NEW MUSIC ROOM IS COMPLETED AT SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The world's finest music, ranging from complete operas to delightful, lighter compositions of the masters, is now available to all students of the University of Oregon, it is announced here by Dr. John J. Landsbury, dean of the school of music.

This has been made possible by the completion of a special music room in the music building, and the installation in it of a complete music set, the gift to the university by the Carnegie Corporation of New York. The set, which includes the latest Capeheart reproducing and repeating phonograph, 824 records, which include 240 musical scores, catalogues, 120 of the finest of books on music, and a filing cabinet, is valued at more than $2500.

Enjoyment of the best in music in this room can only be equalled by actually hearing the greatest of symphonies or artists, it is pointed out by Dean Landsbury. Here a student may sit at a table, with reference books about him if he chooses, and by a touch on the remote control buttons near his hand, enjoy the continuous reproduction of 24 records. These may all be placed on the reproducing machine at one time and then may be played successively on both sides, on one side, or any record may be repeated or rejected as the listener chooses.

While the intelligent apparatus does practically all of the work of changing selections, at the same time it reproduces the music in an amazingly lifelike way. The Capeheart, reproducing from 16 cycles to 13,824, gives true musical tones over the entire range. This includes the 16-cycle bass of the world's largest pipe organ to the topmost note of the piccolo.

The 824 records are all classified according to form and medium of performance and include songs, arias, choral music, opera, Georgian chants, masses, motets, madrigals, ballets, sonatas, figues, choral preludes, variations, miscellaneous pieces for piano solo, music for early keyboard instruments, chamber music for combinations of two, three, four, five, six and seven instruments, symphonies, symphonic poems, orchestral suits, concert overtures, and other orchestral works.

The earliest composition dates from ancient Greece, while many are from present day England, France, Germany, Spain, Italy and other countries. The records are assembled in 126 albums, each containing records of the same general character.

The books appeal not only to music lovers, but to those who appreciate literature and who have a love for good book-making. Among the 140 titles are "Oxford History of Music," the famed and well-known "Groves Dictionary," "My Life" by Richard Wagner, and volumes on Handel, Beethoven, Verdi, Brahms and many other noted composers.

The room in which the Capeheart and its accompanying records and volumes have been placed is in itself a place of delight. Dean Landsbury, with excellent taste, has equipped it with appropriate tables and study desks, piano, rugs and other furniture. An attractive fireplace lends cheer on wintry afternoons and evenings. The piano, a Steinway, may be used by students who wish to try over some of the selections they hear.

The room is in charge of Cyril Bozz, who will assist anyone interested in finding scores and in operating the apparatus. Although the room has been opened but a short time, it is already patronized from morning to night. It is attracting not only students of music, but many who come only to enjoy the delights that fine music bring, Dean Landsbury says.

Groups to take part are Irving, Santa Clara, Junction City, Franklin and Triangle granges. All granges are asked to bring doughnuts and coffee cream and each grange is to bring one member for a lecturer's program.

Irving grange met Saturday, Dec. 1. A basket dinner was served at noon with 30 present. The lecturer's program at 1:30 consisted of: piano solo, Velda Maxwell; talk on his trip to Hawaii by E. W. A display was given by members of things they had made or grown the past year.

A survey shows that 14,000,000 of the 16,500,000 inhabitants of Mexico are either full-blooded Indians or of part Indian blood.

Robins sing in their sleep, mackerel swim while asleep, elephants sleep standing up, and ants yawn and stretch like human beings on awakening, according to a French naturalist.

Wings of the Morning!
Good coffee—man's morning friend—warm and fragrant as her greeting.

A tip to coffee lovers. Whatever the method you use (Drip or Percolator), buy a coffee prepared for that method. It's important. Here's why. In a Drip Maker, boiling water drips only once through a coffee prepared to yield its flavor quickly. In a Percolator, water passes many times through a coffee prepared to yield its flavor slowly. No coffee should try to serve both methods. "A Jack of all trades is master of none." There are two Schilling Coffees—one for Drip—one for Percolator.
