Wheeler and Woolsey At State on Thursday

Time was when all movie Indians spoke with a suspicious Brooklyn accent and proved, when the make-up was removed, to be palefaces

This charge, however, cannot be levelled against the redskins who attack the wagon train in Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey's new RKO Radio feature, "Silly Billies." Under the guidance of Jim Thorpe, famous Indian athlete, some fifty authentic natives were assembled for forming the raiding party.

Blackfeet, Cherokee, Sac and Fox, Sioux, Navajo, Apache, Ute, Cheyenne, even Iroquois and Mohawk Indians from the East were used in the redskin sequences.

"Silly Billies" is the comics' eighteenth picture together, and pretty Dorothy Lee, who has played in nearly all of them, is again Bert's heart interest. It opens Thursday at the State theatre with "The Gun Ranger," an exciting story of a hard fighting Ranger who removed his badge to battle with a band of outlaws on even terms with no quarter asked. Eleanor Stewart is Steele's leading lady in the Republic production.

GARDENS RELATED TO ALL PROGRESS, BORSCH DECLARES

By MARIE FLETCHER
Register-Guard Garden Editor

"Gardening and gardening methods become essential pages in all great social documents. They indicate areas and mark the evolutions of peoples."

Was Fred Borsch of Borsch Gardens at Maplewood, Oregon who spoke to the Garden club last Wednesday night, conscious of the part he is playing in "the evolution of a people"? For that matter, did the members of the audience who plied him with questions about their own experiments in creating beauty and joy for themselves and others in their particular place of habitation dream that their efforts is a thread in the weaving of the fabric of the nation?

A good sized audience came out to hear Mr. Borsch, among them students in the Landscape Gardening department. Interest was keen throughout the more than two hours of the session for Mr. Borsch knows his plants as a devoted parent knows his child and watches his development hour by hour: soils; watering; placements; spraying; protection, all brought out suggestions and advice that are results of experiment and therefore trustworthy.

It is very evident, too, that Eugene gardners have an eager and intense interest in their work—and joy in it.

The Eugene Garden club is one of for winners of third prize offered last June by Sunset Magazine. The third prize consists of an award of $5.00 for an article submitted by the club's secretary, Mrs. Carl Pfeiffer accompanied by some photographs of Eugene gardens. These will be published in the March number of the magazine.

Dr. A. R. Sweetser has consented to meet with a small group who are interested in getting acquainted at first hand with the spring flowers when and as they come. There may be, later in the season, an occasional field trip, but that is not assured. However, the plants for study will be on hand, each time for use by the group. Place of meeting will be determined later. Names may be phoned to 2406M by those interested. A place of meeting will be announced when results justify calling the group together. The requisite for membership is a vital interest in the subject matter.

Those who are interested in planting some trees about the home grounds might care to be reminded again of the Silverbell or Snowdrop tree. The flowers are exquisite, like giant, snowdrops, shaped like a bell, and the buds are pink and are pendant. A beautiful specimen is in the garden of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Walsh, on south Charnelton. This home has, also, a superb Japanese Crab-apple tree. Its beauty has been a delightful memory throughout the year.

Last Sunday's Farm, Home and Garden section of the Oregonian mentions the beauty of the Madrona tree, its advantages of color of leaf and bark, the brilliance of the scarlet berries which are not allowed to remain long by the birds. The tree is a rapid grower, seedling are two feet high by the third summer after germination.

Eugene has a goodly number, by no means too many of the "Hawthorn tree, whose buds ope in the month of May." Red, white or pink, it is beautiful; has fine for mand provides food for the birds throughout the winter.

There are vast armies as yet invisible, but ready to spring into action as soon as the weather permits the plants opportunity to appear. It might be well to be prepared with insecticides for the biters, and chewers and spitters who will advance in battalions if not checked at the start.

Herb Gardening

By MARIE FLETCHER
Register-Guard Garden Editor

These excerpts are from an article, Romance in the Medicine Cabinet, by Bertha Chapman Cady, Ph. D., published in the American Journal of Nursing, January, 1937, and was sent in by a friend interested in herbs.

The Zuni Indians of the Southwest powdered the gum of the pinon pines and used it for an antiseptic.

"Thuja" is the arbor vitae's contribution to medicine. The red cedar used for "hope chests," furnishes also cedrene—cedar oil—used in perfuming soaps, cosmetics and some kinds of perfumes. Sweet gum is known to medicine as "styrax."

The Balm of Gilead was an article of merchandise in Joseph's time. It figured in the sale of Joseph by his brethren.

The wild cherry is an ingredient of cough syrups and spring tonics. Indian tribes used the extract as a tonic, and as an antiseptic for cuts and wounds before the white man came to these shores.

The leaves, bark and buds of the black willow yield commercial salix. Cinchona or quinine is distilled from the bark of the cinchona tree, also called Jesuit's bark or Countess powder.

A Peruvian legend—the cinchona is a South American tree—tells of a traveller seriously ill who, in his delirium, wandered to an abandoned pool into which a cinchona tree had fallen. He quenched his feverish thirst with the water. Later, he spread the news of his cure by its use.

The story reached the ears of the Countess of Cinchona, vice-queen of Peru. She had the bark of the tree examined by her physician who recommended its use in fevers. Hence the name "Cinchona Bark or Countess Powder or Quinine."

The sweet birch has a volatile oil. The white oak has astringent properties. Iron wood is used in malaria. Eucalyptus serves for colds and bronchial difficulties. Witch hazel is a well known household remedy.

Nettle tea was used by country folk "for whatever is the matter with you." Heal all and dittany belong to the same group of cure alls.

Skunk cabbage is a stimulant, a narcotic, and an emetic. The trillium is an astringent. Solomon's seal has been used as a cosmetic;—for gout and for rheumatism.

Monkshood is aconite. Ancient warriors poisoned the tips of their arrows with the juice. It was a former homepathic remedy. It may be so still.

Yarrow makes a stimulating tea, as does camomile. The latter makes a fine wash for blonde hair, also. Pennyroyal, horehound, boneset, thoroughwort are familiar to the older generation that was dosed liberally with tea made from them. The hot tea, a hot foot bath, a hot soapstone applied to the patient who was wrapped in an extra blanket to induce profuse perspiration usually were recommended to "break up a cold." Any one who could fail to live up to expectations with such care bestowed upon him must have been a hard case to treat.

Sweet Flag we know as Calamus. Mr. Borsch held out hope of being able to secure it. Thus far it has proved to be elusive. Hepatica goes back to the day of signatures. According to this theory each plant told man what it was meant to cure by its shape. Hepatica is Liverwort.

Culpepper used the violet poultices. Also for fevers. Rue was used to drive away the plague. Mandrake excels all other herbs in the traditions associated with it.

AT JUNCTION CITY

JUNCTION CITY, Feb. 20.—(Special)—Mrs. Paul Jacksch entertained a few friends at dinner Sunday honoring her husband and Herman Burke on the anniversary of their birthdays. One of the guests, Mrs. Brown, disclosed the fact that it was also her birthday and she was included in the honor guest list. Two birthday cakes one with 57 candles for Mr. Jacksh, one with 13 for Herman Burke, graced the dinner table. Those enjoying the dinner and the social time were Kendall Burke and sons Herman and Donald, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Brown and Laurence, Evelyn, Robert and Jean Brown, Mr. and Mrs. G. Harvey, Alfred Nelson, Arno Jacksch and son Bennie, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jacksch.

Miss Edith Pentney entertained the teachers club on Thursday evening with a theatre party at the Rialto and a luncheon at the Kalico Kat following.

IRENE DUNNE IS MAGNIFICENT IN COMEDY-ROMANCE

There are many reasons why you'll find "Theodora Goes Wild," which comes back to Eugene for a whole week at the Mayflower theatre, gay, impeccable entertainment, but above all is the revelation of Irene Dunne as a glamorous, captivating comedienne. Many believed Miss Dunne commanded such versatility but few dared believe she could be so completely charming, so deftly subtle as a light comedy artist.

For her first feature-length laugh riot, Columbia production chiefs were shrewd in selecting a vehicle which allows the star full rein in displaying talents never before disclosed. "Theodora Goes Wild" has the flavor of "It Happened One Night" plus the delightful nonsense of "My Man Godfrey." Its action is fast, punctuated with rich directorial touches by Richard Boleslawski.

Until she writes several sophisticated novels under a non-de plume for her own amusement which unexpectedly leap into the best-selling class over night, Miss Dunne is just a small town nobody whose most notable achievement is playing the church organ. Despite the fact that the world is clamoring for a look at the woman-of-the-world author, her publishers refuse to disclose her true identity. It is the happy-go-lucky illustrator of her books, played to a turn by Melvyn Douglas, who finally discovers her secret and realizes that her every move is a pose. He follows her to her home town and it is not long before they have fallen in love. When Miss Dunne openly shouts this fact to her neighbors, the illustrator disappears. Forced to take matters into her own hands, the star deliberately follows him to Manhattan and, designing her approach from the pages of her own novels, participates in a series of adventures which finally bring the young man to his senses.

Miss Dunne's transformation from the kitten-like girl to the sophisticate is a superb portrayal, and Melvyn Douglas, playing opposite the star, likewise delivers an outstanding performance.

The supporting cast is exceptionally strong, with fine performances being given by Rosalind Keith, Leona Maricle, Thomas Mitchell, Elisabeth Risdon, Margaret McWade Spring Byington, Thurston Hall, Nana Bryant, Henry Kolker, Sarah Edwards, Robert Greig, Mary MacLaren and others.

Director Richard Boleslawski has treated this story with perfect understanding, combining a delightful romance with down-to-earth comedy, and Columbia has given the picture a splendid mounting.

"Theodora Goes Wild" was written for the screen by Sidney Buchman from an original story by Mary McCarthy.

Kitchen Remodeling Requires Service of Efficient Craftsmen

Since all kitchens cannot be new, remodeling is being resorted to as never before, and the carpenter, painter, electrician, and other workmen who are well equipped to promote the beauty and convenience of kitchens find their services in great demand.

Careful planning concentrates effort and minimizes necessary labor. Modern equipment and time-saving devices are expected in the up-to-date housekeeper's workshop. Adequate lighting, natural and artificial, must be there also, for light makes for cleanliness as well as cheerfulness.

Ample built-in shelving and cabinets are required. The correct floor or floor covering for comfort, utility, and beauty should be selected. And as a successful finish just the right color combination must be used in decoration and kitchen accessories to make the room as attractive, pleasant, and lovely as any other in the house.

Credit for modernization purposes is advanced by private financial institutions insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

"4 DAYS WONDER" SOON AT HEILIG

Jeanne Dante, Universal's new screen discovery making her film debut in "Four Days Wonder," portrays the role of a feminine Sherlock Holmes. Philo Vance and Tom Sawyer, all rolled into one mysterious, humorous package. Sort of a cinema triple threat. The story, taken from A. A. Milne's novel of the same name, concerns the hectic adventures that befall a young girl when she flees from the scene of an accident. Headlines, during a four day newspaper sensation, hint at every conceivable crime from murder to kidnaping. The comedy of Milne's amusing narrative has been carefully preserved in the movie script. "Four Days Wonder" will open at the Heilig theatre on Wednesday.

A bitter clash between Eastern gangsters in high-powered limousines and determined deputy sheriffs of the West on horseback provides a new story twist in Republic's "The Old Corral," which stars Gene Autry and features Smiley Burnette, Hope Manning and a group of musical entertainers and dancers—coming Wednesday to the Heilig theatre.

Birthday Party Is Marcola Event

MARCOLA, Feb. 20.—(Special)—A birthday party was given Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stillman Pratt, the occasion being the birthday of Mrs. Ethel Adams, sister of Mrs. Pratt, and Earl Titus. These three were reunited after a separation of 21 years. Mrs. Adams has spent the last 20 years in Alberta and British Columbia. She thinks a great deal of her home in Canada, but says she still is greatly in love with her old home in the Willamette valley. Mrs. Adams is making an extended visit here but expects to return to her home about April 1.

Aid Meets

The Methodist Episcopal ladies Aid society met at the home of Mrs. Harold Shellhart at Wendling Thursday. A potluck dinner was served at noon. Quilting was the order of the day. The next meeting will be held at the usual hour at the home of Mrs. Fred Wright.

Guy Redding is able to be around after being ill with typhoid fever for several weeks.

Mrs. Mabel Drew slipped on the steps at her home Saturday evening, spraining her ankle. Miss Elma Mays was working for her a few days this week.

"DODSWORTH" IS PLAYING AT REX

Samuel Goldwyn's most ambitious production, the screen version of Sinclair Lewis' "Dodsworth," which thrilled millions as a best selling novel and a smash stage hit, begins a two day engagement at the Rex theatre today.

Walter Huston repeats the title role he created and played for more than two years on the stage. Ruth Chatterton appears opposite him, while Paul Lukas, Mary Astor and David Niven are also prominently featured.

Sidney Howard, who made the stage dramatization of this absorbing and dramatic story of a hard working, easy going American husband who retired to travel and find himself, but instead found out his selfish frivolous wife, also wrote the screenplay.

The story opens in the small middle-western town of Zenith and shifts to the decks of the "Queen Mary" Paris, London, Vienna, Switzerland, Egypt, Venice, Rome and Naples.

"Dodsworth" was produced on a lavish scale with settings by Richard Day and costumes by Omar Kiam. William Wyler directed. The film is released through United Artists.

To break a two-year writing jinx which found his gangster stories always accepted but never filmed. Rowland Brown wrote a story about three youngsters.

As a result, it's the first of his stories in two years to go before the camera and it has three of the most celebrated boy actors in filmdom, Freddie Bartholomew, Jackie Cooper and Mickey Rooney playing the leads. The picture is titled "The Devil Is a Sissy," and opens a two-day showing at the Rex theatre.
