A NEW ACHIEVEMENT

A GASOLINE BUILT TO GIVE MORE MILES AT Any SPEED

Louie Meyer got 14.45 miles per gallon of Gilmore gasoline in winning the Indianapolis race at 109 miles per hour... while the fifth place driver at 106 miles per hour, averaged 13.33 miles per gallon with a competitive fuel... Yes, there is a difference in gasolines!

Here's a new Red Lion gasoline, proved and improved under the most grueling conditions... right in competition with other refiners' products.

In the Indianapolis race, Louie Meyer used Gilmore... and although traveling at a greater speed than the fifth place driver (who used another brand of gasoline)... he achieved 8.4¢ better mileage. New Red Lion was created from the results achieved in such convincing tests.

Power is what makes mileage. The same winning quality in new Red Lion that makes possible miles per hour makes possible sensational miles per gallon. Take a tip from champions and use the only gasoline that has a combination of record breaking power and mileage—new Red Lion!
