Broadway Inc. Has Expansion Plans

Broadway, Inc., which recently took over the adjoining Spaulding store, is preparing for a big expansion of its facilities, and Roy Morse, head of the concern Saturday gave the following outline of his plans:

The 200 square feet of the Spaulding store will be devoted entirely to the ready-to-wear department. The space now occupied by this department in the old location will be used for featuring an up-to-date drapery and blanket department.

Lingerie, foundation garments, jewelry, and umbrellas will be arranged where the piece goods section is at the present time. These in turn will be moved to the east side of the store. The added space on the balcony made possible by moving of the blankets downstairs will give the yarn department and its daily knitting classes much more room, which is needed badly.

A large archway, 12 feet in width will connect the two buildings near the front. It is the purpose of the management of The Broadway, Inc., to make this store as modern and as up to date as possible in order to serve their clientele more conveniently and better. It is understood that these changes will take place shortly.
