

FLOOD CONTROL PROponents SEE "JOKER" IN BILL

Bankruptcy Would Threaten In the case of the county assuming responsibility for a dam, it might face bankruptcy should the dam go out, necessitating huge sums for repairs.

It was feared the joker in the bill had dashed all hope of the expenditure of $80,000 on the McKenzie for rework in the area between the blossom farm on the east and Thurston on the west, May said.

The flood control bill authorized appropriation of $2,430,000 for flood control work in this area, one-sixth of which was to be appropriated for this year. It required a political subdivision to take over the task of securing and guaranteeing right-of-way, repairing damage and doing all maintenance.

"We do not feel that the first two provisions would cause any trouble, but the provision on maintenance, we believe, actually nullifies the bill and makes it unworkable," Maxey said. As a result, it now becomes necessary to fight for a change in the bill, removing the maintenance provision and providing for some other body to take over this cost. Since that cannot be done till congress meets again it seems likely no work can be done in Lane county under the present set-up.

Long Tom Work Eyed Army engineers at Portland indicate it may be possible for some drainage work to be done in the Long Tom area where a drainage area has been established, but that would be the extent of work in this county this year.

The Willamette Valley Project committee meets in Salem July 10, at which time it is expected this matter will be taken up for discussion and a policy of future activity determined.

One possible solution which may be suggested at the project committee meeting is that the army should take over the maintenance of these projects, Maxey said. The army has the equipment and the set-up to handle such work and many believe it is the logical body for the job. The flood control program in Lane county embraces the construction of at least four main storage dams, irrigation ditches, bank reworkment work and related work. Proposed dams would be located at Westville on the Willamette, above Cottage Grove on the Coast Fork, at the Rennie site on the McKenzie and near Fern Ridge on the Long Tom. An additional Willamette site might be at Rocky Point, west of Holl Gate.

The program, as laid out by federal authorities, places flood control first, then irrigation, power and navigation. Surveys have been made for most of these sites and some surveys are now under way.

other items needed for production of the milk on the farm. The local observers state both the producer and distributor are entitled to a slight advance at this time.

Cream prices are listed as follows: Light cream, 20 to 22 per cent butterfat, 13 cents half pint, wholesale, and 15 cents retail; heavy cream, 30 to 32 per cent butterfat content, 17 cents as the wholesale price and 19 cents as the retail price. The butterfat price to producers in the Eugene territory will be raised from 53 cents a pound to 55 1/2 cents.

The new order from the state board designates distributors only. Producer-distributors here will be called into a meeting "soon after July 4," according to Paul Adams, administrator of the board. The meeting Monday was for update distributors and was held in Portland. Edgar W. Smith, chairman of the milk board, declared the system has worked splendidly in Portland and Salem and that the rest of the state is expected to have no trouble in applying the new schedule.

SALVATION ARMY REPORTS ON RELIEF

The Salvation Army's report of administration of city relief funds over the past four months was presented to the city council at its Monday night meeting. Presented by Adjutant C. Ford, the complete report is as follows:

This report covers nearly a four-month period including March, April, May and June, 1936, and includes all the relief work done for transient single men and women and families who have not been in the county one year and in the state of Oregon three years. When a grant of $400 was made by the city council to the Salvation Army to put through a program of relief for transients, which was to provide beds, meals, medical care and emergency grocery orders, etc., for all in need and willing to work for their assistance; it was understood that the Salvation Army would try to make this grant cover a period of 60 days. We are happy to state that we have cared for all applicants to date who were willing to do something in return for help given them. Some we have had in aid with medical attention which has gladly been given free of charge by friendly doctors.

We are pleased to say that we have been able to make this appropriation last four months instead of two as originally estimated. Following is the report which we present for the consideration of the council. The records of relief and expenditure are open to audit and inspection at all times at our office, Seventh avenue and Pearl street, at the Army headquarters.

Meals provided 608 beds provided 223, pairs shoes given 157, garments given 1374, families given furniture 4, grocery orders given 25, bread distributed 989, odd jobs provided 693, medical aid provided for 6 cases, publications distributed 700 (free), grand total instances relief 4096, grand total relief valuation $1090.

Should it be the pleasure of the council to have the Salvation Army carry through a similar program of relief through until Nov. 1, 1936, it is our opinion that all transient and non-resident family relief can be cared for the next four months in an amount not to exceed $350.

We appreciate the confidence placed in our organization, and assure the council on behalf of our advisory board the local corps of workers, it has been a pleasure to administer the city's relief for the past four months with the above results, in behalf of the transients and the non-resident families.

DR. HESODORFFER GIVES TALK AT ROTARY MEETING

The medical profession and other groups of practitioners were discussed in a talk given by Dr. M. B. Hesodorffer at the University Club, Tuesday evening, June 23, at the Rotary meeting. His topic being "Doctors and Education."

"Practitioners of the healing arts may in general be divided into two great groups, the medical profession and the great heterogeneous group which for want of a better term one may distinguish as the cults, a name bestowed obviously by members of the first group," Dr. Hesodorffer stated.

His listing of what groups come under the classification of "cults," however, brought a response from Dr. John Simons, local osteopath, who objected to his profession being termed with "quacks." Granting the right of courtesy to the guest speaker, however, Dr. Simons presented a short explanation following the talk, his remarks bringing hearty applause from the club members, as well as for the talk of Dr. Hesodorffer.

Medical Profession Old One. Listing characteristics, Dr. Hesodorffer pointed out the medical profession is the product of the ages, the cults being of comparatively recent origin. The cults for the most part base their entire philosophy of disease and its cure upon a single idea or phenomenon, the apparent effect at once being: The cultist is limited by the nature of his particular method, the field of medicine being limited only by the ability of scientists to pry into the secrets of the human body, the speaker said.

Entrance into the medical profession today is gained only by following a long and arduous route, the education being in the hands of established colleges and universities and the training not a commercial one. Medicine enjoys the sanction and protection of the state to a degree unknown and envied by other groups, Dr. Hesodorffer said. Due to the long training men of medicine have other aims than merely to make money, the speaker said he believed.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. George P. Winchell. Announcement was made that the club's annual installation of officers would come the first meeting in July at which time final reports of the year will be presented, too.

exercise of citizenship if they chose. L. E. Barwick, Salem, A. Schroeder of Baker, Kenneth Holman, Portland, and George S. Ryan, Seattle, were others on the morning program of speakers. The matter of a state-wide shipping and business agreement between members was discussed with views that such an arrangement would be beneficial to both the public and the funeral directors.

Elmo B. Chase, local florist, talked to the group, too, discussing the contacts between florist and undertakers and the service of both for the public.

Hugh E. Rosson, Eugene attorney, addressed the group at the luncheon meeting on "Ethics of the Funeral Profession." Several talks were given during the afternoon session, including an address by Dr. Frederick D. Stricker, secretary of the Oregon state board of health. Elections were to follow.

The convention concludes Wednesday, starting with an 8:30 a. m. breakfast meeting at the Osburn hotel. Various talks and reports from district presidents, state officers, and committees are due. Karl K. Mills of Cottage Grove is president for this district. There is to be no luncheon meeting Wednesday. Installation of officers will come Wednesday afternoon.

COAST FARMERS TO BE INSTRUCTED IN CONSERVATION ACT

For the purpose of instructing the farmers of the coast section of Lane county in the provisions of the new federal agricultural conservation act O. S. Fletcher, county agent, will be at the hotel in Florence from 10 a. m. Thursday to 5 p. m. Friday, he announced Tuesday. He will also assist the farmers of that section in filling out the work sheets that are necessary before they can receive the benefits provided for in the act.

Mr. Fletcher said that the farmers of the coast section can qualify for benefits under this act in one or all of three points and some of them may be able to qualify in other points. The three points in which they may qualify are described in a circular letter being sent out by the agent as follows:

"Grants will be made to farmers who periodically and thoroughly cultivate land for the eradication of Canadian thistles and wild morning glory, or who treat the weeds with chemicals. Fighting noxious weeds by cultivation or with chemicals will qualify for both No. 1 and No. 2 payments, just the same as planting alfalfa or any other soil conserving crop. A farmer could make any or all of his 15 per cent diversion by combating noxious weeds. Cultivation of noxious weeds must be started before July 1, and there must be an inspection before cultivation is started. The state conserving crops or soil building practices farmers can qualify for No. 2 payments by rejuvenating old perennial pastures or meadows or by planting new perennial pastures or meadows without reducing their acreage of soil depleting crops. This is of special importance in the coast section where many farmers are qualifying for such a grant.

"There is fairly definite assurance that a No. 2 payment of $2.50 per acre will be made for applying one ton or more of lime per acre before October 1, in preparation for planting legumes. If you expect to lime any land this fall, you should file a work sheet now. We expect to pool orders for lime."

Boy Hurt in Crash; Recovers at Home

Thirteen-year-old Curtis Berreman was at his home Tuesday recovering from cuts and bruises sustained early Monday evening when, blinded by the setting sun, he pedaled his bicycle into the side of a car driven by Mrs. L. R. Mayfield at the intersection of Tenth and Tyler.

He suffered severe cuts around the head and face when his head struck the wind wing on Mrs. Mayfield's car. He was taken to the Eugene hospital for emergency treatment and then removed to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Berreman, 201 Tenth avenue west. Mrs. Mayfield gave her address as 310 Eleventh avenue west.

DEMOCRATS OPEN CONVENTION; JIM FARLEY RAPS GOP

Farley rapped for order at 1:01 p. m. Eastern Daylight Time. The convention was pronounced by the Right Rev. Hugh L. Lamb, auxiliary bishop of the Catholic archdiocese of Philadelphia.

Then Farley had the convention stand for a minute "in solemn tribute to a great American, Will Rogers." Many in the jammed hall stood with lowered head, remembering in affection the many occasions when the humorist from the west had helped national conventions while away the hours with mirth and laughter.

Mayor Extends Welcome A soloist, Frederick Jacso, of the metropolitan opera, sang "The Star Spangled Banner." and Mayor S. Davis Wilson welcomed the convention to Philadelphia. A republican, Wilson said "politics was adjourned" and invited all to make themselves at home.

Farley launched into his speech with a gusto that soon had the delegates going. At his first mention of President Roosevelt's name, the delegates leaped to their feet cheering and waving flags. Again the "Happy Days" theme song sounded, but Farley showed on with his speech and the noise promptly subsided.

When the speaker declared of the republican party "you can't stamper an elephant securely chained to the picket posts of evasion and straddling," the delegates responded with a burst of whoops. His mention of Herbert Hoover went without a flutter from the floor.

Garner Gets Hand Vice-President Garner also got a burst of handclapping when his name was mentioned, with the Texans standing, waving their tea-callon hats.

Farley spoke for a half hour. At the end, there was another bowing demonstration, with flags waving to the rhythm of organ and band. It became apparent that the band now was carrying the chief momentum of the celebration, and after it had been in progress for an even half-hour, Farley pounded for order and directed the sergeant-at-arms to clear the aisles.

The romps quieted quickly, and W. Forbes Moran, secretary of the national committee, made a few routine announcements. The convention recessed at 2:38 p. m. Eastern Daylight Time, until 8 p. m. Eastern Daylight Time, tonight. At that time Senator Barkley of Kentucky will deliver the keynote address.

It was our plan to devote ourselves to the preparation of a model civil service code for Eugene which would have entailed the expenditure of a great amount of time on my part during this summer.
