

BOYER RESIGNS FROM UO POST

President Boyer, Dr. James H. Gilbert, dean of the school of social sciences, was foremost in mention today because of his long service, his great devotion to the University of which he is an alumnus, his national standing as a scholar and economist, and his popularity with students, alumni and people throughout the state. Others prominently mentioned include Dr. Victor P. Morris, dean of business administration; Dean Wayne L. Morse, of the University law school, Charles Howard, law professor; Dr. Howard Taylor, head of the psychology department.

No selection will be made, according to Chancellor Hunter, until the faculty at Eugene can be consulted and their views in the situation considered. Views of alumni and friends of the University will be considered but the faculty's right to be consulted is uppermost.

Text of Resignation
Dr. Boyer's letter of resignation said:

"For over a year my energy has been declining until I have no reserve energy left to meet the demands of the office. It would be unfair both to the University and myself to continue longer in the office under such circumstances. I am resigning with great regret, for my relations with the state board of higher education, the chancellor and the faculty have been most pleasant and stimulating. If health permitted I should like to continue in an administrative capacity doing what I could to advance the educational interests of the University, the state system and education as a whole."

Dr. Boyer still to continue with the University as dean of the college of arts and letters and head of the English department, contributing what I can as teacher to the educational welfare of the youth of the state."

Regrets Are Expressed

Members of the board and Chancellor Hunter were profuse in their expressions of regret at the voluntary retirement of the university head. Dr. Hunter said President Boyer "has done a most constructive piece of work, bringing about growing integration of the work of the university, and improving the relationship of the institution with the board and the people of the state."

For the board F. C. Callister said he felt most deeply a sincere regret over Dr. Boyer's retirement request. He said he is familiar with the entire history of his regime and what he has encountered and what he has accomplished. He indicated that it was with the hope that some method of still avoiding the retirement that he urged delay in accepting the resignation.

President Boyer's later statement to the board, thanking the members for their consideration, however, indicated no intention of re-acceptation.

Dr. Boyer was first named acting president January 15, 1933, on recommendation of the then Chancellor W. J. Kerr. Three months later the board, again on recommendation of Chancellor Kerr, changed the title of both Dr. Boyer and Dr. G. W. Hawley at Oregon State college, to president instead of acting president. Exactly 16 months ago Dr. Boyer was formally inducted into office as the sixth president of the University at public inaugural ceremonies at Eugene.

Background of Situation

In the background of Dr. Boyer's presidency was the long history of controversy in Oregon higher education. During the Zoon-MacPherson fight in 1932 came the much disputed resignation of President A. B. Hall and the subsequent appointment of W. J. Kerr as chancellor, allegedly visiting the agreement by which both were to retire.

Trouble began during the first year of Kerr's regime with an effort to oust the deans of women or changes which were violently fought by university students and mothers. This climaxed in September at a hectic board meeting in Portland.

A week of two later Ross C. Nelson, of Portland, then a member of the board, under urging from Kerr made an open attack on the university faculty in speeches in Eugene and Corvallis and this was followed on Homecoming day by Dean Morse's famous reply to Nelson denouncing the removal of Kerr. There followed Mr. Nelson's resignation, efforts to oust Dean Morse, an official inquiry by the American Association of University Professors.

It was on the recommendation of the A. A. U. P. committee that the board decided to choose some member of each faculty to act as direct representative to the board. Dr. Boyer was chosen from the university; Dr. Levy from the State college. Later the titles of president were conferred. Dr. Boyer was regarded as a man firm in his loyalty to the university but not antagonistic to Kerr, judicially minded and open minded, and he led the university during the remaining part of the Kerr regime and the early days of Chancellor Hunter's administration.

Dr. Boyer has been very persistent in his efforts to restore science

Only Three County Offices Open Noons

The new hour schedule in force in county offices since Monday is pure gain as far as the majority of the departments is concerned, a noon survey showed.

Only three offices—the sheriff's, assessor's, and county clerk's—are required to remain open during the noon hour. The rest, employing only one deputy each, are permitted to close, yet all county offices will get the benefit of the Saturday afternoon off. Though the new schedule has been effective since Monday, apparently it hasn't penetrated to the public yet, since little business was transacted by the three offices that are required to be open during their first, two noon-hour periods.

GOVERNOR, GILL ARGUE ON SPEECH

What I did say was that the governor attacked a bill which would have added the farmers and was drawn by our legislature committee on the strength of the stand taken by the grantee at Lebanon," Gill said. "The record speaks for itself in that matter."

Re-Reads Speech
Gill then read again from his speech of Monday to "refresh the memory of the convention." He drew more applause when he finished.

One press dispatch carried the statement credited to Gill of accusing the governor of vetoing the bill in question. Gill said he thought the governor would not have become so excited had he read a correct quotation of his speech.

EUGENE SEEKS MEET

THE DALLES, June 8.—(AP)—Klamath Falls and Eugene launched campaigns for the 1938 state election among the 800 fraternal members attending the 64th session today.

Eugene representatives had no sooner started their move than Klamath Falls delegates pointed out that they stood aside last year for The Dalles in view of the completion of her Columbia river terminal for ocean-going ships and Bonneville dam. They said they felt they should have recognition for 1938.

Both cities placarded delegates, with Klamath Falls using the potato as her symbol and the slogan, "The Pelican Kalls to Klamath Falls."

Routine Business

Reports of officers and routine business occupied today's session, with the election of the state treasurer and selection of the 1938 convention city slated for tonight. A state lecturer's program also will get underway tonight with Mrs. G. W. Thiessen presiding.

Abe W. Muir, district representative of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, addressed the woodworkers Monday afternoon, declaring that "the C. I. O. has taken the damndest lacing that any outfit ever took in its life."

"Members of unions chartered in this industry are going to stay with the brotherhood," Muir asserted. "Individuals may walk out, it happens in every industry, but the brotherhood is not going to walk out and is not going C. I. O."

Discussing the principles of industrial versus craft unionism, Moore asserted that there were certain divisions in organization made necessary
