

COMMITTEES ARE NAMED FOR LANE FEDERAL PROGRAM

Committeemen in all the ten communities in which Lane county is divided for the carrying out of the federal agricultural conservation program met during the past week and elected committeemen for the year 1938. O. S. Fletcher, county agricultural agent, attended all meetings and took part in the discussion of the conservation program for the coming year. Mr. Fletcher is secretary of the Lane County Agricultural Conservation Association. W. F. Marshall, assistant secretary of the association, also assisted the community chairmen in conducting the meetings and presenting the 1938 program. Raymond A. Johnson, president of the association, assisted at the Lorraine and Cottage Grove meetings.

Those explaining the program stated that there are limits to what it can do. For example, it alone cannot prevent burdensome surpluses nor does it provide a means of storing reserves so that they will not depress prices. Nor can it fully insure the farmer against losses from natural calamities, such as drought or insects.

The conservation program can, however, help raise farm income by helping farmers to produce more economically, by providing conservation payments to farmers, and by improving the soil to make it able to produce more when needed. In addition, for some crops it indirectly influences the volume and therefore the prices of these farm products.

Farmers who are not now cooperating in the agricultural conservation program but wish to do so in 1938 may file work sheets and sign up in the program at the county agent's office in Eugene beginning Monday.

At the beginning of the meetings, the current farm outlook and the agricultural situation in past years leading to the agricultural conservation program were discussed. The detailed workings of the 1938 program were also explained. It was pointed out that for each farm there will be a soil depleting goal and a soil building goal. There will be deductions from payments if the acreage of soil depleting crops exceeds the soil depleting goal and there will also be deductions if the soil building goal is not reached. Although 1937 has been comparatively favorable for most farmers in the United States, with normal weather in 1938 and 1939 growing surpluses and lower prices are in prospect for some commodities.

Following is a list of the communities and the committeemen elected:

- Blachly—V. A. Parker, chairman; Harry Robertson, vice-chairman; Anita Sumich, third member, and J. W. Snelson, alternate committeeman.
- Coast—W. C. Waite, chairman; Elmer Johnson, vice-chairman; H. J. Merz, third member, and Peter S. Rice, alternate committeeman.
- Cottage Grove—Francis M. Horn, chairman; W. A. Hemenway, vice-chairman; John J. Keibelbeck, third member, and Loren Hunt, alternate committeeman.

HYDROLOGIC DATA IS NECESSARY FOR RESOURCES CONTROL

Development and control of water resources, held by many progressive citizens as the key to Oregon's future, rests upon facilities to gather hydrologic data, it is declared in a report just issued by the state planning board, entitled "Basic Data Needed for Water Conservation in Oregon."

In addition to pointing out the great value of basic data, the report contains definite recommendations for an efficient system under which this information may be obtained, and includes costs and sources of funds for the work.

Needed immediately, the report declares, are 75 additional precipitation stations, 12 additional snow survey courses, 136 additional stream gauging stations, 8 additional stations, and 320 groundwater explorations and observation wells. These will cost $251,610 to install, and will entail an annual operation cost of $71,750.

Facts and figures obtained from these sources will be of almost inestimable value in mapping out flood control projects, in planning irrigation systems, and even in such everyday work as planning crops, it is pointed out. The report, a major achievement of the board's advisory committee on water resources, also suggests supplementary study projects on water resources to cost $1,057,200. These include determination of water quality including sanitary surveys of streams, silt surveys, erosion studies, effects of forest cover on stream flows, river utilization surveys, irrigability and drainage land classification, and fish conservation studies.

Funds for the work should come largely from the federal government, the report points out, and similar programs are suggested for other states as a part of a national program of water use and conservation.

The report was compiled under the direction of V. B. Stanbery, consultant and executive secretary of the planning board. Members of the advisory committee are G. H. Canfield, Portland, chairman; J. W. Cunningham, Carl E. Green, C. L. Grimm, Harlan B. Holmes, R. E. Koon, M. R. Lewis, A. M. Piper, H. E. Selby, B. E. Stoutmeyer, and E. L. Wells, all of Portland, and C. E. Stricklin, Salem.

The report, which has been approved by Governor Martin, was submitted to him by Ormond R. Bean, board chairman.

University Soph Becomes Grandad

Many people are grandfathers and many people are university sophomores, but it is an oddity when a person is found who falls into both these classifications.

Captain Frank M. Harshberger, 56, second-year student in the University of Oregon art school, boasted of the honor of being both sophomore and grandfather this week when he received word of the birth of a son to his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hildebrandt at Los Angeles, Calif.

Captain Harshberger is retired from the United States army and is attending the art school because "I have nothing else to do but go fishing."

He lives at 877 Eleventh ave., east.

PLANNING PROJECT DISCUSSION SET FOR MONDAY MEETING

Opportunity for a lively and educational discussion of economic regional planning projects which Eugene's proposed Washburne Valley development is being afforded the public at James C. Rettle, economic geographer and member of the West Planning Commission, will lecture before the third meeting of the Phi Delta Kappa conference series Monday evening at 7:30 in the lecture room of the new university gymnasium.

Mr. Rettle, who is considered an outstanding authority on economic geography, will talk the group, "What Immediate West Problems Demand General Understanding for their Solution."

What future awaits Eugene and Lane county's mammoth project, of five dams on the Willamette and an expenditure of $1,000,000 may depend on the attitude of the public, according to the project's executive secretary, R. H. Kipp. Enthusiasts of the proposed plan saw in tomorrow's meeting an opportunity for the public to air their views in regard to regional planning of this project.

Mr. Rettle will undertake to answer questions arising from the discussions of both proponents and critics of the project.

Eight more meetings where the public may participate in an open forum of "Contributions to Northwest Curriculum," the topic of the series, will follow during the fall and winter terms of the university.
