

HAUPTMANN WILL FACE MENTALITY TEST WEDNESDAY

He has appeared in a number of court cases.

Hauptmann Composed
Hauptmann was "more composed" today than at any time since he entered the Bronx county jail, where he is held in default of $100,000 bail. Sheriff John J. Hanley reported today.

The sheriff said the prisoner spent a restless night and this morning appeared to enjoy his breakfast of oatmeal, jelly, bread and coffee.

The prisoner's uncommunicative manner is being given free rein at the jail, where his guards speak to him only in cases of necessity and then, as briefly as possible. This is being done in accordance with orders from the sheriff. Two guards are kept outside his cell at all times, the guard having been doubled since Hauptmann stole a metal spoon from his breakfast tray last week, broke it into four pieces, fashioned a book with one and a cutting instrument with another and secreted all four in the washbowl drain and toilet bowl in his cell.

Hauptmann is permitted two exercise periods daily, at 11 a. m., and 3 p. m., each for 15 minutes and he is allowed to walk back and forth on the catwalk in front of his cell.

DEPOSITS REPORTED

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—District Attorney Samuel J. Foley said today that Bruno Richard Hauptmann, indicted for extortion in the Lindbergh kidnap case, deposited or exchanged at least $1,850 in gold coin or gold certificates on Sept. 13, 1933.

None of this money, he said, has been identified as Lindbergh ransom money.

Two deposits were made by Hauptmann on that date at the Central Savings bank, where he had an account, Foley said. One was $750 in gold certificates, and the other was either $500 or $600 in gold coin.

On the same date he presented at the Federal Reserve Bank for exchange, in accordance with the order to turn in gold certificates, three bundles of gold notes, Foley said. One was for $40, one for $170 and the third for $370.

Foley disclosed the deposits and exchange today when he was asked to explain his statement during the morning hearing, or "one" assumed to be his. This comment was in connection with his announcement that a deposit of currency later found to be part of the Lindbergh ransom payment by a mysterious "J. J. Ruffner" still was under scrutiny.

JERSEY MAY ACT

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 1.—Governor A. Harry Moore today announced that New Jersey would probably move for the extradition of Bruno Richard Hauptmann before the German carpenter goes on trial in New York on an extortion indictment.

"We will probably move for extradition before Hauptmann goes on trial in New York, but much depends on our position," the governor said at a conference with newspapermen.

His reference to "our position" was generally interpreted to mean the evidence which the state's investigators may be able to develop.

New Jersey need prove only that Hauptmann—or any other suspect—had a share in the Lindbergh kidnaping in order to convict him of murder.

Not even a plea that the baby was accidentally dropped from the kidnapper's ladder and killed could prevent a death sentence. Prosecution need not be shown.

New Jersey's law is specific on this point. The crimes act, revised in 1908, defines murder in the first degree as any homicide "committed in perpetrating or attempting to perpetrate any burglary, under burglary it includes breaking and entering with intent to steal—and kidnapping is named as a form of stealing.

Likewise, it is common law that all who are present, abet or aid in a felony are principals and must suffer the full consequences.

but it was expected several of these would submit payments during today, the last day for such reports to the state treasurer. Three counties sent in their shares today, as follows: Baker $14,622; Linn, $24,147; and Hood River $7,172.

OREGON CITY, Oct. 1.

Charles Boldy, 43, a farmer, was fatally injured near Willamette late Saturday when his automobile was struck by another car. Police said a witness, Henry Zielski, told them that the other driver, unidentified, crowded the Boldy car from the highway.

PENDELTON, Ore., Oct. 1.

One thousand acres of new land at $15 an acre on the Stanfield irrigation district is ready for immediate settlement. The $100,000 spent on construction work by the federal bureau of reclamation, is responsible.

SALEM, Oct. 1.

The condition of Fred Davenport, 31, of Salem, who received a broken neck in an automobile accident two miles east of here Sunday, was reported by hospital attendants today as being unchanged, though serious.

Clarence Wolfe, who suffered a fractured skull when the car crashed into the railing of a bridge was reported as improved over his condition yesterday.

NEWPORT, Oct. 1.

Gasped by carbon monoxide from his automobile engine, Edwin Tyler, 25, of Portland, died Sunday at Lincoln Beach while trying to repair a broken muffler. He had left the engine of the car running. He was alone.

GENERAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.

President Roosevelt today called Secretaries Hull and Morgenthau to the White House for a conference on the recently received note from China protesting against the American silver purchase program. The note has not been made public, but it is understood to assert the effort to raise world prices of the metal was having a detrimental effect on China's plans for extending her export market.

HARRISBURG, Ill., Oct. 1.

A twenty-four year old United States worker, Norman Pavender, was awarded by a state jury today against a mob which attempted to lynch him for the killing of Henry Nowicki, 30, son of a banker of the Progressives.

Norman Pavender was hustled out of the county by deputy sheriffs, supposedly to the jail at Bruton, Ill. Sheriff Eugene Chelmer said only that he was held in a "good, safe place."

South Americans Visit in Eugene

Roberto Oliveira Castro and Guillermo Weinschenk of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, have been here the past two days visiting T. O. Russell, Mr. Russell knew them when he was heading an engineering project in Brazil a few years back.

The two visitors are touring the United States by automobile, studying the citrus fruit culture and industrial system of this country. They leave for the east from here, Mr. Castro will return to South America soon while Mr. Weinschenk goes to Europe.

Joins Staff of Appliance Firm

George Rutter, of the Eugene Home Appliance Co., announced Monday the appointment of O. C. Rawlings as electric range specialist. Mr. Rawlings is thoroughly experienced with the operation and efficient handling of electric ovens, and Eugene women are invited to consult him on any of their range problems, Mr. Rutter said.

Mr. Rawlings was with the California-Oregon Power company for several years before joining the staff of the Eugene Home Appliance Co.

THREE KIWANIAN PUT ON PROGRAM FOR CLUB MEETING

Three members of the Eugene Kiwanis club gave talks for the program at the weekly luncheon of the group Monday noon at the Osburn hotel.

The speakers were C. L. Kelly, who discussed "The Business Man's Responsibility to Youth," Frank N. McAlister who talked on "The Banks Are Bulging With Money—What to Do About It," and Charles G. Howard, who had for his topic, "Is the Eugene Kiwanis Club a Knife and Fork Club?"

"Just why should the business man be interested in education, concentration and the development of self-reliance in youth? The answer is simple," Mr. Kelly replied and listed the following reasons:

"There must be capable employees. A qualified worker should know a few things at least, he should be more or less resourceful and he should be self-respecting and dependable. Slaves and servants may be dependable, but they usually do not possess the other attributes.

"Secondly, slaves and servants do not possess much purchasing power. Business men—and perhaps professional men, too—create a population with ability to purchase goods and services. If not, then who is to buy the shoes, ride on the steel rail, live in good homes, eat good food, wear good clothes, and so on? Selfish! Of course, the board game business man is selfish. We assume a capitalistic and individualistic society. However, that selfishness contributes to the welfare of youth and the progress of civilization.

"Thirdly, it is easy to forecast the actions and reactions of the so-called low-class humans. The business man is, therefore, soon confronted with a static society. A static society is barren of practically all of the profit incentive underlying a dynamic one. In such a static society, business enthusiasm and drive dry up. The business man of the succeeding generation can have only what he inherits. There is a sameness, a weak pulse, an anemic condition, but the patient lives on and on, generation after generation.

"What is the business man's responsibility to youth? Surely it is to give that youth a chance to grow and develop that they have an opportunity to live, to exist, and that social conditions are conducive to the right of youth to growth and development." He was introduced by A. S. Berglund.

Mr. McAlister refuted the statement that the banks are bulging with money, and quoted figures to show that the number of banks has decreased and the amounts of capital and surplus decreased.

In 1929 in the state of Oregon, bank loans amounted to $175,000,000; in 1933, $28,000,000; savings were listed at $21,000,000 in 1929, at $79,000,000 in 1933; demand deposits at $209,000,000 in 1929; $110,000,000 in 1933. Mr. McAlister quoted.

In 1929 there were 234 banks in Oregon, now there are 119. Lane county had 10 banks in 1929, today, four, and the capital and surplus figures have decreased accordingly, he said. Hal Hauser introduced him.

Mr. Howard kept the club highly entertained as he brought in his points under humorous comment. "The Kiwanis club a knife and fork club? Yes, just so long as the words in the constitution remain mere words and until they become living realities, with the results which they signify. Until then, we are merely a compilation, back scratching, mutual admiration society," he told the club.

Discussing the objects of the club, he came to one on maintenance of adequate educational facilities, especially those making for character development. Yet pool room inspectors and boom dispensers get three times the salaries of teachers and preachers, he said, and we remain silent in the face of legislation that will close these features of the educational institutions in the state.

To foster international good will was another object discussed, yet the country provides millions more for a navy, keeps on sponsoring compulsory military training, and conditions citizens who are honest enough to try and make the Kellogg peace pact a part of living words, Mr. Howard said.

To encourage the daily living of the golden rule was mention for another objection, yet we go on worshipping competition in business, sabotage and laugh to scorn co-operative enterprises, he said. Orlando Hollis introduced the speaker.

DOCTOR'S NAME CORRECTED

The item regarding the trip of Eugene doctors to the state meeting at Corvallis the past week-end should have listed that of Dr. A. H. Ross instead of Dr. G. A. Ross. Dr. A. H. Ross is one of the state counselors and he and Dr. E. L. Zimmerman attended the meeting in the capacities of counselors.

cheese cut in small pieces and let stand over hot water until cheese has softened. Cool slightly and add salt, lemon juice, macaroni, celery, parsley and onion juice (extracted by grating onion). Cool, and when it begins to thicken, fold in mayonnaise and whipped cream. Turn into ring mold or loaf pan that has been rinsed in cold water and chill until firm. Unmold on lettuce and garnish with strips of red or green pepper or sliced tomatoes. Serve with mayonnaise.—Mrs. Atwood Foster, 1031 Jefferson, Cottage Grove.

Club House Salad

1 cup macaroni.
2 hard cooked eggs.
8 small sweet pickles.
1 small can pimento.
1/4 teaspoon salt.
Mayonnaise.

Cook macaroni in boiling water, salted, until tender. Stand in cold water until cold, drain thoroughly. Cut one egg, sweet pickles and pimentos into cubes, mix thoroughly with mayonnaise. Serve with slices of egg and ripe olives on top with dash of paprika.—Mrs. Nellie Jordan, 827 D Street, Springfield.

Italian Spaghetti

4 tablespoons cooking oil in kettle.
4 med. onions sliced into hot oil.
3 or 4 garlic cloves cut fine (omit if desired).
2 large green manro peppers, sliced.
1 dried sweet Mexican pepper (soaked in water till soft, then ground).
2 cups diced celery.
1 can mushrooms (or 1 cup dried mushrooms, soaked).
1 large can tomato puree.
2 teaspoons chili powder.
1 teaspoon paprika.
Salt to taste.

Boil altogether 20 minutes. Then add meat balls size of egg; made of 1-3 lb. sausage, and 2-3 lb. hamburger. Cook slowly 40 minutes. Last add 1 can peas drained and cook 5 minutes longer. Serve this over the desired amount of unbroken spaghetti cooked in salt water. Drain well and mix into spaghetti 2-3 cup grated cheese while spaghetti is hot. Place spaghetti on large serving platter and pour this sauce over, garnish with 1-3 cup grated cheese and parsley. Serve with rye bread and butter or cheese on crackers and toasted. This is a delicious picnic dish and combine sauce and spaghetti together and turn into a heated thermos jug.—Mrs. Clyde O. Butler, Box 63, Cottage Grove.

STRIKE TRUCE STORY

like our industrial civilization" comes as organized labor moves into a campaign for a 30-hour industrial work week. Although Mr. Roosevelt feels that strikes in the recent months have not been of record breaking proportions, there is on record the judgment of General Hugh S. Johnson, resigning NRA administrator, that the country is menaced with the worst strike epidemic in its history.

The speech was complimentary in general with its emphasis on private profit and consideration of reorganization of NRA. But Mr. Roosevelt appeared to go out of his way last night to bait the bankers. He was reviewing British emergency recovery efforts, including abandonment of the gold standard.

"Did England hesitate," he continued, "to call in $10,000,000,000 of her war bonds bearing 5 per cent interest, to buy our bonds therefore bearing 3 1/2 per cent interest, thereby saving the British treasury $10,000,000 in interest alone. No!

"And let it be recorded that the British bankers hesitated."

Why Mr. Roosevelt wanted that fact recorded was not immediately evident today unless he sought to establish some contrast between the attitudes of British and American bankers toward emergency projects.

An industrial truce would go far next winter in checking mandatory 30-hour week legislation such as powerful congressional figures contemplate. The truce plan may be the first development of administration strategy to check the congressional labor bloc.

If that proves to be true, industry may be expected to support the truce plan as the best defense against so-called industrial legislation.

Francis J. Gorman, textile strike committee chief, in accepting the strike truce plan said acceptance was conditioned only "upon our right to organize freely."

Gorman said he considered the president's speech "a cutting rebuke" to employers in the textile industry "who thought they could break our union by resort to conflict."

EUGENE FIRMS LOW ON HIGHWAY BIDS FOR NEARBY JOBS

PORTLAND, Oct. 1.—The Oregon state highway commission today opened bids for road work to cost about $700,000, and heard its engineer report that the most economical short-cut from the John Day valley in central-eastern Oregon to Portland is by way of the Geheco, the Prineville-Madras and the Warm Springs cut-off highways.

The largest item on today's list was a bid of $145,725 for paving 3.8 miles of the Portland entrance of the west side Pacific highway, Jacobson & Jensen, Portland contractors, submitted this low bid.

Other big jobs to be passed on today included grading 2.84 miles of the Odell section of the Willamette highway, Dunn & Baker of Klamath Falls bidding low at $123,799; surfacing 17.28 miles of Pendleton-John Day highway between Long creek and the forest boundary, on which Wren and Greenough of Portland were low at $105,070.

Other bids opened included: Grading, surfacing 1.34 miles Spencer Butte-Fox Hollow secondary road, Lane county, $12,110, Earl McNeil, Eugene.

Widening Oak creek and Lake creek bridges on Pacific highway, Linn county, $8,116, Mountain States Construction Co., Eugene.

Construction maintenance building at Roseburg, $3933, Frank Neve, Monroe.

Troop 17, Boy Scouts, will meet Monday evening at 7:15 o'clock at the scout club room, it was announced Monday. The patrol will be re-organized and patrol leaders selected.

Union High School District Boundary Changes Are Sought

The Lane county boundary board next Monday will hold a hearing on a petition to detach five sections of land from the Lone Cedar school district and at a later meeting it is planned to ask that this land be annexed, according to L. C. Moffitt, high school superintendent.

A petition will also be presented to the board to release three sections of land on Wolf creek from the Loran union high district so it can be annexed to the Crow high district.

Two other petitions are on file, these calling for changes in grade districts. One is to take out part of LeBlou district, No. 25, to Spencer creek district, No. 22, affecting about 200 acres and one family, and the other is to transfer about a quarter of a section from Scharen district, No. 9, to Spencer Butte section, No. 104.

In asking dismissal of the oil case the department of justice recently gave notice it would not attempt to prosecute any producer of oil in Texas, criminally or otherwise, who had exceeded the allotted quota prior to September 25.

Warning Given Producers
It warned, however, that it intended to prosecute all producers under the national industrial recovery act who had turned out "hot" oil (that produced in excess of quotas) since September 25.

This will be done under an executive order recently issued by the president declaring that production in excess of state quotas would be deemed unfair trade practices and would constitute a violation of the petroleum code.

The order was issued to give effect to the provision thought to exist at the time Smith and the other producers were indicted on a charge of conspiracy to violate the petroleum code.

Federal District Judge Bryant, in the trial judge, and counsel for both the government and the oil industry were under the impression the previous executive order had prohibited production in excess of state quotas.

The department of justice only recently discovered the whole proceedings had been based on a misapprehension of the facts and that no such executive order was in existence. The discovery of the omission made it necessary for the government to dismiss its appeal.

Appointment of a budget committee for the city school board and final approval of the city budget will feature two budget meetings at city hall Monday night.

A committee to consider the school budget for the coming year will be named by the school board, but no action on the budget is scheduled to be taken, according to H. R. Good, school superintendent.

The city budget committee, which at its last meeting tentatively approved the budget, is expected to give official approval Monday night.

begin what may prove the court's most historic term. It had been in recess during the summer.

Only a brief session was held and the justices adjourned to the White House to pay their respects to President Roosevelt.

Next Monday, however, will be a busy day. The court then will announce whether it will review or dismiss scores of cases.

The survey is being conducted at a cost of $25,000 and in addition to the information now being obtained much of the data secured by the engineers on the canalization survey, which cost $52,000, can be used in the present project, Mr. Maxey pointed out.
