

COMMUNITY NEEDS TO GOVERN PLANS FOR SCHOOL WORK

The range of classes to be offered this coming year under the Federal Emergency Education project may be as wide as the demand in any community, but two factors must govern the choice of these courses, emergency education supervisors, in session here, were told today by a group of experts. The supervisors and educational officials of Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho are meeting here for an eight day institute which will continue until Thursday.

The two governing factors are, first—an interested class of 10 or more adults, all of whom can benefit by the class, must be at hand. Second—a competent instructor, one who needs employment, must be found. The instructor need not be a professional teacher, but must have a good knowledge of the subject and ability to take charge of the class.

Basic courses in social and economic problems were outlined by Dr. Victor P. Morris, professor of economics at the university here. An awakened interest in problems of the day was described by Dr. Morris, who pointed out that citizens could appreciate present conditions much more readily if they have a background of the elements of economics and social science.

Organization of classes in general basic knowledge was described by Dr. Dan E. Clark, assistant director of the general extension division of the state system of higher education. Classes should be organized according to the ability and interests of the students, he pointed out, and methods of sectioning according to ability and previous education may be an aid to efficient teaching.

A great benefit to communities, states and country as a whole can come from courses in health and recreation. It was pointed out by Dr. John F. Bovard, dean of the school of physical education of the university. Courses may be organized not only for imparting basic knowledge of health, but for persons who later may find themselves in the positions of leaders in communities, and as such may have the opportunity of organizing classes themselves. Dr. Bovard pointed out. Any work done in the health field is certain to reward the individual with better health and a better outlook on life, and make the community a better and more cheerful place to live in as a result.

The technical discussions on adult education will continue today and tomorrow.

and a number of them, foreigners, who could not read nor write English were enabled to obtain their citizenship papers.

Parents Take Big Part

Marked interest was shown in classes in parent education, which in 55 centers had an enrollment of 1150 individuals. Courses included health, child psychology, home management, and feeding and clothing the family. Parent Teacher organizations cooperated in making this project so successful, it is stated.

Emergency nursery schools provided employment not only for teachers, but for nurses, carpenters and other workers who were called on to aid in this project. Children aged two to five were taken from homes made miserable by economic circumstances, cared for from 9 a. m. until 3:30 in the afternoon, given a warm meal at noon, trained in health habits, and often entirely cured of behavior habits such as tantrums and bullying.

Summarizing the benefits from the program the report states: "The improved individual and community morale and the rehabilitation outcomes were among its best features. Other results were employment of teachers, occupational improvement, wise use of leisure time, personal improvement, training for citizenship, and reclaiming of physically disabled persons. The need for adult education in Oregon has been demonstrated by the scope and magnitude of the results."

Fry the chopped onion lightly in butter, add the tomato pulp, 1/4 cup of water, meat, mace and salt and pepper to taste. Let simmer slowly 5 minutes, remove from the fire, stir in the egg and enough cracker or bread crumbs to absorb extra moisture. Stuff tomatoes with this mixture.

Add grated cheese and paprika to your favorite pastry recipe (using 2 cups of flour). Roll out pastry to 1/4 inch in thickness. Stamp it into large rounds, place a stuffed tomato in the center of each round, wet the edges of the pastry, draw up over the tomatoes, press the edges together and crimp them with the fingers. Brush each over with beaten egg and bake in a hot oven. Crispy, good and flavorful.—Mrs. Waldemar Christensen, Motor Route 2, Eugene.

Stuffed Peppers

6 green peppers
1 onion finely chopped
2 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons chopped mushrooms
4 tablespoons lean raw ham
1-3 cup brown sauce
3 tablespoons bread crumbs
Salt and pepper

Cut a slice from stem end of pepper, remove seeds and parboil pepper five minutes. Cook onion in butter 3 minutes, add mushrooms and finely chopped ham and cool 1 minute, then add brown sauce and bread crumbs; cool mixture, sprinkle peppers with salt, fill with cooked mixture, cover each pepper with buttered bread crumbs and bake 20 to 25 minutes in 375 deg. oven.—L. E. McNeese, 1005 7th Ave. West, Eugene.

Peppers With Chestnuts

Very different. Cut tops from 4 large peppers, scoop out seeds. Cover with boiling water and cook about 10 minutes. Have chestnuts ready as follows: Skin 1/2 lb. blanch in hot water until brown skin loosens. Drop in boiling water, and cook tender. Mash through sieve. Add 1 chopped onion, 1 tablespoon parsley chopped, 2 sour cream or melted butter and season with salt and pepper. Remove peppers from fire, drain and stuff. Place in dish, cover bottom with water, and bake 3-4 hour, until tender.—Mrs. A. L. Kilman, Rte. 2, Eugene.

Jiggs Stuffed Cabbage

1 head of cabbage
1 cup cooked rice
3/4 lb. hamburger
1 small onion finely chopped.
3 tbsps. catsup
1 medium sized pepper finely chopped
1 egg.

Method—Separate the leaves of the cabbage without breaking them. This can be done easily by cutting out the heart first, put these leaves in boiling water until they are tender enough to roll.

Mix the rest of the ingredients in the order given. Put a rounding tablap of this mixture in each cabbage leaf, wrap the leaf around and tie securely with cord string. Put these rolls in a roaster, add just enough boiling water to keep from burning, about one cup, and bake in a moderate oven one hour.

Remove the stuffed rolls to a platter, clip the string and remove it. This liquid left in the roaster makes a good gravy flavored with Worcestershire sauce and poured over stuffed rolls if desired.—Mrs. L. G. McCall, 839 W. 3rd, Eugene.

Man Freed Here Held at Portland

James Clifford, who obtained $40 from a local business man about a month ago for a fake diamond after telling a hard luck story about being short in his accounts as a railroad ticket agent and proceeded to throw a series of fits when officers questioned him about his dealings, was arrested Saturday in Portland after trying the same sort of game.

According to reports from Portland, Clifford went to the Bank of California and tried to borrow $60 to cover a shortage in his accounts as collector for the Portland Electric Power company. He was told to get some security and returned later with a couple cheap watches. Police were called and Clifford placed under arrest.

Clifford was turned loose here when his victim declined to prosecute after getting his money back. Clifford had several watches on him while here.

made sick by fumes from his kerosene stove, leaving him feeble.

He ran the stove as little as possible, because of the danger of fumes, causing him to suffer from cold. It was also believed he was unable to give proper attention to his diet.

Admiral Byrd said temperatures had reached as low as 80 degrees below zero, a record for the Antarctic.

(It was assumed the tractor party would rest for several days, possibly longer, before undertaking the arduous return journey.)

Dr. Poulter reported there was no sign of scurvy and said "I am sure the admiral will recuperate quickly. We will release him of many of his duties."

The tractor party, composed of Dr. Poulter, Amory H. Waite, Jr., radio operator, and E. J. (Pete) Demas, mechanic, were forced to "burze" the tractor through darkness over the icy barriers to the Bolling observation base. They were near exhaustion when they arrived.

"Some express disappointment at the number seen. Good results are obtained by observing certain rules. Observe shortly before daybreak and in a locality where city lights do not interfere. Use a reclining seat so tilted as to allow an easy view from the zenith to the horizon. Keep the eyes constantly on the sky as each meteor lasts only a fraction of a second. Watch for at least an hour in order to catch several of the periods of activity."

through the regular operations of the agriculture adjustment act and he was confident of protection for consumers.

Describing the drought as "the worst in this country" the secretary told reporters "there is plenty of food to go around if we use common sense."

He emphasized that the calamity does not upset the production adjustment program.

Acreage control is to be considered but he said it was too early to decide on amounts for next year.

He said an advance in prices as the result of diminishing supply was inevitable but he gave assurance the administration was watching against profiteering and had adequate power to cope with any such activities.

It was indicated the president soon would make a general statement of policy on the drought and agricultural situation.
