

WPA WORK IS HELD UP BY NEW RULING REGARDING COSTS

Information given out by J. J. Karstetter, division engineer for the WPA, who was in Eugene Wednesday that the WPA will meet little if any of the cost of materials in construction projects brought plans of the Lane county planning commission and the county relief administration to a standstill Wednesday.

When the new setup was first explained a number of weeks ago it was announced that the WPA would furnish up to 45 per cent of the cost of materials on different projects. Now the planning commission and relief committee are given to understand that municipalities putting forth WPA projects cannot expect anything at all from the WPA for the cost of materials except in exceptional cases.

"The time, hours and days, which the planning commission and county relief committee have been spending in working out the proposed WPA projects seem to have been lost," O. E. Crowe, county relief administrator, declared. "Many of the projects have been sent in with the understanding that the WPA is to pay the cost of a good part of the materials but now we are told this will not be done and we are at a loss as to what steps to take next."

The construction program of many municipalities, school districts and other political sub-divisions will probably be disrupted if the announced intention of the WPA is carried into effect, Mr. Crowe pointed out. He cited Pleasant Hill union high school district as an example. The people there voted to expend 60 per cent of the cost of materials for a new gymnasium with the understanding that the WPA would furnish the rest. The amount voted was between $2500 and $3000.

half years Mr. Dyson served as postmaster at Brownsville, being appointed by President Harrison. In '97 he went to Alaska, returning in '98 to prospect in Grant and Baker counties in Oregon.

On June 27, 1887, however, he with N. B. Standish and Mr. Moore had located the Lucky Boy mine in the Blue River district in Lane county. Mr. Dyson spent much time in attempts to develop the Lucky Boy mine, writing hundreds of letters and columns of newspaper articles.

He made it his boast that in more than 40 years association with miners up and down the coast he never took a drink of liquor and did not know one drop of liquor from another.

Surviving Mr. Dyson are two daughters, Mrs. Frances Rinetoul of Oregon City and Mrs. Alta Cross of Eugene; one son, Verne Dyson of Eugene; and a niece, Miss Blanche Everett of Portland. Mr. Dyson was a member of the Baptist church and the I. O. O. F. lodge in Brownsville, also of the Rebekah lodge. He was an Odd Fellow member for more than 70 years.

Funeral services are to be held at the Veatch chapel, Friday, at 1:30 p. m. Dr. Bryant Wilson of the First Baptist church of Eugene officiating. Interment will be at Brownsville at 4 p. m.

WESTWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, Cleveland, Aug. 7.—(Special)—Youth had the edge, numerically at least, as 16 aspirants for the women's western golf championship prepared to tee off today in second round matches over this hill and dale course.

Of the 16 who won their way yesterday into the second round, only three are married, two are but 17 years old and practically all the others are in the early twenties.

Two of the youngsters, Eva Shorb of Missillon, O., and Ellamae Williams of Chicago, both 17, were to meet in today's matches, with indications their clash might prove the feature of the tournament. Miss Williams tied with Mrs. Mary K. Browne of Cleveland for medalist honors Monday with 81. Two over par, and had the same total yesterday in disposing of Eileen Wood of Detroit.

Lucille Robinson of Des Moines, Ia., the only former champion among the qualifiers was ushered out of the play, 2 and 1, by Marion McDougall of Portland, Ore., making the title fight wide open.

WALTERVILLE, Aug. 7.—(Special)—A farewell party was given Friday evening at the lower N.O.W. hall for the McArthur family as they are moving to Springfield this week end. J. D. McArthur and sons have lived at Walterville the past few years and Mr. McArthur has been employed on the highway work. He will move to Springfield where he will be closer to his work as the road crew is now stationed at Eugene. The two younger boys will be in Springfield high.

Guests for the evening included J. D. McArthur and sons Don, Neil and Lyle McArthur, his mother, Mrs. Neil McArthur, Mrs. Lloyd Current, Lillah Marjory and Ada Current, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Fountain, Ervin Fountain, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fountain, Fred and John Kiebusch, Anita Bonstein, Irene and Carl Jensen, Dorothy Sloan, Mrs. Gina Momb, Wade Schlessley, (Lowell) Billy Orr, George Drury, Dorothy and Lucille Millican, Mr. and Mrs. Joe O'Dell, Metta, Martha and Wister O'Dell, Morris Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Easton, Erma, Marvin and Nellie Easton, Malcolm Hansen, Mrs. A. A. Campbell, Martha Howard and Claude Campbell, Jesse Schweitzer, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bolley, Ted Magnusson, Ted Ashley, Mrs. Jesse Cooper and son Russell.

The local neighbors of Woodcraft met Friday evening at their hall for regular and routine business for the first meeting of the month of August. Several were present for the meeting.

After the lodge session a social hour was held with supper and visiting in honor of Mrs. Vern Caldwell who is leaving next week for Springfield. Members present were Mrs. Matt Emmerick, Mrs. Emmett Farnham, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Godard, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fountain, Ervin Fountain, Mrs. Lester Millican and Mrs. Caldwell. Special guest, Mr. Caldwell.

More than $3,000,000,000 was spent by the federal government last year in aiding the distressed by providing jobs, cash and goods.

It is estimated that there are from three to six million hay-fever sufferers in this country.

how could you be so strict when one is 10 and has big blue-gray eyes and nice long curls—red ones, too?

Scanning page one we read as headlines:

"Lost Child Still Unfound."
"Helen Husby Visiting in Portland."
"First Issue of New Weekly News."
Reading one we glean the news as follows:

"Capt. Davis of the CCC's and family returned home from California on Thurs. 25th after spending two weeks in Los Angeles and vicinity."
"Robert Blackwell has been ill for several days."
"Mrs. H. Owen was toastmaster for a family reunion held back of the Butte, Sunday."
"The two who can live cheaper together are the dog and the flea."
"We must remember that God does everything well although we may not see the reason for what he does."
"Two-year old Robert disappeared while picnicking with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Rish."
"all interspersed with course with ads (yes, ads on page one).

Looking on page two (just turn the first one over) we find more advertisements and some jokes and an item which says: "Jack Titus, son of Dr. and Mrs. Titus, is to present a model of an ox yoke the same as one used by his uncle Mr. Williams and Dan Beard when they crossed the plains to Washington D. C. with a boy scout troop and will present Mr. Beard's with the yoke while in the east."

This news plant boasts three offices. In Manager Gray's office is the typewriter and that's where we found the "gang" for the picture. Asking who was the official typist, Pressman Parker replied he was. Trying to persuade the group that room be allowed at the typewriter for Editor Grendler, we were informed by Pressman Parker:

"Why, this is our press."
"If customers flicker long enough it is possible they might get 12 issues for a nice, shiny dime—the price of a Wake Up Your Liver Bile."

Mid-West Farmers Looking to Oregon, Declares Traveler

Crops everywhere in the middle west were fine and there was but little evidence of the terrible dust storms of last year, but many of the farmers in that part of the country were anxious to learn about Oregon with a view to making a change, according to Russell Evans of Eugene who, with Mrs. Evans, has just returned from a trip of several weeks. They traveled 6200 miles.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans were in Rapid City, S. D., went through the Bad Lands in that state, visited Sioux Falls, Minneapolis, Saint St. Marie and points in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. At Lima, Ohio, Mr. Evans visited with L. M. Miller of Eugene, who is the inventor of an automobile motor and is having it manufactured there.

KUNKLE WITHDREW FROM FRIDAY

Dynamite Del Kunkle, said to be middleweight champion of the Pacific coast, will not appear today's mat card, as originally scheduled. Kunkle suffered severe bruises in his match with Tom in Portland Monday night, which kept him out because of the infection.

In place of Kunkle, Sam and Rob Roy will mix in the semi-wind-up scraps. Both won the belt, and Owen has a wind of scientific boxing.

In the semi-wind-up, Thunderer, Tiger Jensen, and tough Los Angeles fighter, in a battle that will pit Thunderer and Tiger Jensen, against the main event, over a route.

Ernie Pihase, the sensation of the Big Wind from the main event, over a route.

his private interests," Hurley testified today.

Black asked what Hurley's fee was in the case.

"You might ask Mr. Conboy (Martin Conboy, then attorney for Albert H. Wiggin) what his fee was in the case," Hurley answered.

"Do you object to answering the question?" Black asked.

"No," Hurley shouted, rising to his feet, "But I object to being called as just one."

"Do you object to answering the question?" Black interjected.

"Why do you single out a republican and don't ask any other—" Hurley began.

Black then stopped Hurley again to say that Tumulty would be the next witness.

The Associated Gas and Electric company has spent approximately $500,000 opposing the utility bill.

Both the tall Hurley and the slim Black shouted at each other. The committee chairman finally told the witness to sit down again, and he did.

"I don't know," Hurley flared, "why you should select a republican to single out—" but again Black stormed him down, shouting:

"Just a moment, just a moment, Mr. Hurley, just a moment."

"If you object to answering the questions—" Black started but Hurley in turn cut him short.

"I am a gold fish in a bowl," the witness shouted. "You can see me from any angle."

"I think you can answer the questions," Black insisted.

Hurley then said the fee to his firm for his appearance at the banking investigation was $50,000, but he emphasized that was entirely separate from the current inquiry.

Hurley reiterated he was appearing for the protection of the investors in the company and not for Hopson.

In 10 seconds more he was involved in an equally tempestuous exchange with Senator Schwelienbach (D., Wash.).

Hurley finally continued reading his testimony before the banking committee.

The next year, Hurley testified, he and his firm represented Associated before the trade commission and in other matters. The fee that year, he said, was $25,000.

Hurley then told of his services this year in connection with the utility bill, for which he received $25,000.

He explained he had merely arranged for the company to be heard before congressional committees, but had not appeared himself, and had "not spoken to any senator or representative privately about the Wheeler-Rayburn bill."

"The idea that I have been lobbying is absurd," Hurley said.

QUINCY, Mass., Aug. 7.—(Special)—A fire in the engine room of the recently launched U. S. S. Quincy was extinguished early today after a five-hour battle.
