With Dakota Wheat Pool—
J. A. Cressley has just received by mail a small sample of the wheat that is being threshed in North Dakota. The grain is badly shriveled and looks as if it were made out of straw. Mr. Cressley says that the wheat from New Mexico is not far from Fargo. The wheat in that section made fine bread and began to head out well when the winds came along and shriveled the grain. The farmers all have government loans on their farms and the government is compelling them to thresh the wheat whether it is good or not.
