book, "Hore lies Thomas", author of the Declaration of Independence, of the statute for freedom in Virginia, and of the University of Virginia."

STRIKING ACCESSORY SET IN EASY
LAURA WHEELER CROCHET

Service" stripes of a serviceable sort are these of a smartly stitched beret and bag set. It's the easiest crocheted imaginable, just a crocheted and chain stitches, those eye-catching stripes done in so that the second thread need not be carried through. The bag set to grasp because of its padded roll top. Use two colors of the gumption, and trim the beret with a ribbon band. Pattern 1272 gives directions for making the set shown; illustrations of it and the stitches used; material requirements.
Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern and pattern card. Write plainly PATTERN NUMBER, your NAME and ADDRESS.

Black Satin Heralds Autumn Smartly, Gives Relief From Prints

BEIGE TOUCHES
ARE BETTER
THAN WHITE

(From Bonwit Teller, New York)

By MARIAN YOUNG
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—Higher waistlines, tight bodices sensibly exaggerated shoulders and other very full of extremely slim, straight skirts are the style points for you to keep in mind when you look for a street dress to replace the pastel cottons and floral prints you have been wearing all summer.
Black satin dresses (always high style for August and September) are lovelier than ever. The sleek fabric lends itself admirably to form-fitting bodices with full, shorter skirts, to tunics that flare over tight skirts as well as to simply tailored, buttoned themes. Black satin, trimmed with beige is newer than black with white. Later on, you are going to see dull, dark red and rich, deep green touches on black dresses.

Hats (and it's high time you got rid of your straw ones) are definitely on the up and up. Whether you get a toque or coronation red or wine velvet or a brimmed affair of felt or velour, it will be high-crowned. If not, it will be trimmed with birds or feathers that stick straight upward and give the illusion of height.

You ought to have two sets of accessories to wear with your first dark street dress. For shopping and strictly informal occasions, consider a small hat of felt or belting ribbon, calfskin bag and shoes and rather loose, hand-stitched gauntlets. For smart luncheons and more formal hours, change to an antelope or velvet beret (maybe a two-colored one), tight-fitting kidskin gloves (these are making news) and a dressier bag of calfskin or one of antelope.
For a change now and then, take the collar off your dark dress and wear white china beads or white pearls.

The lovely black satin dress, shown here at the left, is cut on Princess lines that accentuate the bust and waistline, has covered buttons all the way down the front and a stitched collar of beige satin.
The sleeves are fullish at the shoulders and tight at the wrists. The skirt is flared at the front.
The tunic dress (right) also has a built-up waistline, exaggerated shoulders and tight cuffs. The skirt is straight and slim. The over-bustle flares at the bottom. Note the softly gathered neckline, the white china beads and the hat which gives a definite impression of height. This is the kind of frock which will see you through August and September in the smartest possible manner.
