

ETHIOPIA'S KING MAKES DRAMATIC APPEAL TO PEOPLE

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1)

man if attacked. He said Ethiopia did not desire a hegemony and did not menace her neighbors but was mistress of her own country and would fight to the bitter end defending her integrity, independence and sovereignty.

Emperor Ready to Die

Halle Selassie declared: "Soldiers: When on the battlefield you learn the death of your beloved and respected chief, who has fallen in the defense of liberty, do not weep and do not despair but think of those who die for the fatherland as happy mortals!"

"Soldiers, traders, peasants, young and old, men and women: Unite and cooperate for the defense of the country. As in the past, women will heroically participate in the defense of the country, encouraging the soldiers and treating the wounded."

"Regardless of faiths, all will face the invader in common unity, thwarting the efforts of Italy to create discord between Christians and Mohammedans. Your sovereign, now speaking, will be among you unhesitatingly to spill all his blood for independence!"

At the close of the speech, the Somali chief of the Omdurman province rose up and spoke in Arabic, translated into Amharic, Ethiopia's state language, pledging his loyalty and the loyalty of his people to Halle Selassie and promising in the name of all Mohammedans their faithfulness and their willingness to fight to the last man.

He shouted: "Long live the emperor and Ethiopia!"

The Coptic Christian archbishop, Abouna Kyriolos, the head of the Ethiopian church, solemnly preached to the assembly, admonishing unity in the defense of the country. He told his listeners not to fear death and assured them that God was with the Ethiopians.

BREVITIES

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1)

with the board after the supreme court had decided the case in favor of the United States government, to pay the salary and expenses of the master in chancery who heard much of the testimony involved in the suit. The claim included $15,000 salary and $8,000 expenses, of which the federal government agreed to pay one-half.

SALEM, July 18.—(AP)—A plea for a capitol building "with respect for the future," and not a "log cabin capitol at a cost of $250,000," was voiced by Governor Martin, speaking before members of the Salem Rotary club.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(AP)—Both Oregon senators, Charles McNary and Frederick Steiwer, cast their ballots against the price-fixing amendment yesterday during the senate consideration of the AAA measure.

PORTLAND, July 18.—(AP)—A conference of city officials and representatives of schools, the state labor commission, recreational organizations and other groups was to be held today at the instance of Circuit Court Judge L. P. Gilbert, who yesterday declared himself against the appearance of child entertainers in beer parlors.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 18.—(AP)—Miss Nora Lunt's record-breaking dash from Southampton, England, was turned into a somewhat leisurely and long-drawn-out honeymoon today aboard the tramp British steamer Indiana. Miss Lunt alighted from a plane here yesterday, was met by Captain Paul J. Hunter and proceeded with the tie that binds.

PORTLAND, July 18.—(AP)—State and federal court rulings were cited in a communication made public by Frederick H. Schmalz of Portland in an effort to show that Governor Charles H. Martin, because of his position as a pensioned major general of the United States army, is not eligible to hold public office.

PORTLAND, July 18.—(AP)—It may take a sworn statement before a notary public to make anyone believe it but Frank Wirt insists it is true. He says he was fishing recently on Lake Wauna along with sundown when his No. 7 bucket fly was caught in midair by a swooping night hawk. He also says he landed the bird safely and added it to his collection of swallows and brown bats caught on previous similar occasions.

SALEM, July 18.—(AP)—Funds sought by the state to investigate the desirability and location of proposed storage tanks for four irrigation districts can not be obtained from the reconstruction finance corporation, Governor Martin was informed today by Frank J. Kennan of that organization.

SALEM, July 18.—(AP)—Frank C. McCulloch, public utilities commissioner, was called to Los Angeles today by the serious illness of his mother.

SALEM, July 18.—(AP)—A city passenger bus was tipped over in a collision with a car driven by Imogene Miltonberger of Independence here late yesterday, resulting in injuries to two persons.

PORTLAND, July 18.—(AP)—Five youths arrested for questioning concerning the reputed attempt to kidnap 13-year-old Nelva McCreary Monday night had been released today and police apparently were no nearer than ever to the solution of the mystery.

PORTLAND, July 18.—(AP)—Harlee Branch assistant postmaster general, was elected by the Portland chamber of commerce yesterday as having told Senator Charles McNary (R., Ore.), that the postoffice department frowns on the proposed extension of airmail service from Spokane to Yakima to Portland.

MEDFORD, Ore., July 18.—(AP)—The body of Fred Spranger, 46, a miner, drowned in the Rogue river March 27 when he fell off a raft, was found today lodged on a cable, Harold Cameron made the discovery.

PORTLAND, July 18.—(AP)—W. C. T. U. headquarters announced today that Corvallis public schools have been awarded the Buland silver cup for 1935 for having the largest percentage of students participating in the annual alcohol education essay and poster contest conducted by the union. Last year the cup was won by Roseburg. Brewster Smith, senior in Corvallis high school, won first state prize in the essay contest, and Gay Babas of Roseburg high, won first in the poster contest.

MARSHFIELD, Ore., July 18.—(AP)—A meeting to discuss the uniting of the two Coos bay cities—Marshfield and North Bend—has been scheduled for the city hall here Monday night. City officials from both towns are to attend. The proposal city, which sponsors of the project believe would be called Coos Bay, would include about 12,000 persons.

GENERAL

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 18.—(AP)—Almea Semple McPherson, noted evangelist, today spurned the invitation of korine, "Daughter of the Sun," to visit the nudist colony at the California Pacific International Exposition. Mrs. McPherson honored at "Almea Semple McPherson Day" here, said she had "never possessed any curiosity regarding a nudist camp" and that reports she was to meet Zorine, nudist leader, at tea were false.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(AP)—The administration's bill to prevent the filing of damage suits growing out of dollar devaluation was passed by the house today and sent to the senate.

BERENI, July 18.—(AP)—Max Schmeling still is undecided whether to fight Max Baer or Joe Louis in New York in September. Furthermore, the matter will not be settled until Joe Jacobs, the German heavyweight's manager, returns to New York next week.

COMPANY ORDERS IS EXPLANATION

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

(Associated Press Staff Writer)
WASHINGTON, July 18.—(AP)—Testimony that an official of the Associated Gas and Electric company, soon after the senate lobby investigation was ordered, instructed his subordinate to get rid of all records in connection with their campaign against the utilities bill was received today by the lobby committee.

E. W. O'Brien, Erie, Pa., Associated official, said he had been directed by U. E. Beach, manager of the securities department of Associated at Ithaca, N. Y., to dispose of his records. He said he placed them in a wastebasket. Immediately, O'Brien added, he told all his branch offices to get rid of their records.

"Did Beach say to you that the company was going to destroy every record it had everywhere in the United States in connection with the Wheeler bill?" asked Chairman Black. "I don't remember," was the reply. O'Brien said Beach told him "we had no longer use of our legislative records—that we were through with utility legislation work."

R. P. Herron, bond salesman of Warren, Pa., who sent several hundred telegrams to members of congress against the legislation, said he had "burned" his records after O'Brien had told him there was to be an investigation and he should clear out his files.

O'Brien said the original campaign against the Wheeler-Rayburn dissolution bill was arranged at a conference of his company's security managers from 26 states at Ithaca.

PROF. ERB TALKS ON BUSINESSMEN AND ECONOMISTS

While businessmen and economist frequently appear to have different points of view, when problems are analyzed and discussed, the two more frequently find themselves with the same viewpoint, Donald Erb, professor of economics and sociology at Stanford university, told members of the Eugene Active club at their noon meeting Thursday.

Mr. Erb is associated with the summer school faculty at the University of Oregon this season and for five years prior to 1933 was an instructor at the university.

Discussing "Economists and the Business Man," Mr. Erb pointed out that while many businessmen were inclined to "indict the academic economist as a theorist," as a matter of fact economic theory is merely a generalized statement of economic fact.

"The economist looks at problems from a broad, national viewpoint, but is nevertheless practical in his consideration of everyday problems," the speaker said. As an example, he said that by and large, economist probably would say they were in favor of free trade whereas any economist fully realizes the practical value of protection for an industry.

The close relationship between the economist and the business man was stressed by the speaker in pointing out that many economists had been successful in business and many businessmen had turned economists. Nearly every great industry looks to the trained economist to solve many of its problems, some employing them on their staff and others using them on a contractual basis, he said.

Mr. Erb stressed the fact that economy was not an exact science and decided the occasional economist who "sticks out his neck" by making definite predictions or statements about things which cannot be known. He cited some of the "braintrusters" in the present national administration as examples of this type of economist.

Bunyan, Babe Are Honored at Great Loggers' Festival

BRAINARD, Minn., July 18.—(AP)—Paul Bunyan, legendary lumberjack king of the northern woods who was born with five storks working overtime to still the hero of the northwest.

Long-headed businessmen and heavy-booted followers of Paul Bunyan tales gathered here today to honor the patron saint of the lumber camps. The heart of the Minnesota lake and forest country where Paul became America's greatest legendary figure will be the scene of a three-day festival commemorating the hero of all lumberjacks.

Paul's life as told and sung and added to be countless 'lacks around the lumber camps surpasses that even of Russia's Baron Munchausen. Born in the winter of the famous blue snow, Paul was wearing his father's clothes within a week. When he went to school his slate was a hillside slab of limestone and his pencil a great white pine.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

When Paul turned to logging his inseparable companion was Hebe, the blue ox, who measured seven ex-handles across the eyes. Babe would drag a whole section of land to the loggers and then complain because there was no work to do. The trees, lumberjacks say, were so tall it took two men to see the top—one looking as far as he could see and the second starting there and peering to the peak.

ZIMMERMAN URGED TO RESIGN FROM BOARD OF GRANGE

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1)

Oregon state grange should sign a petition for the pardon of such a character as the said L. A. Banks.

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, that Bellevue grange, No. 759, go on record as condemning the acts of Peter Zimmerman, and Albert Slough, and, be it resolved that the Bellevue grange favor their resignation as members of the executive committee of the Oregon state grange."

The Bellevue grange is located in the Ashland district of this county, and has a large membership. G. Edwin Dunn is the grange master.

Detainer to Doom Waley Parole Hope

SEATTLE, July 18.—(AP)—Harmon Metz Waley faced 45 years in prison today without hope of parole, an official source revealed, because department of justice urged the filing of a Washington state detainer against the confessed Weyerhaeuser kidnaper. The source said that department of justice agents shortly before his wife, Mrs. Margaret Thulin Waley, was convicted in Tacoma, told Garfield Davis, parole officer, that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

that they desired him to file the detainer.

Workers' Party Is Planned By Foster

MOSCOW, July 18.—(AP)—A plan to build a workers' party in the United States was outlined today by William Z. Foster, once communist candidate for president of the United States, in an article in the magazine, "Communist International." He said the party would constitute a united front of all workers and farmers desiring to break with the two major political parties and might be sufficiently organized to have a presidential candidate for the 1936 elections.

MONEY TAKEN FROM STATION

The theft of $40.07 from the cash drawer of the service station at Sixth and Olive street was reported to city police Wednesday night. The attendant in charge said he had left the station for a brief period to have a bill changed at a nearby cafe, and when he returned he found the front torn from the money till under the counter. No evidence was found leading to the identity of the thief.

RUBBISH CAUSES FIRE

A small pile of rubbish was the cause of a slight blaze at the corner of 15th and Villard Thursday morning. Firemen were called, and the fire was extinguished quickly.

Numerous high towers have been erected throughout Russia for training in parachute jumping.

There is one automobile to every six persons in the United States.

3-C Expansion Plan Bulges Enlistment

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(AP)—The civilian conservation corps announced today that its expansion program, commenced June 15, has resulted in enrollment of 83,354 new men. The total number of men in forest and park camps included the CCC, Indians in camps of Indian reservations and residents of Hawaii, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and Alaska was 404,000 as of July 13, the report said. State enrollments since June 15 included Oregon 1,141, California 3,600, Idaho 643, Washington 1,929.

Two Die in Train Collision at Pasco

PASCO, Wash., July 18.—(AP)—An engineer and a transient were killed and 12 persons were injured 27 miles east of here last night in a head-on collision that telescoped the engines of a freight and local Northern Pacific passenger train. The dead were Stanley Covam, about 60, Pasco, engineer of the passenger; Fred Sladson, Portland, transient, who lived half an hour in the wreckage.

MR. JACKSON HERE

Ralph Jackson, formerly of this

READY MIXED EARWIG BAIT

Stearns' DRUGS

city, now in Salem with the industrial accident commission visitor here Thursday.

MR. WALSH ON COMMISSION
Haymond Walsh, state legislator, was in the coast and business over Thursday.

GETS BOUNTY
The first bounty given by county clerk's office since 1934 given, Thursday, Floyd Dandene, once, bringing in a coyote bounty.

RETURNS FROM BOUNTY
Dr. C. L. Schaefer returned Wednesday from Long Beach where he attended the Pacific society convention.

The United States contains 97 percent of the world's light bulbs.

Expert Film
Developing and Printing
Kuykendall Drug Co.
870 Will.

Westinghouse
Refrigerators

Rubenstein
FURNITURE COMPANY

Double YOUR MONEY BACK IF YOU DON'T AGREE

FRANZ' Milwaukee Rye BREAD
is the best rye bread you've ever tasted

We've discovered a process that enables us to bring you that famous "Milwaukee Rye" flavor that is unbeatable in rye bread. FRANZ' Milwaukee Rye contains the most select ingredients, scientifically balanced and blended, then hearth-baked.

The true rye flavor in FRANZ' Milwaukee Rye bread can best be obtained by baking it in large two-pound loaves. The two-pound loaf, for your convenience, is then sliced into two generous pound loaves, and is immediately wrapped in cellophane to seal in its freshness.

The NEW OPEN END loaf enables you to actually see the unmatched deliciousness, the freshness, the texture, the quality of FRANZ' Milwaukee Rye before you buy. Try it and you'll serve no other rye bread. Toasts perfectly!

FRANZ' MILWAUKEE RYE

FOR PICNICS • LUNCHES • SUMMER SUPPERS

DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!
If you don't agree with the best rye bread you have ever tasted, write a note telling why and mail it to us with the unused half in its original wrapper. We will send you twice what you paid for the loaf. This offer is good until and including Saturday, July 27, 1935.

Accept our Invitation
Serve half of this delicious new loaf in any way you wish. If you don't agree it's the best rye bread you have ever tasted, write a note telling why and mail it to us with the unused half in its original wrapper. We will send you twice what you paid for the loaf. This offer is good until and including Saturday, July 27, 1935.

CLEARANCE!

Spring and Summer Shoes

Burch's regular semi-annual Clearance Sale is in full swing—Buy now and save—Good styles, expert fitting.

Burch Shoe Co.

McDONALD THEATRE BLDG.—1032 Willamette

3RD BIG WEEK Summer Sale!

GENUINE SAVINGS!

Eugene's outstanding bargain event gives you a money saving opportunity to buy now for fall. Values that you cannot hope to duplicate in the near future. Read below for a few of our Specials.

Men's Suits

Marked Down to Sell
In 4 Price Groups

$14<sup>85</sup> $19<sup>85</sup>
$24<sup>85</sup> $27<sup>85</sup>

MEN'S SLACKS

New Styles! All Values!
Regular $5.00 to $7.50
Now $4.25 to $6.25

Artistic and Manhattan
SHIRTS

In Two Low Price Groups
Buy Now for Fall

Reg. $1.65 Reg. $2.00
Now $1.35 Now $1.55

DE NEFFE'S

McDonald Theatre Bldg.