

U. S. WARNS SPAIN ON YANKS' RIGHTS

there had been no seizures of American property in Madrid except for a number of automobiles. Most of these, he said, subsequently were returned.

By REYNOLDS PACKARD (Copyright 1936 by United Press) WITH THE SPANISH REBELS, Advance Guard, Guadarrama Mountains—(By Courier to Burgos and Hendaye.)—The loyalists have begun a big attack in the mountainous area in the San Rafael area, in an apparent effort to cut off the rebel right wing.

The loyalists, youngsters in overalls and corduroy trousers, streamed down a mountain slope onto the tiny summer resort of San Rafael, to be mowed down like tenpins by rebel regular infantry and artillery, reinforced by blue-shirted Fascists and village volunteers.

The loyalists are effective principally with their airplanes, big three-engine bombers mostly, which are doing serious damage with 110 pound bombs.

I reached San Rafael as the attack started. It was a surprise. It started when the village was celebrating a fiesta. Suddenly rifle and artillery fire rained down on San Rafael. At once the village became a fortress.

Townfolk in slippers, trousers and white shirts ran out of their homes with rifles and double-barreled shotguns and took their places along the line of fire with the khaki uniformed fighting men.

As bullets were nicking our automobile and shells were whizzing the air overhead, a captain ordered us to halt and we spent four hours watching the fight. Most of the time I was lying in the dust or peering over a makeshift parapet of tanks, trucks, sand bags and stone fences.

A soldier next to me was shot through the shoulder. Stretcher bearers, wearing white caps with red crosses on them, brought up a Fascist whose jugular vein had been severed by a bullet. Blood gushed down his throat. Another Fascist standing there cried: "Oh God! My brother!" and hugged the wounded man who died in his arms.

It reminded me of the stories of the minute men in our American revolution to see some volunteers arrange mattresses on balconies of homes to use as breastworks from which to fire on the mountains. Others manned guns from behind chimneys.

Two days of observation in the active sectors of the front has convinced me the loyalists are superior in the air. But the rebels have much stronger artillery, apparently. The rebels remain confident and assure me they will take Madrid before the end of the week.

GARNER PIPES UP IN TEXAS SPEECH

prior to the recent democratic primary election.

"Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Farley endorsed Governor Lehman of New York, so why shouldn't the vice-president endorse a man down here in Texas?"

Referring to the condition of business in general, he invited his 2,000 listeners to look at statements of two large Dallas banks and compare those of July 1933, and July, 1936. His audience cheered.

The ruddy, white-haired speaker described President Roosevelt as "a wonderful chap."

"He has one of the biggest hearts ever put in a man's breast," he continued. "I had an agreement with the chief in 1933 that he was to do all the talking and I would do all the work."

of the world. One of the assistants requested me to return in the afternoon for a private interview as Father Coughlin was gone that morning.

"Father Coughlin's office force gives me the impression of the immensity of his work. I was informed that the office force at the present time consisted of only 50 young ladies. At one time 100 stenographers are employed in answering mail. After one radio talk one million letters were received by the famous Detroit radio priest.

"Father Coughlin informed me that he planned on speaking in two California cities during the latter part of August. When I informed him that we could not hear him on the radio on Sunday afternoons, he replied that the only loud-speaker that he had in Oregon was Del Baker of the Detroit Tigers," Father Leipzig stated.

During the visit in Detroit, Father Leipzig visited M. H. (Dad) Butler, track coach and athletic trainer at the University of Detroit. Formerly "Dad" Butler held similar positions at Oregon State college for a number of years. "Dad" Butler is a familiar person to many Oregonians. Special greetings were sent to William "Bill" Hayward of the University of Oregon through Father Leipzig.

On the return trip to Oregon Father Leipzig spent one day attending the national convention of Catholic Charities being held in Seattle. The opening day on Sunday witnessed St. James cathedral in Seattle completely filled with delegates from every section of the United States and Seattle people. Archbishop E. D. Howard of Portland opened the convention with pontifical high mass in the presence of two archbishops, 12 bishops, and a large gathering of priests.

Father Leipzig on his trip went first to Seattle on the Pacific coast fire chiefs' special train to attend the Pacific Coast Fire Chiefs' convention, July 20-22. On the special train were the international president, Charles J. Brennan, fire chief of San Francisco, and the international secretary, Jay W. Stevens, fire marshal of California.

During the three day convention at Seattle, Wash., Father Leipzig spoke to the assembled fire chiefs. Following the convention the entire delegation of fire chiefs spent a day visiting Victoria, B. C. Returning from Seattle on Thursday evening, the special train of fire chiefs, augmented by Oregon and Washington delegates, proceeded to Toronto, Canada, for the International Fire Chiefs' meeting. Enroute the delegates stopped briefly at Spokane, Glacier Park, Montana, the Twin Cities in Minnesota, and Chicago. At these various places they were entertained by the fire chiefs.

Father Leipzig has taken an active part in the fire prevention work on the coast during a number of years.

Six years ago he was made an honorary fire chief of the state of Oregon at a state meeting held in Corvallis. The presentation was made by Jay W. Stevens, formerly engaged in fire work in Portland.

MARSHFIELD, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Fishermen and campers found a large share of southwestern Oregon virgin forests closed to entry today under order from Governor Charles Martin. Permits must be obtained to trek through the restricted area. The increasing fire hazard gave rise to the order.

PORTLAND, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The flax industry in the United States "is worth $100,000,000 annually and the Willamette valley can raise all the flax necessary for the industry," Walter Shuholm, state labor director of the Works Progress Administration, told a civic club here. In commenting on the WPA, Shuholm said the original registration of 21,000 had dropped to 13,000.

KLAMATH FALLS, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Heat appeared on the weather menu for today after electrical and rain storms which visited the Klamath country late yesterday. Lightning set four fires in timber west of here, but they were quickly controlled by the Klamath Forest Protective association. Reports from Bonanza this morning were that the grass fire which has burned over about 2000 acres in that valley is now well under control. The blaze destroyed considerable fence and is reported to have burned barns on the Scott and Dearborn ranches.

PORTLAND, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The asserted "backfire" built up by "colleges, churches and others" holding American business to be predatory and greedy and "opposed to the general welfare" drew a sharp attack from Harper Sibley, president of the United States chamber of commerce. Addressing a meeting of the Portland chamber, Sibley said the institutions miss the fact that American business

PORTLAND, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The Portland fire department does the chores regardless. Latest demand of the taxing personnel called for the rescue of a canary. Fireman Justice delivered. He crawled over a two-inch plank between apartment houses to return a bird which had gone missing. The doors to its new abode were found locked and the buildings were too close together for a ladder. Hence the acrobatics.
