

SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER OF EACH EMPLOYEE REQUIRED

Employers of labor must have a record of the social security number of each employee under 65 years of age to whom they have paid wages or salaries since January 1, 1937.

Employers must list the account number of each employee on information reports to be filed with the collector of internal revenue in July. These reports will cover wage and salary payments to employees between January 1 and June 30 of this year.

An employer who lacks the account number of an employee who has left his employment since January 1, should file an application form (SS-5) with the local post office giving sufficient supporting information to establish the employee's identity beyond reasonable doubt.

The name of a former employee is not sufficient information to identify the employee in question and may result in mistakes which would deprive the proper employee obtaining credit for wages earned, Mr. Fischer said.

Employees were also urged to report their social security account numbers to the employers promptly if they have not already done so. This, it was said, also applies to employees who have worked for more than one employer since last January 1.

If an employee believes that an employer for whom he worked since the first of the year does not have his social security account number, he should get in touch with the employer and give him the information, Mr. Fischer said.

Account numbers will be issued to workers through the post offices until June 30. Thereafter, application forms can be obtained at local post offices and at social security board offices, but the assignment of account numbers will be made by the board's field offices.

Several Days' Rain Insures Good Crop Spring Sown Grain

The several days' rain that has now apparently ended saved the grain crops of the Lane county farmers, declared E. M. Warren of Central who was in Eugene Saturday.

Ninety-five per cent of the fall seeding in Lane county was frozen out and the farmers had to reseed in the spring. The weather was so damp during the spring that seeding on most farms was late, so this heavy rain will give the grain a great impetus, Mr. Warren declared.

Mr. Warren said in 1889, when he was farming in the "forks" of the Willamette and McKenzie rivers, he seeded oats on May 21 and threshed them on August 21, getting a bumper crop. Two rains in June made the crop.

BOARD'S REPORT IS NOW AVAILABLE

Reports and studies of the Oregon state planning board, many of which contain vital information on Oregon's resources, have been made available for study groups and next fall will be available to teachers who wish to use the material in social science or other classes. It was announced here yesterday by Ormond R. Bean, board chairman.

A list of the available reports has been compiled and may be obtained at the planning board office in the Spalding building. The list has also been sent by superintendent of public instruction to teachers of science in public schools.

Among the reports that should be of special interest are cited: "A Survey of Penal and Reformatory Methods in Oregon," "Investigation of Land Use in Curry County," "Efforts to Reduce Stream Pollution in Oregon," "Bibliography of Geology and Mineral Resources of Oregon," "Survey of Factors Bearing on Consolidation of Cities in the Coos Bay Area," "Mapping Program for Oregon," "Oregon's Forest Problems," "Statistics of Tax Reverted Lands in Oregon," "Noxious Weeds in Oregon," "Oregon's Wild Life Resources," "Price Trends on Oregon Products," "State Building Needs in Salem," "Use of Electricity in Oregon," "Recommended Policies for Sale of Bonneville Power," "The Willamette Valley Project—A Regional Plan," and "County Planning in Oregon."

Only the actual cost of preparation and handling will be charged for the reports, it is stated. Any one interested may look over the reports at the planning board office, or at public libraries, and inquiries on any of the material will be answered by board staff members, Mr. Bean states.

Services Will Be Held At S. A. Hall. A series of evangelistic services will open Saturday at the Salvation Army headquarters at Seventh and Pearl streets, Adjutant C. Olin Edwards, commander of the Salvation Army corps in Portland, arrived here Saturday to be in charge of the meetings.

Adjutant Edwards will be assisted by the local officers, Major and Mrs. C. Ford and Lieutenant A. Whittle; also Lieutenant Catherine Harmon of Stockton.

The series of meetings, scheduled to open at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, will be preceded by the open-air meeting at the corner of Eighth and Willamette streets. The service will continue throughout the week-end.

Adjutant Edwards has been an officer with the Salvation Army for the past 19 years, having served many appointments both in the United States and Canada.

Election Set For New Water District. Notices are out for election on the watershed district for the South Willamette neighborhood, the election to be held July 8.

The proposed district would serve more than 350 persons and would take in the section from the south city limits to Rest Haven memorial park, and from the east border of College Crest to the east sections 6 and 7, Township 18S range 3W.

KIMBERLING WILL ATTEND GRADUATE SCHOOL OF BANKING

Rogers W. Kimberling, trust officer of the First National bank of Eugene, will leave Sunday evening for New Brunswick, New Jersey, to attend the annual session of the graduate school of banking held June 21 to July 3.

This advanced course in banking is held annually under the auspices of the American Institute of Banking at Rutgers university at New Brunswick. Only institute graduates who are bank officers or graduates holding positions equivalent to those of bank officers are admitted to this course.

These advanced courses in banking were started in 1925 and only 290 students are admitted each year. The management of the First National bank is naturally highly elated on Mr. Kimberling's appointment, especially inasmuch as his was the first appointment in the state outside of Portland, only three others having been made in Oregon.

President Richard Shore Smith in commenting on Mr. Kimberling's appointment said: "After all, the First National bank of Eugene has a definite policy and that is to serve Eugene and Lane county, and in line with this old established policy we are always glad to encourage and assist in every way possible every member of our staff in obtaining for himself the best bank training possible. Such special training, together with the practical experience which an institution with a complete banking service such as ours affords, enables the bank to give all of its customers and patrons the kind of service they require."

Several of the writers commend the planning board's recent report, "Oregon Wild Life Resources" and favor recommendations made in this study. Conservation of wild life is one of the major objectives of the board, it is pointed out by Ormond R. Bean, board chairman.

PLAYGROUNDS WILL STAGE REHEARSALS

If weather permits, playground rehearsals for the children's dancing chorus of the Pageant, These will be held in addition to the Monday and Thursday practices at McArthur court and the Armory.

Under the new set-up, children attend the practice a week, on Monday at 10 o'clock for children living on the west side of town, and on Thursday at 10 o'clock for those living on the east side of town, and in addition to this, one afternoon rehearsal at the playground nearest their home.

This arrangement was worked out by Gilbert Sprague, playground director, and Mildred Moore, pageant dance director, so that children would not have to go a long distance from their homes to attend rehearsals.

Wednesday at 2 o'clock rehearsal will be held at St. Mary's playground; Friday at 2 o'clock it will be held at the Skinner's Butte Park playground, and at that same time at the Fairground playground. On the following Monday, June 21, at the Gordon playground.

Children are to attend only one of these rehearsals at the nearest playground, and to continue with their regular Monday or Thursday practice, also.

RECREATION BAND TO GIVE CONCERT

The WPA recreation band under the direction of R. G. Dykstra will be heard in concert Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at the Central Presbyterian church. Guest conductors will be Delos Crook and H. J. Hoyt.

The program follows: Zacatecas March, Regimental Pride Overture, Harmony King Epiphany solo, Delos Crook March, Washington Gray March, Them Basses Overture, Light Cavalry Selection, Teddy Trombone Violin solo, by Fred Dallas Overture, Golden Dragon Selection, March Gloria Selection, March Dallas.

Thomas Attending Pioneer Re-Union In Nehalem Valley

JUNCTION CITY, June 12.—(Special)—A. E. Thomas left Friday for Nehalem Valley to attend the annual Nehalem Valley Pioneer Reunion. Mr. Thomas homesteaded there in 1888 and enjoys going back to the old homestead on which are still parts of the original log buildings. He meets many old time friends and neighbors. Mr. Thomas is taking with him on this trip two large cakes decorated with the Nehalem Valley emblem, these to be used on the tables at their basket dinner.

STATE'S WILD LIFE PROBLEM DISCUSSED

Wild life problems in Oregon, from the standpoint of conservation, research, propagation and other phases, are discussed by leading state authorities in the June issue of "Planning Progress," bulletin of the Oregon state planning board. Copies of the publication may be obtained at the planning board office in the Spalding building.

A plea for the employment of experts to study the many wild life problems is voiced in an article by W. L. Finley, chairman of the board's advisory committee on wild life. He outlines the need of a research program for the state. The research work now under way by the state game commission is described by Frank B. Wire, state game superintendent.

The research program of the United States Bureau of Fisheries for the Columbia river is told by Joseph A. Craig, associate aquatic biologist. Research of the bureau of biological survey is the subject of Ben A. Humbley, senior administrative assistant of the bureau. E. N. Kavanagh, assistant regional forester, contributes an article entitled "The Book of Nature."

Several of the writers commend the planning board's recent report, "Oregon Wild Life Resources" and favor recommendations made in this study. Conservation of wild life is one of the major objectives of the board, it is pointed out by Ormond R. Bean, board chairman.

Spanish War Vets Planning Convention

A score or more of local veterans of the Spanish-American war are expected to attend the state encampment at Medford July 11-14 and hotel and auto camp reservations are now being made by members of the local delegation.

Besides the eight regularly elected delegates all the past commanders of the camp and auxiliary and the two vice-commanders of the camp and vice-presidents of the auxiliary are entitled to seats in the encampment and it is expected that several others will attend.

Headquarters for both the camp and auxiliary organizations will be at the Medford hotel, it is announced.

Loan Association Declares Dividend

The First Federal Savings and Loan association, through its board of directors, has declared the third regular dividend on savings accounts. It was announced here Saturday. The dividends were made at the rate of three and half per cent.

It was also disclosed that on April 1 the capitalization of the association stood at nearly $100,000, compared to its initial total of $11,250.

OREGON MAGAZINE HAS VITAL TOPICS

Interrelations of forestry to other resources and industries, legal aspects of scenic beauty regulation, and flax potentialities of Oregon are leading topics discussed in the current issue of the Commonwealth Review, publication of the University of Oregon.

The Massachusetts billboard case, in which the courts upheld the right of the state to regulate outdoor signs on private property, is discussed by Carlisle L. Spencer, professor of law at the university. "The dictum in the Massachusetts case establishes the significant principle that beauty is of sufficient concern to the public welfare that its protection falls within the scope of the proper exercise of the police power," the author states.

Western Oregon has an ideal climate and soil for production of flax, but the problems of labor, methods and markets must be considered, it is stated by Upton Bickford, of Dayton, who writes on flax potentialities. He urges that farmers who contemplate growing flax give careful study to the problems, and organize cooperatives to handle the fiber. Improvements in methods of handling may be expected, he points out. "Intelligent promotion will aid the industry to grow to great importance in Oregon," he concludes.

The magazine also contains comment by its editor, Dr. P. A. Parsons, head of the department of sociology, and a number of reviews of current books.

FARMERS CREAMERY ANNOUNCES PICNIC

The annual picnic for the Eugene Farmers creamery will be held next Sunday, June 20 at Swimmers Delight resort west side park, on the Coast fork of the Willamette river two miles east of Goshen, it is announced by G. A. Harnden, creamery manager. Full use of the grounds for the daymen and their families and friends has been reserved for the entire day. The program will include a wide variety of sports, swimming, baseball, and races for both young and old.

The picnic is an annual event, attended by hundreds more than 2000 turning out for the 1936 gathering. A band concert will be a feature of the picnic at 11 o'clock, while a basket dinner is scheduled for the noon hour. After dinner a brief speaking program will take place, with various dairy leaders engaged. Other musical numbers will be heard at this time including the 'Davis' chimes, a popular musical entertainment. A "whisker" contest, in honor of the Oregon Trail pageant, is expected to provide fun for the crowd. An old-time "fiddlers' contest" is another feature of the program.

With more than 1000 farms represented as patrons of the institution during the current year in Lane county, a record breaking crowd is expected.
