Suit Doesn't Alarm Unemployment Group

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 21.—(U.P.)—The State Unemployment Compensation commission today refused to become alarmed at a suit filed in Jackson county circuit court by southern Oregon fruit packing plants. D. A. Bulmore, administrator of the law, said he did not believe constitutionality of the entire jobless insurance act was questioned by the suit, but merely the exemption of packing house employes as agricultural workers was sought.

SATURDAY'S BILLS

McDONALD — "To Mary—With Love" and "I'd Give My Life." (Friday evening, "Satan Met a Lady" and "The Devil Doll").

HEILIG—"Cimarron." (Friday evening, "All Quiet on the Western Front").

STATE—"The Texas Rambler" and "Take the Stand." (Friday evening, same program).

MAYFLOWER — "Another Face" and "Avenging Waters." (Friday evening, same program).

REX — "Under Two Flags" and "The Singing Kid." (Friday evening, same program).

"Cimarron," the epic picture of the southwest, starring Richard Dix, Irene Dunne, and Estelle Taylor, appears on the Heilig screen Saturday. The story of a typical pioneer family, the picture is centered around the opening of the Staked Plains to settlers, the race to secure the best lands, and the subsequent building of a new state. Critics have hailed the picture as one of Dix's finest performances, with Irene Dunne lending fine support in the role of his wife.

To the McDonald for a run of four days comes "To Mary—With Love," starring Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy, and "I'd Give My Life," with Tom Brown, Frances Drake and Sir Guy Standing. "To Mary—With Love" is based on the widely discussed novel by Richard Sherman, and is a vital drama of modern marriage. In the second feature, Tom Brown plays the part of the youth convicted of murder because he will not reveal the motive for the crime, in an effort to protect the ones he loves.

At the State, Bill Cody provides harum-scarum action, with plenty of gun-play, spills, fist fights, and runaway horses to keep the "Texas Rambler" always on the move. "Take the Stand," featuring Jack LaRue as a radio scandal monger who finally meets with his just desserts, with Thelma Todd in the supporting role, is the other feature.

Claudette Colbert and Ronald Colman, with the beautiful Rosalind Russell helping things along, make the Rex screen live with the daring and exploits of the French Foreign Legion in "Under Two Flags." Al Jolson sings Mammy songs with Cab Calloway's helping in "The Singing Kid," the co-feature.

The Mayflower screen has a double bill, which pairs "Another Face" and "Avenging Waters." In the former Brian Donlevy and Phyllis Brooks paint a picture of Hollywood with a masquerading gangster in its midst. Flaming six-guns and the roar of a river in flood lend spice to the performance of Ken Maynard in the latter picture.
