Walden Boyle Said Outstanding Actor Of University

Walden Boyle, who plays the title role in "Peer Gynt," elaborate musical drama to be presented Tuesday night, April 26, at McArthur Court, is undoubtedly the University of Oregon's outstanding contribution to the professional stage.

Boyle, who left school here in 1932 to go on the stage, has had three years of professional experience with the Pasadena Community playhouse, considerable motion picture work, and two years with the Schuberts in New York.

After dropping out of school Boyle joined the Pasadena playhouse where at different times he acted as stage manager, directed and appeared in between 40 and 50 shows with such well-known names as Sylvia Sydney, Gloria Stuart, Mischa Auer, Douglas Montgomery and Wayne Morris.

In 1934 Boyle went with the famed Schubert producing organization, again dividing his time between stage managing and acting. He appeared on Broadway with Lenore Ulric, Pola Negri, Guy Bates Post, Margot Graham, Eduardo Cianelli, Owen Davis, Jr. and others.

Boyle returned to the university campus after two years in New York to complete his scholastic work. He was signed as a member of the faculty, as instructor in drama, after he received his diploma last June.

The Horace Robinson production of "Peer Gynt" is the second time Boyle has played in Henrik Ibsen's play. He "doubled" in several parts when the Pasadena playhouse gave its version with Gloria Stuart and Douglas Montgomery in the starring roles.

"The production to be given here compares favorably in every way, especially in the staging, with that given in Pasadena," Boyle declared. "It is a larger show, with a better adaptation and stage settings.

Reserved seat tickets for Tuesday night's performance are now on sale at McArthur court.
