McLemore's Sport Parade

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, July 30.—(U.P.)—The Cubs of Chicago, who through the years have packed as much fire, brains, and ability as any team in baseball, are on the loose again and in the midst of a mid-summer drive which has lifted them from nowhere to a menacing position in the National league.

Nine and one-half games out of first place on the Fourth of July, the Cubs, with 23 wins out of 25 games, rocketed out of third to overhaul the St. Louis Cardinals and establish themselves, temporarily, at least, as the club the New York Giants must beat in the dusty run down toward October and the world series.

Today the Cubs stood but 1½ games from the pace-setting Giants, and the eastern customers were asking why and how. Manager Charlie Grimm has advanced no reason for his team's resurrection, but the reasons are fairly obvious.

For one thing, it is now Grimm's ball club. He's not only the manager, but a vice-president as well, and what he says goes. It hasn't always been thus. Before Grimm was a vice-President, and when William Walker was president, things often happened to the club that Grimm knew nothing about. There was that trade of Camilli for Don Hurst, for example. Grimm learned of that transaction when reporters queried him while he was enoying the world fair one night.

There was the question of Chuck Klein's sore leg, for another. It was Grimm's opinion that Chuck, even though he could not play, should report to the ball yard each afternoon and sit on the bench in uniform. Chuck, acting on orders from higher up, often did not come to the park.

The Cubs this year are a young team, and a young team hustles. Gone are most of the old veterans who sold their names, and little more, to the Cubs for fancy prices. For years the Chicago team was a sanctuary for players who demanded—and got—the fanciest salaries in baseball, and gave little in return.

Last winter the axe, under the direction of energetic young Phil Wrigley, began to fall. Off went Bush and Malone and Babe Herman. And Stephenson and Hurst and Phelps. And more recently, Cuyler.

They were replaced by youngsters who worked. Only Gabby Hartnett, behind the plate, and the rejuvenated Charley Root, who have been working together for a decade, are genuine veterans. When young Jimmy O'Dea is behind the plate, the Cubs' lineup list four rookies. There's Phil Cavaretta, 18, at first; Augie Galan, 24, in left, Frank DeMaree, 25, in center, and O'Dea catching. And the rest of the regulars—Billy Herman, Stanley Hack, Billy Jurges, Lon Warneke, Bill Lee, Tex Carleton, Roy Henshaw, Tuck Stainback and Larry French, are not aged veterans.
