TAMMANY MEETS DISCIPLINE.

THE times are as full of signs and portents as a beehive is full of bees, if you take the trouble to look for them, and one of the most noteworthy is the flurry recently caused by New York's City's attempt to get some lower rates on its electric light bills.

Mayor LaGuardia of New York felt that the utilities were gouging New York. So he went to Washington and got from President Roosevelt the promise that the federal government would loan the city money enough to build a municipal electric light plant.

By running this plant and selling electricity to taxpayers at a low rate, the mayor believes the city can force the utilities to cut their charges.

Now there is nothing especially new about this, so far. The PWA has been specifically authorized to make loans to cities for such purposes, and so far some 30 cities have started to buy or build power plants with Uncle Sam's money.

The catch in all this comes from the simple fact that New York is—well, it's New York; and it nourishes in its bosom an outfit known as Tammany Hall, which, as the toastmaster says, needs no introduction.

Heartily as the average citizen may approve of federal loans for municipal power plants—and it is fairly evident that majority sentiment does approve of it—there is apt to be a different reaction to the idea of putting a program like this out where Tammany can get its hands on it.

To be sure, Tammany is not in power just now. New York has its most honest and efficient city government in years, under LaGuardia. The LaGuardia government can be trusted to handle a proposition of this kind with intelligence and integrity.

But Tammany never stays dead. Sooner or later Tammany will put on a comeback; and the way in which Tammany would operate a $100,000,000 electric power plant is a thing to make the imagination reel.

Mention was made, a moment ago, of signs and portents. The particular sign and portent arising from this situation is the warning that the kind of city government provided by the typical political machine is both an over-expensive luxury and an actual source of danger in this modern era.

If government, local and federal, is to do more for its citizens in the future than ever before—and apparently it is—then it is absolutely essential that government be scrupulously honest and at least reasonably efficient.

All of which is just another way of saying that we can't hope to make this or any other new deal work unless we provide a permanent exile for municipal machines like Tammany Hall.

IN SUPPORT OF BUSINESS

THE coming year ought to be a good one for advertising—and, by that token, it ought to be a good one for business generally.

Donald R. Richberg, NRA chieftain, has indicated that the government will adopt no policy which would hamper advertising. Advertising costs will not be included in compilation of those basic prices on which the NRA framework rests.

If a business man can increase his profits by an energetic and intelligent advertising campaign, the spoils are fairly his.

It is a truism that advertising is the oil which lubricates the business machine. Mr. Richberg's position is an assurance that Uncle Sam will do nothing to cut off the lubrication.

The result should be good profits for business men wise enough to take advantage of their advertising opportunities.

Sidney Franklin, American fighter, sues a movie firm because one of its films referred to him as a bull thrower. And he wasn't even an insurance agent.

Ever since new methods of scientific crime detection were adopted, shyster lawyers and politicians have been worried.

The noises of New York have been recorded and put into the cornerstone of a new building there, so that posterity may have at least one reason why New York is no more.

THE NOBEL PRIZE
(Salem Capital Journal)

THE Nobel prize is physiology and medicine has been divided in three parts and awarded this year to Dr. George H. Whipple, of the University of Rochester, Dr. George H. Minot of Harvard, and Dr. William P. Murphy of Harvard. The latter is a Portland boy and a graduate of the University of Oregon. Previous to this year this prize, the world's greatest scientific honor, with a value of $40,000 had been awarded only twice in 26 years in the United States.

The present award is for the checking of pernicious anemia by the administration of liver and liver extracts by Drs. Minot and Murphy, following laboratory work by Dr. Whipple. Dr. Murphy writes concerning the new treatment:

"Since our initial work on the treatment of pernicious anemia by the use of liver, as carried out in our office practice and at hospitals, much progress has been made in the direction of improvement and simplification of treatment of the unfortunate victim of this disease.

"Although the amount of liver necessary for each patient's needs may vary greatly it is necessary for him to take daily an average of from one-fourth to one-half pound, or during each month a total of eleven pounds in order to keep well. If instead of taking liver the patient is advised to take a potent liver extract by mouth it will be necessary to use daily three vials or doses and in a month 84 vials or doses in order to replace the effect of the liver."

The average cost of eleven pounds of liver is $5.50, the cost of 84 doses of liver extract $17.00. But an extract of liver developed by the two physicians, may be injected into the muscle which is so concentrated that it is necessary to use only one injection to replace the eleven pounds of liver or 84 doses of liver extract, if taken by mouth, and its cost is but $1.20.

It is this progress in the direction of simplification of treatment for patients with the disease that has won recognition as well as the discovery of the remedy itself.

Life insurance statistics show that the death rate in individuals with pernicious anemia between the ages of 30 and 50 years has only been half as great since the use of liver as before and if the treatment is utilized there need be no deaths from anemia eventually, says Dr. Murphy.

All of which shows what research and experiment in just one of countless lines, are doing to control disease and prolong life.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Register-Guard Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—Probably there never will come a time when some congressman won't believe there's glorious limelight for him in an expose of Communist activities.

But the latest circus of the sort has stirred up so little commotion as to indicate that the good old Red Scare isn't the sure-fire attraction it used to be.

Even the old reliable D. A. R. ladies failed to appear before the House committee investigating "un-American activities."

This has been a great disappointment to investigating congressmen and the Communist party leaders. Both will miss the publicity.

It is especially embarrassing to Chairman McCormack of Massachusetts. The committee was supposed to be investigating Nazi as well as Communist doings and McCormack had just given the Nazis a virtual immunity bath in a public assurance that the German government had adopted a new policy of non-interference in America.

So the Communists looked like McCormack's best bet—until he trotted them out.

• • •

COMMUNISTS EAT IT UP

The trouble with the Communists is that the moment a committee goes after them, they come rushing down here demanding to be heard. They want to shout from atop the Capitol dome the very facts the committee seeks to peddle to the public as newly discovered hot stuff.

Instead of denying anything, they boast about more activities than the committee would ever discover—because they like to exaggerate.

They figure, of course that any advertising the committee gives them will help publicize them as exclusive champions of the working class—and help bring in recruits.

Probably the chief reason no one gets excited about Red exposures any more is that you can have a nice fresh Red exposure any day you want to turn to the pages of such Communist publications as the Daily Worker and the New Masses.

They'll tell you all about the aims and activities of the party. Far from being secretive about it, the Daily Worker has been putting on a tremendous public circulation campaign and now claims a daily issue of 43,700.

• • •

PLAN BIG DEMONSTRATION

Here for instance, is an exposure that costs 3 cents instead of thousands of dollars for a congressional committee:

Communists are promoting a large "National Congress for Unemployment Insurance" here in January, which will bring radicals here from all sections of the country to demand and demonstrate for H. R. 7598.

That's a bill for unemployment insurance, introduced in the House at the behest of Communists and supported by many non-Communist organizations which will also be represented.

Communists are endeavoring to achieve a "united front" with the Socialists in certain issues, such as they've been able to arrange in France and Spain. Left wing Socialists want to co-operate in some cases, right wingers want nothing at all to do with the C. P. Result: A compromise which allows Socialist locals to do as they please.

• • •

Communists are working among labor unions, unemployed councils, and other relief groups. Negroes, military and naval units and such other groups as they can reach to stir up class bitterness, militant mass action, and all sorts of demands from the "ruling class."

Communists are working for the day when they can have a revolution of the proletariat and a government here like Soviet Russia.

Communists publicly claim a much rosier picture of progress and prospects than Congressmen Dickstein and McCormack will be able to report.

The philosophy behind all this, if it isn't made plain in current Communist publications, is contained in the writings of Lenin which are available to anyone.

What to do about the Communists is another matter, but congressional investigations and "exposures" of them are becoming a great bore.

AN EDITORIAL ON HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, And of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

A PROMINENT specialist in diseases of the bones and joints has described the case of a girl 10 years old who suffered from pains in her feet, and who finally began to use crutches because it hurt her so much to walk. When a careful study of this child was made, it was found that she was inclined to be fat, that one leg was slightly shorter than the other, that she had knock knees and turned ankles, a certain amount of curving in her spine, unevenness in the shoulders, and that she held her head in the wrong position.

The trouble with her feet was apparently the slightest of her difficulties and was most explainable by her overweight. It was, in fact, merely a part of a general disturbance of posture. X-ray pictures disclosed a complete twisting of the spine, including the pelvis, which was really the most important and serious of the conditions that troubled her.

It became possible, through use of correct shoes, strapping of the feet to hold them in the right position, and suitably applied exercises, to obtain complete relief from the trouble with the feet in about six weeks.

However, correction of a curve in the spine and of distortion in the pelvis may require many months of careful treatment.

• • •

Sch investigations are particularly important for growing girls. While they are active in their school work and in their gymnastics, they are likely to pay little attention to their posture.

As they get older, the conditions accumulate, and eventually they begin to suffer from pains in the back, or sciatica, or similar troubles which could have been prevented by proper consideration during the period of youth.

Sometimes, all that is necessary after the child is examined, is the raising of the heel of the shoe on one side, or treating of the heel to correct faulty twisting of the leg. In other instances it may be necessary to provide special corsets or similar apparatus to correct more serious distortions of the bones.

Some girls develop a tilting of the pelvic bones due to habitual sitting on one foot.

• • •

If you notice that your child is having difficulty in walking, that it carries its body badly, or that it complains a great deal of fatigue when standing have a proper examination made of the child's posture.

Such examination will include not only a study of all the usual things that are looked at in a physical examination, but also a determination as to whether the pelvis is even, the spine normal, and the legs of equal length.

Inmaking such measurements, it is desirable to use a plumb line, such as builders use to determine alignment in buildings, and also actually to measure the distances with a measuring tape rather than to guess at them.

The child must be examined without clothing in a good light, and it may be desirable to have X-ray pictures of the spine to confirm impressions obtained by merely looking at the back.

When difficulties with posture are found, they are frequently correctable by adoption of a smooth flat bed, correct habits of walking, standing, and sitting, and particularly a suitable desk in school where the child spends most of its time.

Editor of Advance

FROM the Christmas story of the coming of Jesus into the world, we turn to the picture of Christ as King and Conqueror.

The topic of our lesson is "Victory Through Christ."

"Be of good cheer," said Jesus to his disciples, "I have overcome the world." Our lesson is a commentary on these words. In His overcoming of the world, Christ gives victory to individual men in their effort to overcome sin and selfishness.

We are living in a world that offers constant incentives to selfishness where it does not tempt men to the grosser sins. Selfishness is in reality the deepest of all sins and is at the root of all sins, but it appears to us clothed in disguised and sometimes attractive forms.

A man may be very unselfish toward his own family or his own group or his own country, but at the same time ruthless in actions as they affect other people and other countries. A man may clothe under the guise of ambition, success, and what is called "enlightened self-interest," a course of life that is utterly out of harmony with Christmas service and the principles of love and brotherhood.

• • •

To overcome the world in our own hearts and in our own lives is no cheap or easy victory. We cannot accomplish it unless we live on a high plane where we have the constant inspiration of communion with those who have lived nobly and who have left us a good example.

The height of all such communion with the most inspiring example that it offers, and the power of a Savior to help us, is in our relation to Jesus. To find God revealed in Him, to live so near to Him that his power upholds us and guides us, is to win the victory of faith.

Deep and wide in all our life today is the need of victorious Christian living. We are in a world in which we are talking of new deals and reconstructions, and no sensible man will disparage the need of applying courageous intelligence in the effort to discover better methods of organizing and conducting our social life.

When man finds a better instrument or tool for his purpose than the one he is using, he does not need to be urged to use the new one and discard the old one. And there is a sense, therefore, in which, as we discover a better way of society and men become convinced that it is a better way, we shall enter that way very much as we adopt new inventions and better methods in the physical world.

But underlying all our external life is a persistent problem of man's relationship to his fellow man. No matter how much we improve outward conditions, or social organization there will still be tragedy in human life where sin and selfishness continue.

When the social engineers have done all in their power to plan a better society, we shall be far short of its achievement unless men have the will and purpose to live in right relationships with one another. Meanness and sordidness and selfishness will find a means of defeating the highest purposes, unless they themselves are conquered and driven out by love and goodness.

To overcome evil with good is the method and goal of the great struggle in which all good men and women are engaged. This was the supreme purpose of Jesus in coming into the world, and it is the victory through Him we may achieve.
