

"Werewolf" To Battle "Vampire" In Armory Main Event Tonight

GOOD SUPPORTING CARD SLATED FOR BATTLE OF FIENDS

TONIGHT'S PROGRAM
 1st bout, 30 minutes—Dishface Powers vs Larry Tillman. Best two out of three falls.
 2nd bout, 45 minutes—Del Kunkle vs Young Tarzan. Best two out of three falls.
 Main event, one hour—"Vampire" Fenton vs "Werewolf" Jackson. Best two out of three falls.

The "Vampire" vs the "Werewolf"—two fiends but with a single thought—that's the set-up at the armory tonight, when Jim Johnson's "Werewolf" tangles with Jim O'Connell's "Vampire" in the main event of Herb Owen's weekly wrestling card.

The battle is more than a wrestling match between men—for the honor of the two theater managers is at stake, and each has staked his hopes on a victory as being indicative of the fiendishness of the villains of their two forthcoming productions—"The Werewolf of London," at the Heilig, and "The Mark of the Vampire" at the Rex.

Jim Johnson, as manager of the "Werewolf," stated late Thursday morning, "I have nothing more to say. The Werewolf is 'in the pink,' and when the defeated monster is carried from the ring tonight—it won't be the Werewolf!"

Jim O'Connell could not be reached, and it is understood that he and his "Vampire" had retired to secluded quarters where the finishing touches for the great battle could be applied to the Vampire's training schedule.

Aside from the manager's feud angle, the match itself shapes up like a real scrap, with neither man slated to do much wrestling. A good, old-fashioned Dennybrook is in store, and ringside patrons will do well to be on the alert, for a chair is the favorite weapon of either man.

The supporting bouts are among the best Owen has lined up in recent months, with Del Kunkle meeting the much improved Young Tarzan in the semi-windup and Dishface Powers slated to tangle with Larry Tillman in the opener.

Tillman is the Kentucky youth who has made a tremendous hit in recent weeks with local fans, not only for his clever grappling but for his ability to "take it." Powers will be remembered as the half-mad matman who showed here a year ago, and nearly precipitated riots on every appearance.

Kunkle, in the semi-windup, is recognized as one of the leading middleweights of the nation, while Young Tarzan has gained renown throughout the east since appearing here last season.

"Tarzan, in my opinion, has shown the greatest improvement of any middleweight I have used in the last year," Owen stated Thursday.

The doors will open at 7 o'clock, and the first bout will go on at 8:30.

Longview Offers 21-Mile Beach to Malcolm Campbell

LONGVIEW, Wash., June 13.—(AP)—The state of Washington today offered the 21 miles of firm sand at Long Beach as the best runway in the world on which Sir Malcolm Campbell might drive his famed Bluebird 300 miles an hour.

Longview and Long Beach civic leaders are so convinced that the beach is ideal for the Englishman's next assault on his own world record that they are paying the expenses of W. F. Sturm of Indianapolis to come to western Washington and inspect the beach.

Sturm will arrive here June 12. The Washington beach is 10 miles longer than Daytona beach, where Campbell raced 276 miles an hour last spring.

Pitts Case Given To Kenesaw Landis

CHICAGO, June 13.—(AP)—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball's court of last resort, today had another big problem to settle—the case of Edwin C. "Alabama" Pitts.

The executive committee of the national association of minor professional baseball leagues yesterday declared void Pitts' contract with the Albany club of the International league, because he is an ex-convict. Immediately, Johnny Evers, manager of the Albany club, owner Joseph Cambria, and Pitts, himself, wired Landis asking a hearing in an effort to have the committee's decision overruled.

Harrisburg I. O. O. F. Nine Defeats J. C.

HARRISBURG, June 13.—(Special)—The Harrisburg I. O. O. F. softball team scored a 9 to 3 victory over the Junction City team Wednesday evening at Junction City. Gus Monger, formerly principal of Junction high, held his ex-team mates to three scattered hits.

IN DISGUISE!

That "Vampire" and Werewolf" can assume many forms is demonstrated by the above cut, showing "Werewolf" Jackson in the guise of a diver to be encircled by "Vampire" Fenton, who is portraying an octopus. The two meet in the main event of Herb Owen's mat card at the armory Thursday night.

Fight Is Menaced By Thunderstorms

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP)—The threat of thunder showers still hangs over the heavyweight championship fight tonight between Max Baer and Jimmy Braddock.

COLLEGIATE WORLD SERIES DESIRE OF COAST ASSOCIATION

SEATTLE, June 13.—(AP)—The Pacific Coast conference is in favor of an intercollegiate world's series in baseball.

This new angle in intercollegiate sports popped up at the summer convocation of conference coaches, graduate managers and faculty members here today, and the latter group placed its stamp of approval on the idea and appointed Prof. H. C. Willett of the University of Southern California, president of the association, to take the matter up with the National Intercollegiate association.

"We believe an intercollegiate world's series in baseball would be a fine thing to stimulate the sport," Willett declared. "Of course we don't have a lot to say about it, but we have gone on record as favoring the idea if it can be arranged."

Although scheduled to meet for two days, the athletic leaders of the conference finished their business in quick time today when they decided not to consider the 1936 football schedule.

The gridiron problem was left over for the winter meeting, with the dates set as Dec. 9 and 10 in San Francisco. Reliable sources had it that Stanford's desire for an eastern engagement this fall was one of the contributing causes for postponing the drawing of the football schedule.

The conference session was one of the tamest in years and about the only concrete business completed was the adoption of the basketball schedule for the northern division next season.

A few points agreed upon included the using of only officials residing in the district in north-south basketball playoffs; prohibition of conference coaches officiating or coaching professional teams; and prohibition of conference athletes acting as life guards for salaries at beaches during the summer.

Several of the California coaches, graduate managers and faculty members left Seattle tonight, bringing to a close the session which had been scheduled to continue through tomorrow.

The northern division basketball schedule included:

HIGHCLIMBER takes 'em over

By RICHARD JOHNSTON
 Eugene fishing enthusiasts, who thrill to the lure of the mountain streams and the hard-fighting trout, should take a shot at tarpon fishing, according to Harry Hunk Anderson, former Notre Dame coach, who recently tried out the sport at Boca Grande, Florida.

Here's what Hunk has to say about it: Big silver tarpon of Boca Grande, Fla., afford rod and reel fishermen all that can be desired in deep sea angling.

A fast motor boat takes you to the fishing grounds where the motor is cut off and the boat allowed to float with the tide. When the tarpon strikes, the motor is started again and the battle is on. The tarpon, on his first dash for liberty, takes about 300 feet of line. At this distance, the fish will take two or three jumps of eight or ten feet in the air before heading for the bottom.

As the big fellow bobs down, you start pumping him in, taking about eight inches of line on each pump. Angered at the idea of being reeled in, the tarpon dashes for the top again, taking about 300 more feet of line. He may take to the air again, depending upon his strength.

After working strenuously for three-quarters of an hour, the tarpon can be brought up where you can see him in the clear blue water of the bay.

But he still is full of life, and will make another bid for freedom, taking about 200 feet of line this trip.

This last dash is costly, as it takes most of his strength and you are able to pump him to the side of the boat where the gaff is sunk and the battle ended.

The great thrill of tarpon fishing comes when the fish leaves the water at the end of his first dash for liberty. It's great to see him, a mass of silver, leap high in the air, shake his head and flip his tail as he tries desperately to shake the barb.

A large hook with a piece of mullet attached is used in fishing for tarpon. It is dropped over the edge of the boat and a heavy sinker takes it to the bottom, about 40 feet below. Holding the line, you drift in the boat until the strike.

Tarpon are caught at Boca Grande weighing from 60 to 150 pounds. The largest I ever took scaled 117 pounds. It required an hour to land him.

Most tarpon fishing is done on moonlight nights. Perhaps a dozen boats will go out at the same time and float with the tide about 300 yards apart.

When one boat has a strike, the others will close in, as tarpon travel in schools, and shortly there will be three or four battles in progress at one time. Floodlights from the boats play across the water. It is a beautiful sight.

Mighty Men Of Old Pick Max To Win

SAN FRANCISCO, June 13.—(AP)—Two old time soldiers of the heavyweight boxing wars, James J. Jeffries and Tom Sharkey, who couldn't agree in the ring more than three decades ago, share the same belief today, mainly that Max Baer should pulverize James J. Braddock tonight in Madison Square Garden's Long Island bowl.

Jeffries, former king of the heavies, thinks Baer will win as he pleases. Harrel Chester Sharkey, still a mighty man at close to 60, doesn't concede Braddock a chance.

"Jeffries in his prime could have chased both of those imitations out of the ring the same night," said "Sailor Tom." "If I was ten years younger I'd take on Braddock myself."

Art Lasky, Jewish heavyweight who last to Braddock last April in the fight that earned the latter the right to meet Baer, views the bout differently. He thinks Braddock has "a good chance" to win. "Braddock can punch and a puncher always has a chance," he observed.

In addition to the election, the DeMolay degree was conferred on four boys, Joe Grube, Robert Blithe, Dale Shuey and John Martin. The officers were installed at the close of the meeting, with Lester Miller and Everett Phillips performing the installation.

son returned from Monmouth Friday. Saturday the Community Methodist Sunday school held their annual picnic at the fish hatchery. There were about present.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Hall and Mrs. McDonald of Eugene were Sunday dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Crow and son Billy spent the week-end in Leaburg visiting at the Lou Crow residence.

Lieut. L. H. Hall visited with his family here Sunday enroute from Redford to Vancouver.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Hall fished up the McKenzie Saturday. Geary Worth and Wolff Allen fished up the McKenzie Sunday.

The following friends enjoyed a week-end trip up Blue River; Mr. and Mrs. Inger Reimond and son Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. H. Skordahl and sons George and Douglas, Rollie Roach, Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Roach, Miss Elma Parish and Everett Parrish of Springfield.

NASTY MAN! MAX, BRADDOCK TRADE UNKIND REMARKS

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP)—Baer created an impression of tense hostility between Champion Max Baer and Challenger Jimmy Braddock when they weighed in today for this evening's championship heavyweight bout.

The scene was well staged at the boxing commission office with Baer offering insulting wise-cracks, Braddock glowering, the challenger's aide offering to fight, the champion and General John Phelan screaming from an armchair until 10 p. m.

Baer weighed 206 pounds, and Braddock 194 3/4, giving the champion advantage of 17 3/4 pounds.

A stifling hot sun partly obscured by a sultry haze caused Madison Square Garden officials considerable worry this afternoon for the weather seemed to be making up for thunder showers.

Braddock, accompanied by his manager, Joe Gould, and one of his promoters, Mike Cantwell, was first to arrive, for the weighing. Cantwell seconded Baer when Max won the title from Primo Carnera last June 14. Since then they squabbled to parted company.

Braddock was sitting quietly, clad only in his drawers, awaiting a call from Dr. William Walker, commission physician.

In came Baer, a picture of serene splendor.

"Hello there, big boy," he said, extending his hand to Braddock.

"Go away!" he ordered. "Don't talk to me. I don't want to talk to you. I'll talk to you in the ring tonight."

Baer didn't move so Gould stepped Baer a gentle shove. Baer smirked. "You're the guy who kills people in the ring, are you?" Gould asked mockingly. "Well, you're meeting a gent you won't kill tonight."

Cantwell then pushed Baer and drew back his fist. A door swung open. In walked General Phelan. It was just as though teacher had suddenly walked into the schoolroom.

"Here! Here!" he can't have things like this going on here. Let the commission settle this. The commission will handle this matter."
