To meet a condition imposed by the greater speed of the new streamlined diesel and steam locomotives, Southern Pacific has added still another improvement to modern railroading, it was learned here Thursday.

The latest invention, product of George McCormick, general superintendent of motive power for the railroad, is a simple wheel cooling device to prevent overheating caused by prolonged application of brakes, particularly on steep grades. Already installed on the power cars of the diesel-driven streamliner "City of San Francisco" and on the tenders of the company's newest steam locomotives, the wheel cooling arrangement is proving most successful, according to company engineers. It consists of an outlet from the water tank, operated by an air controlled valve with longitudinal pipes and lateral branches at each wheel, terminating in spraying nozzles. Whenever the engineer applies the brakes, she also opens the control valves of the wheel cooling system, thus causing a sufficient amount of water to flow on the wheels to counteract the heating effect of the brake shoes. Various methods of operating the valves, either manually or automatically, and by mechanical, pneumatic or electrical means, are covered by the patent, which also includes an automatic system. The latter is designed to function whenever the wheels have become heated to a predetermined temperature.

Officials Look At CCC Camp Site

Possibility of the purchase of a 160-acre tract of land on Fall creek on which is located abandoned CCC camp buildings, to be used as a recreation center for the Four-H clubs of the county was seen in the inspection of the site Wednesday afternoon by County Commissioners Cal M. Young and Walter J. Holland and R. C. Kuehner, county club leader.

The United States forest service has kept the camp in good condition since it was abandoned. The buildings are well constructed and the grounds have been well kept. The land is privately owned. A "spike" camp of the CCC was maintained there for several years but it has not been used for some time. Those who have inspected the property say it is ideal for summer camp and recreation purposes.

President Invites Ford To Conference

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) The "farm is the thing that will save the country," and added: "In no other way can we raise the money. The farms today must provide for industry. As an example I am going to cultivate every foot of the whole acreage here, right away." Pausing only to brush away tiny black flies that puzzled around him as he stood near an old, but now restored grist mill on the estate, Ford added that his "panacea" for anything was "work."

"This entire land is just yearning for young men to go to work in it. That's all a young fellow needs today, the habit of work. Once he gets the habit, he'll find his own work."

Sees Lower Prices Ford voiced belief America was on the road back to normalcy, but warned against over-confidence and predicted commodity prices would be established at a lower level.

Asked if an increase in farm products such as he proposed would not result in a lowering of farm prices, he replied: "The price of farm products generally can never be too cheap because when the prices of farm products go down, new uses will be found for the products."

He said in this connection that industry was using more plastics and was looking to agriculture to supply materials. Cellulose could be found in most farm products, he said, adding that "in the future the fuel for automobile engines will come from farmers."

Home Is Important Element In Delinquency Cause

Broken homes, economic and environmental factors are chief reasons for delinquencies, according to W. H. Drane Lester, of the federal bureau investigation, who talked to youth leaders at the Methodist church Wednesday night to close a state-wide youth conference. Wednesday's meeting was sponsored by the Eugene Youth council and was presided over by Mayor Elisha Large. Lester, assistant to J. Edgar Hoover, advised the care of choosing entertainment for children and pointed out the detriment of radio programs, moving pictures and newspaper stories that tend to glorify criminals. He said that parents should boycott those mediums of portraying crime with the thought in mind of eventually having those "features" blotted out.

There are almost as many delinquencies from the upper and middle classes as among underprivileged youths of the lower classes, according to Lester who also rated the home, school and church, in that order, as dominating forces to defeat delinquency. The first annual report of the Eugene Youth council was presented to the large group by Chairman Dean Karl Onthank.

Leaders of the round-table discussion were: Judge G. F. Skipworth, Perry Price, Pete Hanns, Lloyd Payne, Williston Wirt, L. L. Ray, and J. Douglas Swenson, connected with the Portland F. B. I. Mrs. Glenn Hastings was in charge of the afternoon session, with round-table discussion leaders: Mrs. George Spicer, Mrs. Frank Bonson, Mrs. L. Alderman, and Mrs. Mark Hathaway.

Picture Magazine Features Project

A double page spread on the $56,000,000 Willamette Valley project of Oregon is published in the new issue of Focus, a pictorial magazine.

The display of pictures with comment is headed: "The Seven Dams of the Willamette." On a large map of Oregon the area covered by the project is sketched while nearby on another part of the state is an outline of the states of Massachusetts and Connecticut, showing that the project area of 11,200 square miles is approximately the size of these two eastern states, although populated with about 700,000 persons as against 6,800,000 in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

A strip of photographs across the bottom of the two pages depicts leading promoters of the project as well as Oregonians on a congressional delegation, its governor and other officials of the state. In comment on the project, the magazine speaks of it as a control versus the salmon, and points out the project will cost $56,000,000 to start the dams; and damage to wild resources and recreation will be at least $50,000,000, the ending with the question, "Will lobby will win?" Several pictures are included in the strip of photographs, including one of Bonneville and one on a catfish.

Hair-Raising Dream May Win Ticket To Campus Show

If you haven't had any hair-raising dreams lately a good one in the next two nights may win you a pair of tickets to the elaborate presentation of "Peer Gynt," to be given next Tuesday at McArthur court.

The Register-Guard and Associated Students of the University are sponsoring a "Best Dream" contest with five pair of reserved tickets to "Peer Gynt" for the five outstanding 200 word descriptions. The only requirement is that the dreams must be either amusing or interesting in some other way. Entries must be received at the Educational Activities office on the campus by Friday noon. "Peer Gynt is essentially the story of a dreamer," explained Horace W. Robinson, director of the huge production. "Henrik Ibsen wrote his famous play as a rebuff to his countrymen for being such half-hearted visionaries, consent to dream of past glories rather than build toward the future."

CHURCH REMODELED OAKRIDGE, April 21.—(Special)—The Bible Standard church has been remodeled so that additional seats and benches can accommodate 30 more. The large crowds that attend made the change necessary.
