Knots of Trees Form Basis of Hobby
 Knots in trees may just be knots to most people, but to Stephen M. Osborn, of route 1, Junction City, they are an interesting hobby. A woodcutter by trade, Mr. Osborn collects the knots and carves them into unusual shapes.
 One of the oddest in his collection is a knot of hazel bush wood, which is in the shape of a hand with five almost perfect fingers. Mr. Osborn has peeled away the bark, and has made indentations for fingernails. Each finger is about two inches long, the thumb being somewhat shorter and thicker, as in a human hand.
 A large oak knot about nine inches across, with the middle hollowed out, makes a natural dipper. A fir knot in the shape of a head was made into a face with only a few touches, including ears carved on each side.
South McKenzie Road Will Be Widened
 The county road on the south bank of the McKenzie river from Emmerick's ferry to a point a mile and a half above there will be widened and straightened in places, according to P. M. Morse, county engineer. The county's bulldozer will be sent there some time this week.
 This year's work on the Petzold road southwest of Eugene will be finished this week and work will be started in a day or so to straighten out the turns in the Lost creek road above Dexter, the engineer said.
Cook To Speak At Christian Church
 Rev. Frank L. Cook, assistant pastor of the First Christian church, will speak at the morning services of the church Sunday. Rev. S. E. Childers, who was to have returned from his vacation in order to conduct the services, will not return to Eugene until next week.
Dr. Williams to Be Forum Speaker
 Dr. John Paul Williams, of the Massachusetts State college, who has been one of the special lecturers at the University of Oregon summer and post sessions, will give the concluding address in the series of Sunday evening forums which have been held throughout the summer at the Community Liberal church on the general theme, "Living Issues of Democracy." Dr. Williams' topic will be, "American Democracy in Crisis." Following the address there will be a period for questions and discussion.
