

KANSAS CONVICTS RIOT IN MINES; GUARDS IN PERIL

warden promise their food would be cooked better.

Warden Lacey Simpson said he had talked to Mine Superintendent Murray and spokesman for the prisoners, Flannery, from a telephone station on the main mine shaft. Murray, he said, told him no one had been hurt and no property had been destroyed.

The warden told the man, he said, "that you boys should come up for supper and appoint a committee to meet with the board of administration."

He promised the man he would summon the board to meet here.

They'll Wait in Pits

After considering this a moment, the warden said, the man replied: "We'll wait down here."

Simpson, he said, promised them nothing except that he would call the board to meet here.

Dr. David F. Parker, of Tonganoxie, is the present prison physician. He was appointed last March.

After the telephone call from Murray and the spokesman, the phone held by the prisoners once more became silent.

Some prison officials expressed the belief the convicts mutilated against regulations voted by the last Kansas legislature, which had the effect of abolishing much of the reduction of prison terms formerly allowed for coal production above the minimum. The minimum was 15 tons a week for each miner. Each ton above minimum, prisoners had been allowed two days off their terms. Production from the mine has averaged 45 railroad cars a week.

The last legislature ordered that prisoners must serve at least two-thirds of their sentences before being subject to parole or release, except by action of the governor. The legislation in effect, took away the power of prison officials to allow them reductions to prisoners for good conduct or extra production of coal.

WHITE OUTLINES PLAN FOR SETUP IN AGRICULTURE

work under him did outstanding work," Mr. White added.
Mr. White pointed out that heretofore one man has come along to do the weighing, another to test samples of food, a third to check on sanitation, a fourth to do something else, and a fifth something else again.
Under the new set-up, the resident inspector will take care of all of this work within his district. His duties will include checking on sanitation in stores, restaurants, butcher shops; taking samples of foods; inspecting dairies; collecting gasoline samples; checking warehouses; taking samples of feed; checking insecticides and spray materials; checking trucks for peddlers' licenses; taking over the inspection of egg grading, and other duties carried out through the department.

No New Jobs Created
"With these changes, I want it understood that the department is not naming any new men to fill the places where others will be left out. And policies are not going to enter this set-up, either," Mr. White declared.
The districts for the state as announced by Mr. White are as follows:
Clatsop, Columbia, Tillamook, and Washington counties, headquarters at Hillsboro; Yamhill, Polk, Benton, Lincoln counties, headquarters at Corvallis; Linn and Lane counties, except coast strip on Lane, Eugene, as headquarters; Douglas and Coos counties, headquarters at Marshfield; Josephine and Jackson counties, headquarters at Medford; Clackamas and Marion counties, headquarters at Salem; Hood River, Wasco, Jefferson, Sherman, Gilliam, Morrow, and Wheeler counties, headquarters at Hood River; Umatilla, Wallawa, and Union counties, headquarters at Milton; Grant, Baker, Malheur, with Ontario as headquarters; Deschutes, Crook, Harney, Lake and Klamath counties, headquarters to be in Klamath Falls; Portland and Oregon City cities, under supervision of branch office in Portland. Cooperation is sought.

In his address to Rotary, Mr. White asked for the cooperation and support of all civic groups as well as farm groups. "When these changes are made, there will be noise, but I am asking you to stop and think the matter over and give your fullest cooperation. You may not agree, but we want you to bring your problems and present them so we can work on them together," the speaker declared. Complaints must be thoroughly investigated and the facts found before judgment is passed, the speaker added.
He then went on to point out how Oregon is leading in progress of agricultural development. Oregon will be the first state to eradicate the Bangs disease, he said, and added, the sale of butter indicates what the work of testing has done for that industry. Oregon eggs are selling at a premium in New York because of the high grading regulations, he said.
O. S. Fletcher, county agricultural agent, introduced the speaker. Mr. White at one time taught in Cottage Grove in the Smith-Hughes work and is well-known in this county.

Among visitors at the Rotary luncheon were: David A. Faville, former dean of the school of business administration at the University of Oregon and now with business administration at Stanford; A. L. Mills Jr. of the United States National bank of Portland; J. O. Holt, Fred E. Chambers, William James, and several visiting Rotarians. Miss Margaret Ellen Hill played the piano accompaniment for the club's singing.
For the meeting next Tuesday, the Rotarians will bring their sons and daughters, this being an annual program with the club.

Kinmath Falls Evening Herald—"There has been some concern lest the state board would have difficulty in inducing a man of ability and reputation to come into Oregon, which has been the scene of a bitter battle on higher education for years. But Dr. Hunter's choice and acceptance ends that fear."
Portland Oregonian—"Action of the state board of higher education is timely in obtaining the services of a new chancellor to begin his duties September 1. Dr. Hunter, the choice of the board, is a man with a record and attainments that augur well for his success in the Oregon field."
Coos Bay Times—"The jealousies, bickerings and revivals of the last few years have no place in the new day. High education has opportunity to test the dream of unification which caused the 1920 legislative enactment. The state welcomes Dr. Hunter, seeking calm after storm."
Salem Capital Journal—"Dr. Hunter comes to Oregon free of any entangling alliances, without the handicap of real or imagined partisanship, and with the detached viewpoint of one who can impartially diagnose the ailments of the system and perform the needed operations."
