THE WOMEN'S CHORAL CLUB

In a way our Women's Choral Club is an expression of "women's rights." For some years these tuneless ladies have been battling against the inclination to think of them as the "Women's Gleemen" or something of that sort. Just because the Gleemen are older and somewhat more famous is no sign of male monopoly on choral music. The Women's Choral Club has its place, and its own place, in our community's musical life.

There is a great deal of fine music which is better suited to women's voices than to men's. We would not agree with those few who have suggested that men and women should be organized as one community chorus. This is done in some cities, and with a fair measure of success. There will be times, as during the big Pioneer Pageants when men and women will be brought together in one grand chorus.

Meantime, there are definite advantages in the separation of the male and female choral groups. Each has its own traditions and "esprit de corps." Each makes its own contributions to community service. If there is a little rivalry it is of the healthy sort. It would be impossible for any joint organization to maintain the discipline which each one separately has built up. In each group rehearsal night is a sacred event.

In the Gleeman, John Stark Evans holds office for life as benevolent tyrant. Cora Moore Frey still is accompanist for the Gleemen, but the choristers have claimed her to be the "fuehrer" of their group. Musically she reigns while Maude Densmore prime ministers. In their own way the women have built an organization which is different but the adequate counterpart of the Gleemen.

As for the Christmas concert with which the women opened their season Monday evening, it was a major musical event. Most of us came and enjoyed, but the "knowing" were present also—and acknowledged.

SO THE BOYS DUG DEEP

Extremely interesting is the revelation of Governor Martin that not only the notorious Al Rosser but various other labor chieftains of the recent goon period dug deep to pay state income tax claims rather than get tangled with that law. The intimation is that the contributors included certain famous non-residents who have not been willing recently to set foot in the state of Oregon. One even put in $2,000 to help Rosser meet the tax on the $222,000 which he had collected from his unions in a single year.

There are indications that labor itself is disposed to carry on with the cleanup of these grafters. All labor has suffered from the public distrust which these gangsters have brought on labor. The condition came about largely because of the tame acceptance of the idea that a certain amount of "rough stuff" is inevitable in labor. Crooks have used this notion to make themselves labor czars.

In every union, every member should make it his business to scrutinize labor laws. The teamsters' union here, for instance, found that the voting rights guaranteed by its constitution had been automatically set aside. The provisions for the accounting of funds in that union were lamentably weak but even those had been ignored.

Unions exist to express the rights of members. They are voluntary associations. They get into trouble whenever these democratic fundamentals are denied.

WAR AND TREATIES

U. S.-British-Canadian treaty, has been received in many ways by the U. S. citizenry. Many people believe with Secretary Hull that the trade agreement presages a new era of international amity and understanding and a great boom in trade.

Contrasted with this approval is the sentiment of such opponents as Governor Aiken of Vermont, who said the treaty appears to be a plan "to turn New England solely to a recreational area."

Trade experts disagree as to what the result may be. The nations involved will have to wait and see.

The palm for adverse comment must go to some unnamed historian who has observed:

"Leave it to the United States to do things in a big way. Chamberlain lost the World War at Munich, but Hull has gone further back with his trade treaties and lost the Revolution."

It won't be long until everybody is on the public payroll and we can all stop worrying about taxes and such.

MILK TYRANNY

EUGENE—(To the Editor)—The ruling of the Oregon milk control board is costing the consumers of milk a tremendous sum through monopoly and price fixing, making it difficult for families of small means to purchase enough milk.

The establishment of the quota system in Eugene has aggravated the situation. One dairy man told me he is faced with the situation of turning over about ten per cent of his gross income to the board, or buying his pasteurized milk from the board which is B grade milk.

If he continues to use A grade milk produced by himself, he must pay the difference between market price, which is now 27 cents, and 53 cents, the milk board price, about one cent per quart on all milk he produces.

Capable dairymen are barred from engaging in business unless they pay tribute of buying a high priced quota.

The milk board is in no way connected with the sanitary laws or inspection, being exclusively a regulatory, and price fixing board.

Yours truly,
M. ASHTON, D. C.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By JOHN T. FLYNN

(NEA Service Staff Correspondent)

Sometime ago I reported a plan for an economic program for democracy proposed by a group of Harvard and Tufts professors. Readers have written to ask if I approved the proposal for a continuing policy of government borrowing.

For some reason they had the impression that I did. The answer, of course, is that I do not.

But the subject is one of growing importance as are the facts out of which that importance grows. Our present capitalist system must have investment functioning actively in order to keep alive. And, for a variety of reasons, active investment has been growing steadily less. Certain economists who recognize this say the only way out is for the government to take over the function of investment. They therefore insist that the government must do the borrowing. This being a more or less frightening prospect they defend it on the ground that it is not as important or serious as it seems, if the government will see that the bonds are distributed among the people. Under these circumstances the government will tax the people to pay the interest but it will pay the interest to them, one operation cancelling the other.

With this theory I am in complete disagreement.

Profit From Borrowing?

There is another theory that the government ought not to hesitate to borrow since that is the only way to keep the system afloat. And although after a while the debt will become oppressive, the government will shake it off by devaluation. This seems cruel, but the defense is that it is essential, that for many years the borrowing does actually produce a widespread condition of relief and even makes profits for the well-to-do. While devaluation will hurt their investments, a failure to borrow would hurt them—in fact, destroy them very much quicker.

I am also in disagreement with this school, though I believe it to be more logical than the first.

The fact is that it is impossible to pile up public debts without also piling up an immense debt service load which is oppressive. And it is impossible to distribute the debt among the masses of the people without destroying the very effect sought by creating the debt.

Add Billions—In Debts

In the last six years we have added billions to the national debt. But most of this is in the possession of the banks. The banks belong to a very limited number of stockholders. The taxes to pay the interest come out of the masses of the people but the interest is paid to this limited number of stockholders. It may not be heavy interest but certainly, whatever it is, the masses do not collect it.

It is only a matter of time when we will have to fund this depression debt. When we do the interest charge on the whole debt will be around a billion and a half. Thereafter that sum will be a disturbing factor in every budget. Because we have too heavy a charge we shall hear that we cannot do this and cannot do that. The activities of the government will be circumscribed. The theory of the perpetual debt and its perpetual expansion is an alluring one. But it won't work.

AN EDITORIAL ON HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Now is the time when hunters pick up tularemia while dressing rabbits for eating purposes. Cases are beginning to appear in most of the midwestern states. In practically every case it is found that the patient was exposed to infection while dressing a rabbit with his bare hands.

The germ that causes tularemia occurs primarily in rabbits and ground squirrels that are sick with this disease. Deer flies and wood ticks which have fed on the blood of infected rabbits sometimes bite human beings and spread the infection in this manner. Obviously the best method of protection against tularemia is to avoid the bites of deer flies and wood ticks and to cover the hands with gloves so that any injury to the skin will not prove to be a place in which the tularemia germ may enter the body.

It has been suggested that hunters might very well avoid tularemia by eating only those rabbits which are capable of running when pursued. It is usually a sick rabbit that has the disease—the kind of rabbit that can be knocked over with a stick.

When tularemia appears on the body there is usually an ulcer at the point where the germs entered through the skin. This ulcer appears a few days after the rabbits have been dressed. The patient then develops aching of the muscles and joints, weakness, chills and fever—the condition lasting for several weeks.

Some cases of tularemia have been reported in which the infection entered through the eye because the person who was dressing the rabbits stopped to rub his eye with the bare hand during the dressing process.

The rubber glove is one of the most useful pieces of apparatus ever invented for the prevention of disease. Many diseases occur by the process which is known as the hand-to-mouth infection. If the hands are kept thoroughly washed and if they are protected with rubber gloves at any time when they may come in contact with infectious material, much unnecessary disease can be avoided.

Repeatedly I have emphasized the importance of cooking completely all meat which may possibly be infested with parasites. This applies particularly to wild game which does not undergo the kind of scientific inspection that is regularly given to the meat of cattle, sheep and hogs in the commercial slaughter houses.

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This at Home

Saves You Much Money, and It's So Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home remedy your mother used, but for real results, it is still one of the most effective and dependable, for coughs due to colds. Once tried, you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar in 1 cup water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—a child could do it.

New put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of actually true, splendid cough medicine, and gives you about four times as much for your money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time.

And you'll say it's really amazing, for quick action. You can feel it take hold instantly. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. No cough remedy, at any price, could be more effective.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiac, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Eta Sigma Phi Formal Dance Due Saturday

PLANS for their formal winter dance to be given next Saturday evening were made at the meeting of Eta Sigma Phi members Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Wilfred A. Moore.

Today's Recipes

By NEA SERVICE

THERE are many who regularly serve kidney or brains dishes. For this group the following are two useful recipes:

Veal Kidneys, Mushrooms

Two veal kidneys, ½ pound fresh mushrooms, 1 medium white onion, flour, salt, pepper, 2 tablespoons sherry or white grape juice, parsley.

Peel mushrooms and cut in half. Season with salt and pepper. Sauté in butter for 10 minutes in separate sautépan. Skin and cut up veal kidneys. Slice onions and sauté lightly in butter. When onion is almost browned, add more butter and sauté the kidneys rapidly until red of center verges on brown. Season well with salt and pepper. Then sprinkle flour over kidneys, stir and add enough boiling water for gravy. When the gravy thickens, add sherry or grape juice mixed with a little lemon juice to mushrooms. Combine kidneys and mushrooms over hot fire and serve at once with a dash of chopped parsley or a sprinkle of paprika on top. Cook the kidneys quickly and not for long, otherwise they will become tough.

Brains in Brown Sauce

(Serves 4)

One pair calves' brains, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, 1 tablespoon ketchup, 1 cup bouillon (from cube or can).

Wash brains, remove covering membranes and blood vessels and soak 1 hour in cold salted water. Simmer for 20 minutes in water containing salt and 1 tablespoon of vinegar. Drain and serve with sauce. Brown butter, add flour and onion, and stir until brown. Add bouillon and ketchup and cook until thickened. Season to taste. A few sautéed mushrooms make this dish taste even better.

Domestic Art Club

Domestic Art club members were entertained by Mrs. Marvin Warlick for their meeting, Monday afternoon. Mrs. Roland Burghard had charge of the program, discussing Christmas customs and traditions in various sections of the world. Mrs. W. E. Coffey gave a Christmas reading. Mrs. Clarence A. Chase was welcomed as a new member. The next meeting of the club will be January 9 at the group's winter luncheon.

Miss Lolla Howe, member from Cottage Grove, with a basket of gifts. Miss Elizabeth Crabbe officiated as Santa Claus. The next meeting will be January 9.

LADY BALTIMORE CAKE

Made this quick . . . easy-cream way

Now make a wonderful quick way! Plop creamy Crisco and sugar into your mixing-bowl! In a jiffy they're mixed and light. For there's no stiff shortening to work—no hard creaming to do!

Need! A new million-dollar process now whips and churns Crisco, creams it hundreds of times before it goes into the can. So Crisco makes cakes the easy way . . . without hard creaming. And they're light, delicate in flavor! Change to Crisco!

Lady Baltimore Cake

1½ cup Crisco 1½ cup salt
1½ cups sugar 1 cup milk
2½ cups cake flour 1½ cups lemon juice
2 eggs, baking powder 4 eggs-white powder

Beat fluffy Crisco and sugar. Then add dry ingredients. Add alternately eggs, milk, lemon juice, then add two egg-whites. Pour into two-inch "Crisco" layer pans. Bake in moderate oven 25-30 min. When cool, spread this filling between layers.

Lady Baltimore Filling

1½ cup icing 1½ cup strained fig
1 cup raisins 1½ cup drained
1 cup walnuts 1½ cup maraschino cherries

Make 7-Minute Icing. Take out 1½ of it and put in separate bowl. To the chopped fruit and nuts, spread between layers. Cover cake with rest of icing.

Crisco is the registered trademark of a shortening manufactured by Procter & Gamble Co.
