting office. Some stopped to laugh and joke with the guardsmen.

Mayor Walmaley and Senator Long lambasted each other over the radio last night.
The whole affair pointed to the coming congressional primary in September, in which Walmaley and Long are supporting rival candidates.

Along with that issue was Long's "vice and corruption" in the city, which Walmaley interpreted as a ruse for Long to seize control of the New Orleans administration.
The main point at issue today revolved about the new police board authorized at the recent Long-controlled legislative session to take the police power away from Mayor Walmaley.

The board, composed of representatives selected by various civic organizations, was scheduled to assume control at noon today, but the city administration obtained a court order yesterday temporarily restraining it from taking authority pending a hearing Monday.

Mayor Walmaley armed his policemen and stationed them at headquarters with instructions to resist any attempt to dislodge them.
Senator Long and Governor Allen were non-communicative about the presence of the 500 national guardsmen at the barracks. Infantry, artillery and cavalry troops were ready for action.

NO FEDERAL TROOPS WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Acting Secretary of War Woodring has informed a representative of Mayor O. T. Semmes Walmaley of New Orleans that the war department will take no action in the controversy between the Walmaley and Senator Huey Long factions in Louisiana.

The acting secretary informed the Walmaley representative that the department sought to maintain neutrality in any political dispute and that since Governor Allen was legally authorized to call the national guard to duty, he saw no reason why the department should become involved in any way.

headquarters a few hours after scores of strikers at their seat of strategy, an old garage building, had been dispersed, five of their leaders arrested, and records and papers placed under guard.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Men in khaki with guns on wheels seized headquarters of striking truck drivers today, arrested the ring leaders, and smashed before it got started, an organized movement to stop all truck transportation in defiance of military law.

With the national guard in full control and occupants of the building dispersed, Adjutant General E. A. Walsh mapped a plan of action designed to break up any other unauthorized meetings of strikers.
"The roundup of these officials," said General Walsh, "was started because they defied orders of military rule by holding a meeting at the parade grounds last night without a permit. Effective immediately, any picket cruising the city in automobiles will be arrested."

Wounded Undisturbed
Among those marched off to the fair grounds for incarceration in the stockade there, where Vincent Dunne and Mose Bork, two of the strike leaders.

All were ejected from the headquarters except a doctor, two nurses, and a few strikers still ailing from wounds suffered in the outbreak of July 20 in which 68 persons were hurt, most of them shot by police guns.

The four field machine guns drawn up before the entrance, rolled back to the armory, the troops absented their tommy guns and gas guns and all except the few men left as sentinels, hiked back to the armory within two hours after they had struck in the early dawn to meet no resistance.

Officers formed their men in a solid line completely around the square block in which strikers congregated in a former garage.
Marksmen alert for belligerent moves by those inside the place, took up posts in doorways of a tenement type flat across the street. Others roamed occupants out of bed and peered through windows, automatic rifles ready.

Troops hemmed the block and several squads, in marching formation, were drawn up in front of the entrance to the headquarters, machine guns ready to be swung into action.
A few early risers, on their way to work, stopped to watch from nearby corners, occupants of the building facing the headquarters peeped through curtained windows as Col. Elmer McDevitt, provost marshal, went inside to arrest the ring leaders. He found but two, however, and search was started for the remaining 8 or 10.

Pickets Sent Home
Pickets who had been instructed to report at headquarters at that hour for instructions in tying up the city's commercial truck transportation, were refused admittance and sent home by the troops.

While the approximately 1,000 guards carried out their orders in the raid, a like number of armed troops, called in from the fair grounds where they have been billeted since military rule was declared by Governor Floyd R. Olson a week ago today, awaited developments at the armory. They were not needed, however.

General Walsh later amplified his terse statement, saying:
"Local No. 574 saw fit to issue a defy in the public press in which was stated it would resume unrestricted picketing and therefore there will be no more cars operated from so-called strike headquarters.
"We have issued an order there will be no interference with any person or vehicle engaged in business or any lawful pursuit and anyone violating that must suffer the consequences. Trucks operating must still have a military permit.
"Our mission is to preserve law and order. We wish no violence; we do not wish to injure or harm anyone and if orders are obeyed there will be no difficulty." Walsh also divulged an unidentified person called him by telephone last night, warning him "get your troops off the street or we'll fight 'em."

WEDNESDAY PROGRAMS

STATE—"Double bill," "George White's Scandals," with Alice Faye, plus "King of the Arena," with Ken Maynard. Ends Saturday.
HEILIG—"Double bill," "Blind Date," with Ann Southern, plus "Journal of a Crime," with Ruth Chatterton. Ends Thursday.

Last day for "Handy Andy" at the McDonald. It's a typical Rogers picture, with Will contributing his usual inimitable comedy characterization, and getting excellent support from his cast. Story of a drug store man who retires, tries to learn to play. Up-roariously funny in spots.

Heilig has what amounts to a "triple bill" today. In addition to the regular features of "Blind Date," starring Ann Southern, and Ruth Chatterton's "Journal of a Crime," Pop Crabb, just in from a tour with the Arisona Wranglers, has booked in the Carnera-Baer fight pictures.

Fast, funny, and amusing is "Geo. White's Scandals," which opens at the State today. All emphasis is on comedy and song, with little plot content. Alice Faye is the best thing in the show, though Rudy Vallee has several good numbers. But you ain't seen nothin' till you see and hear Alice singing "Oh! You Nasty Man!" On the same bill is Ken Maynard in "King of the Arena."

If the plan is worked out for next summer, the university will also invite a number of graduates of other colleges and universities who have adopted the state of Oregon, Dr. Boyer says. These citizens would have an opportunity not only to know Oregon educational facilities better, but would meet citizens from all parts of the state.

Dr. Boyer plans to appoint a committee to study the plan during the coming months, and to work out details if the proposal arouses the interest of the alumni.

highway, via Jewel, Vernonia and Forest Grove. This will be the first section of the highway to be opened to the public. When finally completed the route between Portland and the north coast beaches will be shortened by 40 to 50 miles.

The money for the Wilson River road will be for grading 1.1 miles between Deadman's creek and Smith creek. The commission also allocated $28,000 on the Neahkahnie mountain in Tillamook county of $28,000.

In announcing the allocation of these funds to the two coast routes, the commission in a statement declared:
"Considerable study was given to the request of the people of the city of Tillamook and the county court of Tillamook for the building of the highway via Wilson creek to serve as a logging road for the salvaging of the burned timber between Mills bridge and Falls creek, a distance of seven miles, with prospective later extension to McNamers camp. The initial project would cost $250,000, the next extension $750,000. The county court offered to construct a temporary road decreasing the estimate of the initial project to $120,000."

"The highway commission has never constructed logging roads or any road for special use for private parties, having held to the broad principle that highways should be constructed for the motorist and the general public. After giving this request due consideration, the commission decided to adhere to that policy, and to confine the work in Tillamook county to a nominal expenditure of the Wilson river project for relief employment to the amount of $42,000, and on Neahkahnie mountain, $28,000.

In the opinion of the commission the Wolf Creek highway is more important to the people of Portland and to the entire state of Oregon, than the Wilson River road.
"In the view of the commission, the construction of the Wolf Creek highway through its entire length should have priority over all laterals, including the Wilson River highway. This policy will not delay the final completion of the Wilson River highway, but will accelerate completion of the Wolf Creek highway. The contrary policy would delay indefinitely the completion of both roads."

All the federal money made available under the congressional act, of which Oregon's share is $3,100,000, must be expended under specific directions. The law required 50 per cent be applied to projects on the federal aid highway system outside the corporate limits of municipalities; 25 per cent on projects on the extension of the federal aid system into and through municipalities, and 25 per cent on secondary or feeder roads.

The projects include:
Pacific highway—0.6 mile pavement widening on Stevens street in Roseburg, $30,000; 0.31 mile pavement widening in Gold Hill $10,000; and 1.15 miles resurfacing of Van Buren st.—High St. in Eugene $16,000.

Willamette—2.86 miles grading, Klammath Co. Line Gold Lake trail $85,000; 1.3 mile grading, Odell Lake-Lane county line, $52,000.
Fox Hollow—1.5 miles grading and surfacing, south of Eugene, $15,000.
Territorial road—4.0 miles bituminous macadam, Elmira section, $21,000.

Delegations were present from the Puget Sound association, the Redwood Empire group in California, and from the national fur growers' group in Denver. Speakers from several sections were on the program.

A picnic lunch was served in Skinner Butte park, morning and afternoon sessions being held also.

The revenue received not only covered the expenses of the pageant, which was presented each night, but all expenses of the pioneer and industrial parade, entertainment of visiting princesses, administration and advertising.

The financial success is due to the cooperation of those in charge of the various events, Mr. Rosson declared. At the start a conservative estimate was made of receipts, and budgets were made up on this basis. Rigid economy was then the watchword for everyone, Rosson said, and often hard work on the part of staff members took the place of spending cash when supplies were needed.

A statement thanking staff members, participants and the citizens of Eugene was issued by Rosson just before he left. "The entire city cooperated to the fullest to make the Oregon Trail a success in every way, and we can now all share the pride that this success brings," he said.

Persistent rumors that von Hindenburg already was dead—with the announcement withheld until the Nazis deem the time more opportune—were promptly denied by responsible government officials in Berlin.

Hitler Escort Large
Chancellor Hitler came here by airplane from Berlin today to confer with the sick president. Hitler was in the president's home slightly more than one and a quarter hours.
Previous to his visit, at 12:20 p. m. the physicians announced:
"Condition as compared to this morning is unchanged. Full consciousness remains. Toward noon the patient took light nourishment."

It was shortly afterward that Hitler and an entourage arrived by automobile from the airport at Marlenburg. The party composed an entourage of nine automobiles, each carrying seven men. Most of them were members of the schutz staff—the black shirted special guard which Hitler organized.

Others in the party included Otto Meisner, secretary of the president, Wilhelm Brueckner, adjutant to the chancellor Ernst Hanfstaeng, confidant of Hitler, and Heinrich Hoffmann, Hitler's photographer and companion on flying visits.
Hitler remained at von Hindenburg's home slightly more than one and a quarter hours, then, accompanied by his staff, left by automobile.

Crowds Kept Away
Meisner, who is considered the closest to von Hindenburg, remained at Neudeck.
Practically the entire population of Freystadt, five miles away, turned out to see Chancellor Hitler.
The bulletins regarding the president's condition were not given out to Freystadt and the populace there was plainly worried.

A tense quiet prevailed at Neudeck. Storm troopers and secret police did not permit crowds to gather.
The curious were allowed to pass the estate but were not permitted to loiter, even momentarily. Photographers were refused permission to take pictures.
At Freystadt, cab drivers were warned they could not convey newspapermen to Neudeck. Hotel facilities were taxed by the influx of visitors, including reporters.
