Stories in STAMPS

GERMANY as it is today had been divided into a northern group of states, dominated by Prussia, and a southern group antagonistic to Prussian dominance, when war with France in 1870 brought these two factions together.

The clever machinations of Count Otto von Bismarck had brought about a double victory by this war—the submission of a threatening France and the union of north and south Germany into a powerful nation.

As far back as 1815, under the Congress of Vienna, the various German states had begun to feel the importance of uniting. But it took 55 years, and the ingenuity of a Bismarck, to bring this about.

In 1900, on the 26th anniversary of this event, Germany issued a series of stamps, one of which is shown below. This illustrates two allegorical figures shaking hands before a winged statue of Liberty, above the German legend, "Remain united, united."
