GREATEST EFFORTS FOR CONSERVATION PREDICTED IN 1936

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—In a report made public today the bureau of reclamation of the department of interior said the summer of 1936 will witness greater accomplishments of emergency conservation work on the reclamation projects of the west than ever before.

An average of only 12 emergency conservation work camps were operated on nine reclamation projects throughout the summer of 1935, whereas this summer will see 34 camps on 25 projects in 13 western states.

Location Announced Camps supervised by the bureau of reclamation are located as follows: Nebraska, 2; South Dakota, 1; Arizona, 1; Colorado, 3; New Mexico, 3; Texas, 1; Wyoming, 2; Idaho, 3; Montana, 4; Nevada, 4; Oregon, 5; Utah, 2; and Washington, 3.

CCC Crews Used The construction of reservoirs and distribution systems to maintain the irrigation has cost the government hundreds of millions of dollars. To protect this investment CCC enrollees in the emergency conservation work camps on the projects are now engaged in a program of rehabilitation, the report said.

In addition to these general features of activity the camps are engaged on many specialized projects. In the state of Washington the clearing of two large reservoir areas, one at Clear creek in Yakima county and the other at Lake Kachess in Kittitas county, will be completed by fall; in Montana the rehabilitation of an important pipe line in Glacier county at Milk river is being continued.

Growth Of U.S. Neutrality Spirit Frets Ex-Allies; Germany Pleased

By MILTON BRONNER NEA Service Staff Correspondent LONDON, July 6.—Anti-American chickens are coming home to roost.

That is a pertinent fact, which is being forced upon the attention of the men who direct the foreign affairs of the big European nations and upon their top army and navy brass hats, who will have to face realities about that next war so many of them discuss, and fear.

It was a lot of fun—while it lasted—chasing the American chickens about, ruffling their feathers, yanking their tails, waiting to hear them squawk. But the fun now seems to be over. The reckoning is coming. Europeans are beginning to learn rather sadly that everything in this world has to be paid for—even American-baiting.

Belittled U. S. Battle Aid Perhaps the two chickens that most angered the United States and stirred up members of the government and of Congress were:

First—A regular playing-down of the part the American army and navy played in achieving the common victory over Germany and her allies. English and French war historians systematically belittled the American effort. Newspapers on this side of the pond entered into the game. It was taken up on the variety stage. It was echoed by the jokesmiths. For instance, that famous yarn of the American, visiting in London, who spoke of one big battle before America entered the war.

"Some fight," said he. "Some don't," replied the Cockney bitterly. And that other sweet-natured little joke: An American sailor, off one of the first contingents of war cruisers which came over to this side, enters a pub and orders a drink. "Say, miss, this beer is flat."

"What do you expect, Yank? It's been waiting for you for three years!"

War Debts Haunt Borrowers Second—The systematic refusal by all the allied powers and borrowers, except little Finland, to pay any further on the debt they owe the United States government. For instance, just the other day the state department at Washington r-minded the British Ambassador that Britain on June 15 owed an installment of something like $650,000,000. Similar notes were handed to France, Italy and other eager wartime borrowers. And still Uncle Sam got was a polite refusal. But the borrowers were not always polite. In some of the newspapers, European readers were told that "U. S." did not stand for "United States" or "Uncle Sam," but for "Uncle Snylock."

The chances are that the government and Congress are still reflecting the irritation and disillusionment of the American people, when they pass or consider passing laws, not only which will keep America out of any future wars, but will prevent Americans supplying the belligerents with money, credits or supplies. All of which is cheering news to Germany and not so good for England, France and others who fought Germany last time.

Neutrality Helped Allies In that last war neutrality America—neutral up to April, 1917—took the position that it would sell to all comers, who could pay for the goods and carry it across seas to their home ports. But as Britain and France, with their navies, had control of the sea, it soon meant that only the Allies could buy in the American market and that Germany and her allies were defi-

LUMBER SHIPMENTS NEAR OUTPUT MARK

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—Shipments of lumber almost equalled production for the week ended June 27, figures released by the National Association of Lumber Manufacturers showed today. It was the first time in eight weeks that deliveries made such a favorable comparison, the increase being attributed partly to expectations of an advance in freight rates beginning June 30.

For the 11th consecutive week, however, new business ran behind output. Production for the 554 mills reporting, 5 per cent less than in the preceding week when 586 mills reported, was 232,951,000 feet of hardwoods and softwoods combined, a decrease of 2 per cent compared with the preceding week's production of 233,344,000 feet.

Shipments aggregated 232,522,000 feet, 2 per cent below output, but 10 per cent above the previous week's figure of 220,016,000 feet. New orders totaled 228,149,000 feet, 10 per cent below output and 6 per cent below the preceding week's total of 241,574,000 feet. Production for the week was at 71 per cent of the 1920 weekly average, while shipments were at 73 per cent of the average 7 years ago. Figures for the week again were considerably above a 50 per cent production showing a 50 per cent gain, shipments 48 per cent and new orders 48 per cent. Operations in the 1935 week were curtailed somewhat by the western strike.

In 1926, the attorney general of Hungary instituted a censorship of crossword puzzles.
