SCIENTIST AND DUST STORMS.

WITH the threat of widespread dust storms allayed by recent heavy rains, it is comforting to sit back and listen to a less hysterical view of the situation than that shouted to the country by various experts a few weeks ago, when the menace was at its height.

Such view is that of Dr. J. W. Humphrey, of the U. S. Weather Bureau, who discounts the dire prophecies of America's great grain belt turning into a vast unproductive waste.

Only a complete climatic upheaval such as the one that occurred centuries ago to transform fertile North African lands into the Sahara could leave our midwest a desert, the scientist avers.

That transformation came through countless ages while Europe was emerging from its ice cap, and involved great shifting of air currents to new courses as the ice melted beneath their northern ranges.

Therefore, as long as the frozen north remains frozen, Humphrey declares, no radical climatic change is scheduled for this country—and he adds that, though the ice probably will melt there some day, such happening is unlikely for the next 5000 or perhaps 10,000 years.

So it seems, if we take this brighter view, that the prophets of gloom might well seek a new field in which to play their Jeremiah roles, while government officials and farm leaders go intelligently about their task of combating erosion and other factors giving rise to the dust menace.

GREAT NEED FOR HOUSING.

AMERICA'S boast of its high standard of living is dealt a terrific blow in the PWA report that lists 11,000,000 of the nation's homes as definitely in the slum class.

If a third of the country's population is dwelling in houses and neighborhoods of a character "to injure the health and endanger the safety and morals and interfere with normal lives," then our boast is a hollow mockery.

Whether or not the time has come, as the report insists, "for private enterprise to abandon an impossible task and let the community take it over," conditions call for immediate action on a huge scale, whatever agency is chosen.

With thousands of building craftsmen idle, with material business at low tide, with thousands of householders willing to borrow money if reasonable credit terms can be obtained, and with surveys showing a growing shortage of good rental property, it seems that concentration on this problem would do more than anything else to help relieve depression and alleviate misery.

AN ISLAND 'REDISCOVERED'.

OF all the romantic features that attend the coming of the new transpacific air service, none is more fascinating than the "rediscovery" of forgotten Guam.

Four decades of isolation under the Stars and Stripes and several centuries of neglect under Spanish rule had left the islanders resigned to their fate. To this smiling tropic island came only warships and an occasional freighter, as its port has been closed under naval administration.

So the joy of the islanders now knows no bounds as they realize that they are to be a part of the great world. Planes flying from California to Asia will make regular stops and strangers from "outside" will find new delights in this garden spot of the Pacific.

No more hospitable people live anywhere than the Chamorros of Guam, as the few travelers who have visited them can attest.

When the first air cruiser swoops out of the blue, every resident of Guam will be at the landing place to celebrate the greatest day in the island's history.

A new antiseptic 250 times as strong as carbolic acid may be swallowed by man without ill effects. Before prohibition, it would probably have been fatal.

Los Angeles girl being buried alive for 90 days taking along book on aviation to pass the time. If she ever tries a stratosphere trip, we can recommend some good books on mine-drilling.

In London, J. P. Moran auctions off his collection of 795 miniatures. That Senate knee-dandling incident probably turned him against things in midget size.

Perhaps the reason Mr. Hoover didn't show up at the "grass roots" meeting was that he was misled by the name and got lost on some city street.

Jobless actors, backed by Uncle Sam, will present the drama throughout the country. The mortgage-holding villain will probably be felled by the arrival of a federal loan.

The geographical center of Montana lies in the kitchen sink of a Lewiston doctor, says a news item. Oh, those dust storms!

If auto tolls become much heavier, the Civilian Conservation Corps will have to drop its other work and live up to its name.

If Huey resents senators yawning during his filibusters, he might resort to some stopgap legislation.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS THINK

HE WAS OUR FRIEND (Pendleton East-Oregonian) THE Wasco county Pomona grange has passed a resolution condemning the governor for having criticized certain actions on the part of the grange representatives during the legislative session. Governor Martin is a public official and if people disagree with what he does it is their privilege to say so. They should likewise respect the right of the governor to express himself regarding grange officials and their attitude towards public affairs. This is a democracy and the right of criticism is a sacred right. To suppress criticism would be dangerous indeed. There is no freedom and no democracy where looking at the matter but it is a fact that at times we learn much through criticism; we learn but little from "Yes men."

The late Congressman Nick Sinnott once made a wise remark when he said: "Do not get mad when criticized; they may be right." That is a broad way of looking at the matter but it is a fact that at times we learn much through criticism; we learn but little from "Yes men."

The right of criticism is naturally confined to no particular class. It is a common right of American citizenship and a governor too has the right to express his views. Governor Martin does so at times with frankness but frankness is a virtue, not a fault. A governor who speaks in forthright manner is more to be trusted than is one who is always hedging or passing the buck.

Governor Martin's record regarding agriculture has been very fine. He was a strong supporter of the president's farm program at Washington and during the fight over sea locks at Bonneville (an issue that meant much to eastern Oregon growers) he did extremely effective work at a time when powerful interests in Portland were unfriendly to the wishes of interior people.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER Register-Guard Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Huey Long will barnstorm the country this summer, drumming up converts for his share-the-wealth scheme.

To let the country know just what this $5,000,000,000 scheme is, Long offered it in the Senate, with old age pension, unemployment insurance, and child welfare provisions, as a substitute for Roosevelt's security setup. To raise the money, the Kingfish would tax all fortunes over $1,000,000, and limit individual fortunes to $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 with levies ranging from 1 to 99 per cent. Republicans joined Democrats in shouting down the plan.

The senator has been slipping a bit lately—both as a national figure and among the friends and near-friends he has in Washington.

Success or failure of the speaking tour will give Huey a better idea of his possibilities as a presidential candidate in 1936. Huey isn't saying anything about it, but his closest associates expect him to contest against Roosevelt in next year's Democratic primaries, to make trouble even though he has no hope of nomination.

Meanwhile, Roosevelt isn't worrying as much about Huey as he was at one time. Events have tended to isolate the Kingfish as an individual phenomenon rather than a dangerous leader of a popular left wing movement.

Gives F. R. an Abe Issue

The supreme court NRA decision and subsequent events left Roosevelt with first lien on a radical issue which he has to use in Huey's show and divert left-wingers to the Roosevelt tent.

And now, by an abortive filibuster designed to embarrass the administration, Huey has lost most of that sympathy as he had in the Senate.

A group of progressive and Republican colleagues had been using or abetting the Kingfish in some cases, believing that the shrewd Huey, for all his faults, was often of value.

But when Huey kept the Senate up all through the night he merely made everybody sore. Progressives such as Le Follette of Wisconsin and Schwelb of Washington joined in the effort of administration leaders to blackjack him into submission with parliamentary weapons.

They felt his filibuster, with the alleged purpose of bringing New Deal appointments under Senate control or to defeat the NRA bill, was so hopeless as to be without excuse, and blamed it on Long's egotism.

Thus Huey's prestige as a dangerous, effective demagog has dropped several notches.

Huey's Props Fall Out

Huey's post-mortem story is that he would have been in position to lead a filibuster from Friday morning to Sunday, when NRA would have expired, if his "support" hadn't failed him.

Schall of Minnesota had a speech read and was eventually stifled, but Gore of Oklahoma—for whose amendment Huey was supposedly filibustering—was talked out of helping Huey by Pat Harrison.

Tydings of Maryland, whom Huey expected to filibuster pending the second speech to which Huey was entitled, just disappeared.

You can't say Huey is "stopped." No one will be surprised if his importance as a thorn in the administration's flanks reaches new heights.

Affidavits he presented to the Senate against Jim Farley were so sensational that only a heavy administration majority and the anti-Huey feeling prevented an investigation.

One Long Headache

Headaches never stop for the folks who now have the messy Subsistence Homesteads program in charge. No more cringing blow could have been received than the recent telegram of a traveling inspector who found an Illinois project short on candidates for the homesteads.

The wire said, in effect: "Would it be all right if we advertised for tenants?"

No Gag for Admirals

The case of Admiral Yates Stirling, who caused considerable commotion by his alleged implication in a newspaper article that other nations should gang together and war on Soviet Russia, led Senator Gerald P. Nye to ask the State Department if there were no regulations requiring generals and admirals to submit speeches and articles before delivery or publication.

The State Department, which sometimes gets rather sore over the degree to which it feels the navy dictates American foreign policy, enlightened him: "Naval and military officers must submit such speeches or documents to their superiors—AFTER delivery or publication."

AN EDITORIAL ON HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

A LITTLE detective work to discover the foods that disagree with the most people reveals three flagrant offenders—onions, cabbage, and apples.

One doctor who studied 500 cases of "food disagreement" found onions causing trouble in 27 per cent of the cases, milk and milk products in 26 per cent, raw apples in 26, and cooked cabbage in 25.

Chocolate was responsible in 18 per cent of the cases and radishes in 17, tomatoes in 15, cucumbers and eggs in 13 each. Next came fat, greasy and rich foods in 12 per cent, meats in 11, strawberries and coffee in 10 each, and a number of other foods which had less than 1 per cent of trouble associated with their use.

When 400 patients who complained of gas, belching, flatulence, or distension were examined, it was found that onions, cabbage and apples led all the trouble-makers.

Symptoms caused by sensitivity to foods may vary from distress associated with the stomach and lurching to heart attacks, asthma, nervous disturbances, and abdominal distension.

BIRTHDAY PARTIES HELD AT OAKRIDGE

OAKRIDGE, June 22.—(Special)—Birthday parties are now taking the lead in social events in Oakridge.

Several have already taken place and plans are under way for a number of others the coming week.

Little Miss Barbara Ann Richter celebrated her sixth birthday recently when her mother, Mrs. Fred Richter, entertained in her honor. Games and contests were enjoyed and prizes were won by Lee McFarland. A "pound" proved to be the most popular of the afternoon diversions. Refreshments were served late in the afternoon out-of-doors. A clever birthday colored animal cookies around it used as a centerpiece for the luncheon table. The little folks present were Mary Smith, Lolla Hiss, Lois Hiss, Barbara Ann Richter, Naomi Richter, Lee Lowry McFarland, Fred and Barbara Richter, Mrs. C. E. McFarland and Mrs. Charles Croner assisted during the afternoon.

The Charlie Hebert home was the scene for a delightful birthday party given Monday afternoon from 2 to 4 by Mrs. Hebert, in honor of the tenth birthday of her daughter, Cleo. The delicious refreshments consisting of sandwiches, cake and punch were served. The honor guest received many nice presents. Those present were Cleo Hebert, Mary Hyler, Tom Rogers, Mary Jane McAtee, Mel Day, Marie Day, Corvone McDowell, Lorna Faust, Phyllis Putnam, Margaret Deffen, Betty Orr, Mary Elizabeth Deffen, Pauline Pugh, Lee Mae Croner, Barbara Ann Richter, Virgil Winkelman, Harry Winkelman, Randall Clark, Frances Jean Lee, Shirley Ann Lavy, Barbara Jo Mitchell, Laverne Lee, and Hazel Hebert.

H. E. Simpson and George Negard of Portland arrived Wednesday to spend the rest of the week at the Simpson cabin on Salt Creek.

Among those at McCredie Springs Tuesday evening were Miss Mildred McAtee, Miss Nina McAtee, Miss Inez Gilbert, LeRoy McAtee, Mrs. Pauline Pelzell, Miss Wilma Jackson, Mrs. H. E. Simpson and children,
