Stories in STAMPS

RUSSIA lost one of its greatest writers and supporters when Maxim Gorki died recently, at the age of 68. As fiery as was his pen for the cause of the Soviet, so embittered was his own life. Orphaned at 5, he fought through years of privation and sickness, until, at the age of 19, he sent a bullet into one lung. Saved by an operation, he began anew to educate himself by prodigious reading, and to spread his bitter thoughts in writing.

Thus, born Alexis Maximovitch Pleshkov, he assumed the name of Maxim Gorki, "Maxim, the Bitter," and began writing on behalf of the oppressed.

When the revolution broke out in 1917, he supported it ardently and soon became the literary mouthpiece for the Soviet cause. So greatly was he admired in Russia that his birthplace of Nizhni Novgorod was renamed Gorki, a gigantic plane was named for the writer, and his books were sold to his countrymen by millions.

In 1932, Russia issued a stamp portraying Gorki and honoring him for his 40 years of literary activity.

Forecasts of abatement of drought and heat were fulfilled but to a relatively slight extent, the promised relief seeming to have spent its force chiefly before reaching the grain belt proper. ALFONSO AND PRETTY PAL!

His attentiveness to gorgeous Marta Rocafort, young Havana society girl and model, has stirred the curiosity of New Yorkers about the divorce and annulment proceedings of Alfonso, Count of Covadonga, ex-heir to the Spanish throne, and his commoner bride, Edelmira Sampedro of Cuba. Despite Alfonso's avowal that he never will remarry, he and Senorita Rocafort have been seen together frequently in New York, one occasion being recorded above.

ANOTHER KANSAN!

By nominating Earl Browder, the Communist party gave Kansas two presidential candidates from within its borders, the other being Governor Alf M. Landon, Republican standard bearer, of course. Browder, fist clenched in the leftist salute, stands beside the Kansas standard at the Communist convention in New York. James W. Ford, Alabama Negro, was named for the vice presidency.

Prof. Pierre Devaux, of Paris, has suggested that the vast honey-comb of old underground quarries that underlie the city be used for air-raid shelters in case of war.
