The chapel is expected to attract considerable attention during the "open house" and dedication Saturday and Sunday.

BROWN'S MYSTERY PUZZLE TO COURT

for some of his testified wealth, or going to jail, Brown went back to jail.

On the witness stand, Brown told about a mysterious mining company which had him on a retainers fee for the British empire, to do nothing except be on call, but which did not exclude him from working in other countries. The district attorney asked for the name of this company. Said Brown:

"It's nobody's business but my own and the syndicate."

Brown testified that his home address is the Savoy hotel, London, England, and that he arrived in Portland in February. He there found a man with an invention for utilizing the waste in lumber mills, and he got himself a job on the commission basis selling this invention, he said.

He came to Eugene July 16, according to his story, and contacted a Lane county lumber company. He said that he only came for a short business trip but that he had received so much encouragement from mill owners here he decided to remain. He first stayed at a rooming house on East Broadway, and left there leaving a debt of $1.

Brown then went to the Sibley home on East Eleventh, on July 24, and according to testimony, promised Mrs. Sibley that he would pay her Tuesday as he was expecting a remittance from Portland.

Brown's letter with his money did not arrive and in explanation in the court room, presented a lengthy description of his movements and how his letters failed to reach him on time.

He ran up a $10 board bill, and left the Sibleys to register at the Eugene hotel. According to Mrs. Sibley's testimony, Brown left a package at her place which he never reclaimed. She said that when she asked him for her money, "he abused me terribly and told me to keep my mouth shut." W. M. Sibley and Fred Dobrockovski also testified, and said that Brown had mentioned his great wealth many times and implied a connection with the company.

Questioned by District Attorney L. L. Ray, Brown admitted that he owed a number of small bills in town, about $10 to a public stenographer at the Eugene hotel, about $30 to the Eugene hotel, $6.50 to the Paul D. Green store, and about $10.70 to Jo's Place for meals, and about $17.40 to a public stenographer in Portland before coming to Eugene.

F. Edward Brown, middle-aged and bewhiskered, was indirectly drawn into his present plight by his publicized efforts to discuss matrimony with a Kansas City widow who wrote Portland's Mayor Carson. Mrs. Sibley recognized his picture in The Register-Guard and caused his arrest.

The so-called "French" telephone was invented in the United States by Robert G. Brown in 1880.

HIGHWAY ENGINEER LOOKS AT ROUTE F

Oscar Cutler, assistant office engineer of the state highway department, was taken over the newly constructed grade of the "Route F" highway between Linslaw and the summit of the mountain by members of the county court Friday.

Mr. Cutler was coming to Eugene on official business and the trip to "Route F" was not on his schedule, but members of the court who had planned the trip to Camp Lane induced him to accompany them.

Inasmuch as this route is expected to be taken over some day as the main highway from Eugene to the coast, the county officials wanted the engineer to see first hand what has been done in the way of construction and to show him the advantages of this route over others.

The party was expected to return to Eugene late this afternoon.

How to Find those Missing Long Tall Drinks

Every time you make one of your favorite long tall drinks you miss one. You miss another of the same sure-quenching quality but with a smart, new taste difference. The recipe is the same but instead of the Old Mr. Boston Distilled Dry Gin you like so well, you make it with Old Mr. Boston Sloe Gin. Not regularly, of course. That would be treason to a faithful friend but just occasionally for a change and an extra choice. You'll like its unusual taste, its winey tang . . . not tart, not sweet . . . but grand for those record breaking hot days. Try it tonight. You already have the lemons, sugar, ice and ginger ale or charged water. Stop in for a bottle of Old Mr. Boston Sloe Gin tonight and find yourself a whole line-up of new drinks to companion the old favorites. Ben Burk, Inc., Boston, Mass.
