

FORMER HECETA LIGHTHOUSE MAN TO RETIRE SOON

By S. C. MORTON

Rounding out almost 40 years of service with Uncle Sam in navy yards, geodetic survey service, coast guard and lighthouse department, Frank Delroy, former keeper of the lighthouse at Heceta Beach in the days when Heceta Head was a remote outpost, will retire July 1. He is at present keeper of Warrior Rock lighthouse on the north end of San Juan Island.

Delroy was sent to Heceta Head light as second assistant keeper in December, 1913, and the following April he married Jennie (Lustson) of San Francisco, the ceremony being performed in the residence of the lightkeeper and the parson making the five hour trip over the 17 mile trail from Florence.

Few people ever came to Heceta, he said, because of the difficulty in getting there. Mail was delivered once a week and supplies came to Florence to be transported by pack horse in the winter and a light wagon in the summer. There were about 20 people at that time on the reservation, eight of whom were children, so the men gathered lumber from the beach and built a school house, donating it to the school district.

Life was not as lonesome as one might think, Delroy said, for there were comfortable quarters, garden spots, fishing and hunting and occasional trips to Florence for supplies. But the highway has changed this and the visitor drives almost to the lighthouse on a fine road and instead of a five hour trip, it takes about 20 minutes.

Mr. and Mrs. Delroy and son will go to Bolinas, Calif., 30 miles north of San Francisco, build a cottage near the beach and will not get lonesome for the sight of a vessel for from his cottage he will see passing up and down the coast, vessels which have been guided to a safe course at his beacon light, which flashed on Heceta Head, San Juan light and Warrior Rock.

HANK GREENBERG HITS 23RD HOMER

By GEORGE KIRKSEY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, June 29.—Hank Greenberg hit three homers yesterday as the Tigers won a doubleheader from the St. Louis Browns, 10-1, and 7-2, bringing his home run total to 23. He drove in 5 runs, making his total 32.

Cleveland reduced the Yanks' lead to 3 games by noosing out the Chicago White Sox, 6-5, in the only other American league game.

The New York Giants lengthened their National league lead to 7 1/2 games by coming from behind to defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 11-7, in 10 innings. Joe Moore's single drove in the tying run in the ninth and then the Giants raked Ray Benge for four runs in the tenth.

Paul Derringer, Cincinnati ace, scored his 10th victory in defeating the St. Louis Cardinals, 4-2.

Roy Henshaw, Chicago Cubs' rookie southpaw, narrowly missed pitching a no-hit game as the Cubs defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 8-0. Freddy Lindstrom dropped a line drive after a long run, and the official scorer credited Mace Brown, relief pitcher, with a double. It was the only hit off Henshaw.

Dolf Camilli's 15th homer enabled the Phillies to defeat the Boston Braves, 4-2, in 10 innings.

PETERSON LAYMAN METHODIST LEADER FOR COMING YEAR

SALEM, Ore., June 29.—(U.P.)—Ernest W. Peterson, Portland, newly elected lay president, will head the laymen delegation from the Oregon Methodist conference to the general convention in Columbus next year.

F. M. Phelps, Portland, and W. C. Hawley, Salem, were the other two members of the Oregon contingent who had their commissions today. Alternates were John L. Gary, Willamette, Earl A. Nott, Minnerville, and E. L. Wells, Portland.

Term tenure of bishops instead of life tenure and prohibition of foreign ministers voting on American bishops were measures approved in memorials passed by the lay conference yesterday.

Church members were blamed for "jazzed up" religion by Dr. King D. Beach, Tacoma, in the leading address.

"Sensational preaching has no place in the pulpit," he declared, "but too frequently it is not the fault of the ministers but the fault of the people in the church that sermons become sensational."

Business sessions occupied most of the day Friday, with district superintendents reporting on condition of member churches. Devotions and general conference memorials were to comprise this morning's program, with laymen and ministers meeting in final joint conference this afternoon.

Russians Alarmed By Jap "Invasion"

MOSCOW, June 29.—(U.P.)—Two additional border incidents on the Soviet-Manchurian frontier today further intensified already strained Soviet-Japanese relations. According to delayed reports from Khabarovsk, 40 Japanese soldiers and two officers crossed the Soviet border in the Grodekovo district and entered a valley where they allegedly remained until dusk.

Later 50 Japanese soldiers, in what was described as "attack formation," approached the border and were joined by 60 cavalrymen with whom they allegedly crossed the border.

Coast Fork Items

COAST FORK, June 29.—(Special)—Mrs. Janie Willoughby of Harrisburg visited several days this week with relatives in Coast Fork. She also visited the L. E. West home at Trent.

C. L. Hansen and family of Cottage Grove were looking after land interests here Thursday. They then went to Eugene to meet Helen Hansen who is returning from Portland where she has been going to school.

Miss Ila Patman and Miss Wright of Springfield are camped near the bridge. They are Girl Scouts and are gathering farm material to assist them in their work.

but whole. If large cut in pieces about the size of a very large walnut. This is a good way to use the small potatoes.

Put four rounded tablespoons butter in a hot skillet—brown (it bubbles and sputters and gives off a pleasant odor) pour over potatoes and stir so potatoes will all have a coating. Season with pepper. Serve very hot. You may sprinkle a little parsley on them just before serving.

—Mrs. T. J. Maxwell, M. R. 2, Eugene.

New Potatoes With Savory Sauce 12 small potatoes. 4 tbsp. butter. 1 tsp. chopped parsley. Juice 1/2 lemon. 1 tsp. chopped pepper (red or green). 2 tbsp. grated cheese. 1 tsp. salt. 1/4 tsp. pepper. Boil potatoes. Peel if necessary. Melt butter, add seasonings, adding cheese last. Stir till cheese is melted. Pour sauce over potatoes and serve. Onion may be substituted for the peppers.

Since the skins of new potatoes rub off so easily it may not be necessary to peel them.—Mrs. A. C. Bonck, 1786 Columbia St., Eugene.

Harvard B'fets 2 cups new beets cooked and cut in small balls or 1/2 in. cubes. 1-3 cup sugar. 2 tablespoons cornstarch. 1 1/2 cup vinegar (cider). 2 tablespoons butter. 1-3 tablespoons salt. Mix sugar, salt, and cornstarch; add vinegar and boil five minutes. Pour over hot beets and let stand covered, over low fire 1/2 hour. Add butter just before serving. Serve as accompaniment for veal or beef.—Mrs. Mary J. Burns, 630 E. 13th, Eugene.

tector, public opinion in Great Britain will be flouted. This opinion at present is pacifistic and pro-league.

But if the government does not support Italy it is probable the league will take action which will cause Italy to resign. This could well cause collapse of the league. Japan has withdrawn. Germany has withdrawn. The United States is not a member. If Italy resigned four of the seven dominant world powers would be without representation.

Even more serious—because there would be no hope of keeping the league together until a better diplomatic day arrived—was the immediate probability that Italy would be thrown from Germany.

This is a matter which no one contemplates without anxiety. Diplomatically, Europe would be right back where it was in 1914.

Dairy Inspectors Hear White's New Setup Explained

SALEM, Ore., June 29.—(U.P.)—Proposed of State Agriculture Director Salmon T. White to divide Oregon into 11 milk inspection districts was considered today by 60 milk and dairy inspectors of Oregon and Washington as they turned into the last day of their annual two-day convention.

The dairy officials had also heard talks by V. C. Morgan, chief milk inspector of Portland and president of the organization, and Dr. R. T. Simms, Oregon State college. Dr. Frank Walker, director of the division of health, commonwealth fund, New York, emphasized the duty of inspectors in educating the dairymen to produce clean milk and in aiding farmers through laboratory work in weeding out disease-transmitting cows.

BLACK RUST EATS UP WHEAT CROPS IN MIDDLE WEST

toured the highly productive South Platte wheat belt and reported rust in 90 per cent of the fields.

Federal Expert Is Alarmed A. E. Anderson, state and federal crop statistician, was alarmed. "Black rust can ruin a crop," he said. "It has done it and may do it again."

The black fungus arrived late in Kansas, but constituted a serious menace to spring wheat, according to L. E. Call, director, and R. L. Thier, agronomist, of the agricultural experiment station at Manhattan.

Throckmorton surveyed western Kansas and found black rust in nearly every winter wheat field from Salina west. Northwestern Kansas fields were heavily infested with red dust, a threat to oats as well as wheat.

Texas presented the spectacle of fields blasted by drought in one section of the state and ruined by excess moisture in another. In eastern and central Texas, where the wheat was flattened by rain and wind, farmers are bailing it for hay. In the Panhandle, where the early spring drought and dust storms were most severe, the harvest will be extremely light. The prospective state yield of 8,000,000 bushels compares to a normal yield of 33,000,000.

The Missouri harvest was two weeks behind schedule, farmers being unable to get into their fields in many parts of the state. W. F. McDonough, federal statistician, reported that "red dust has become serious all over the state." Missouri, however, because of a 25 per cent increase in acreage, will harvest approximately 21,300,000 bushels, a quarter of a million over last year's yield.

Oklahoma wheat farmers apparently stood to gain by their neighbors' losses. The crop is nearly half harvested, according to A. R. Duncan, state crop statistician, and will total around 35,000,000 bushels, compared to the government's forecast of 33,046,000.

"It looks as if the thing for us Oklahomans to do," Duncan said, "is to cut ours quickly and try for some of the higher prices."

The estimated loss of 30,000,000 bushels throughout the wheat area would more than balance the nation's visible supply, estimated recently at 25,000,000 bushels and reported to be disappearing at a rate of two to three million bushels a week. At one time the visible supply was in excess of 250,000,000 bushels.

Crop experts, though inclined to be pessimistic, said it would be several weeks yet before it would be possible to gauge accurately the damage wrought by black rust, reported so far south as Fort Worth, Tex., and as far north as Mandan, N. D.

Wheat crop losses occasioned by excess moisture—rainfall in the Kansas City area to date has been more than twice what it was last year; this time will be partly offset for farmers by improved soil conditions that promise bumper crops. The majority of reports from the region mentioned "ideal" growing weather for corn, sorghums and other similarly cultivated crops.
