Main Street

Main Street— and by that term, I mean all the streets that go to make up our business district—might be termed the "Family Album" of our city. Here we display our characteristics and reflect the nature of our citizenry.

Eugene is fortunate in having most modern shops where merchandising is done in the modern manner. It is equally fortunate in having rather more than its share of those old-fashioned merchants who consider every customer a friend and who season every transaction with the salt of satisfaction.

In many of even our largest stores, the proprietor waits on us personally, knows our needs sometimes better than we know them ourselves. He bought it for a specific community need and he can tell you why.

He cannot advertise one thing and sell another. He knows we are going to trust his advice and so he does not buy things which will not give us satisfaction. His prices may seem higher than competitive prices in larger cities. But actually we usually pay less because we get better quality.

The local merchant is the motivating force behind every forward civic movement and when we trade with him we are dealing with a friend whose interests are one with ours in building up the community.

Next Monday, Mr. Simon of the Brantetter-Simon Funeral Home, will comment on JULY 4TH.

DUCE'S!

Elevation of Count Galeazzo Ciano to Minister of Foreign Affairs in Premier Mussolini's cabinet turns the spotlight again on the young nobleman's wife, Countess Edda, daughter of Il Duce, shown in her newest portrait. Since her marriage Ciano's rise to positions of trust in Italy's Fascist government has been unusually rapid.

WAS THIS ENGAGEMENT TO BE BROKEN, TOO?

JESSIE WAS A TERRIBLY ATTRACTIVE GIRL (THE LETTER BEGINS). SEVERAL TIMES SHE WAS ENGAGED TO PROMISING YOUNG MEN BUT HER ROMANCES HAD SHORT LIVES.

I ASKED HER MOST RECENT FIANCE, TOM, WHAT WAS WRONG. JESSIE WAS EVERYTHING TO BE DESIRED IN A WOMAN, EXCEPT JUST ONE THING! HE SAID, "AND I CAN'T TALK TO HER ABOUT THAT!"

"B.O." IS TREACHEROUS!
Thousands of letters prove it!

THOUSANDS of letters in our files are testimony that "B.O." (body odor) is the sworn enemy of romance—a big stumbling block in the path to success. We feel guard against it! They bother regularly with Lifebuoy. Its fragrance, penetrating deeper, deodorizes, sweeps "B.O." to clean scent quickly runs away.

Help romance along!
A fine, clear complexion is another good aid to romance. Keep your skin fresh, moist, lovely with Lifebuoy. It cleanses more deeply, more gently... removes those pore-clogging impurities that coarsen the skin... "Patch" gets on the skins of hundreds of women prove it's more than 20% milder than many so-called "beauty" soaps.
