Featured by the first exhibition of "crazy flying" to be seen in the northwest and without an accident to mar the day, the amateur air meet staged by the Eugene Private Flyers association thrilled approximately 5,000 persons at the Eugene airport Sunday afternoon.

Twenty planes from Portland, Beaverton, Salem, Wenatchee, Wash., and Stockton, California, entered the meet, the first of its kind to be staged in the northwest in many years. The meet was handled in compliance with department of commerce regulations with every precaution being taken to avoid any accident.

Eyerly Provides Big Thrill
Flying a new type small monoplane, Lee Eyerly, Salem flier, made the large crowd gasp as he literally threw his tiny ship through the air in crazy evolutions, nosing toward the ground, zooming up as the wheels cut the top of the grass, fluttering about the field with one wing tip just off the ground and virtually swamping ends with the plane as he flew it about the field, never more than 75 feet above ground.

"Crazy flying," which requires nerves of steel and precision judgment on the part of the pilot together with sound construction and delicate control power on the part of the plane, was first introduced in the United States by European aviators at the national air meet and the stunt has been seen only at the larger meets in the east. While the plane was under perfect control, it gave the appearance of floundering helplessly about in the air.

Eyerly's exhibition was believed to be the first time such a stunt has been seen on the Pacific coast.

Mayor Extends City's Welcome
Beginning with a welcome of visiting aviators at the field, the evening of the day featured a luncheon at McCrady's cafe at noon with the Eugene association hosts for the visiting fliers and their guests. Forty-six persons were present for the lunch at which Mayor Elisha E. Large extended greetings to the visitors who were introduced by Frank Reid, toastmaster.

Beaverton was accorded tribute for 100 per cent attendance at the meet, fliers from the Beaverton port bringing greetings from Charles Bernard.

FOREST FIRE LAW
IS CLAMPED DOWN

"Safety first" must be the slogan of campers in all parts of the Willamette national forest and bordering lands beginning today. Two sets of closure regulations, requiring that specific permits be obtained from the local office of the forestry service, were announced in force this morning by Roy Elliott, assistant supervisor of the Willamette national forest.

A permit is required for entry into any of the following districts: 100,000 acres on the north fork of the Santiam; 10,800 acres on the Portland Creek burn; 10,000 acres in 75-mile hills, north of the Santiam; 5,200 acres on the north fork of the Willamette in the Westfir district; 9,000 acres on the south fork of the McKenzie.

In these sectors, fires must only be built in designated places; campers traveling by auto or horseback must be equipped with an axe, a shovel, and a bucket; and smoking is prohibited.

Another set of regulations embraces all areas in the national forest, except the Shuswap forest, and, also, private lands which border on the Douglas country fire patrol association. These latter lands include: Sec. 25 to 36, inclusive, T. 16 S., R. 3 E.; all of T. 16 S., R. 4 E.; T. 17 S., R. 3 and 4 E. In these areas no fires may be built without a special permit, but no permit is required to enter, as is the case with the sectors first designated.

These regulations will continue during the "fire season."

Big Portland Operations
Getting Under Way
On New Plans

PORTLAND, Ore., July 1.—(AP)—The Pacific northwest lumber strike of the Sawmill and Timber Workers' union apparently was weakening today as several large mills opened without violence.

At Longview, Wash., the Weyerhaeuser and Long-Bell mills opened with an untroubled number of men. However, reports were the number was more than expected. Governor Clarence D. Martin had ordered the national guard to stand by in case of disorders, but the opening was peaceful. Union leaders have sanctioned opening of these holdings, which have been closed for nine weeks.

Tacoma Opening Continues

Three more mills opened in Tacoma, bringing the total to 14 employing 1,075 workers. The national guard escorted strikebreakers to work and then retired from the downtown section. The guardsmen will be back in the afternoon to protect workers when they leave the plants.

Portland mills reported 450 men at work. Officials of the Inman Poolsen mill, which has an agreement with the union, said it was operating in every department with a personnel of 335 men. The Inman-Poolsen pact provides for collective bargaining, a 40-hour week and a wage of 50c an hour, an increase of five to 7 1/2 cents from what the union has demanded.

Other Mills Get Going
The Johnson Lumber company said 50 men reported for work and the Southeast Portland Lumber company reported 65. Other mills operated with skeleton crews. Some lumber deliveries were being made under police protection.

Officers protected reopening of two Grays Harbor mills. Forty men returned to work at the Harbor plywood plant, which was surrounded by two thousand union men and sympathizers. They offered no resistance. The Bay City Lumber company reported 67 men back. The planing mill and the loading docks were running.

The Vancouver, Wash., Plywood & Veneer company employed additional workers and expected to have a full force of 535 working by the end of the week. It is working under an agreement with the union providing a 7 1/2 cent wage increase, 40-hour week, and union recognition insofar as collective bargaining for union employees in the company. There is no closed shop.

The university has been designated as the western center for this normal art work, as Harvard is the eastern center. The clinic for atypical children, one of the outstanding educational projects in this part of the country, has also drawn a heavy enrollment.

LAND OFFER REFUSED

Announcement Produces Big Stir In Commons As Crisis Grows

By CHARLES P. NUTTER
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)
LONDON, July 1.—(AP)—Captain Anthony Eden revealed to the house of commons today that Premier Mussolini of Italy had refused an offer by Great Britain to give Ethiopia a slice of British territory in an effort to facilitate a final settlement of the dispute between Ethiopia and Italy. The minister for league of nations, recently returned from conversations in Rome and Paris, was heard by packed galleries.

Mussolini Proves Stubborn
Captain Eden told the legislators he did his utmost to interest Il Duce in the British proposal for a peaceful solution of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute and greatly regretted that his suggestion did not recommend itself to Mussolini.

Replying to a question of George Lansbury, labor party member, as to the purpose of his trip, Eden gave a long explanation but did not reveal what future course might be taken in the Italo-Ethiopian affair.

Road to Sea Offered

He explained that the British proposal to Mussolini was that the British government should offer a strip of territory in British Somaliland to Ethiopia, giving that nation access to the sea. This, he said, was intended to facilitate such territorial and economic concessions from Ethiopia to Italy as might be involved in an agreed settlement.

He declared the British government did not ask concessions in return for this arrangement except grazing rights for their tribes in such territory as might be ceded to Italy. Eden explained he told Mussolini of the British government's great concern over the turn events were taking and that the attitude of the British was not egotistical nor dictated by the British interests in Africa but was made because of membership in the league of nations.

The minister said the British foreign policy was founded upon the league and the government could not remain indifferent to events which might profoundly affect the league's future.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(AP)—After the House had refused his request for legislation to abolish "unnecessary" utility holding companies in seven years, President Roosevelt went to work today in an effort to win by a roll call vote tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's request for legislation to abolish "unnecessary" utility holding companies by 1942 was turned down today by the house. The vote was 216 to 146 against the president's wishes.

Climaxing one of the most bitter legislative disputes in recent years, the vote was studied for its reflection on the President's present control over the House. It was not a straight-out test, however, as no roll call vote was taken. Administration supporters contended more votes for the president would have been obtained if a record had been kept.
