Resistance Missing From Sweeping Chinese

Warriors Enter City After Way Cleared

BULLETIN!
LONDON, June 21.—(AP)—Tokyo has offered to settle the Tientsin dispute as a local matter between Japan and Great Britain, thus leaving wider issues to be settled by mutual negotiation, according to an official forecast circulated in diplomatic quarters tonight.

By The Associated Press
The port was easily captured by the Japanese today, tightening their grip on the south China coast. In the north they are still at Tientsin apparently set down to a drawn-out test of force.

Reports from Swatow said Japanese soldiers, their way cleared by air raids and a naval bombardment, reached the city this morning and encountered little resistance, continued

Both Britain and Japan were fighting for the other to make the peace overtures in the eight-day Tientsin crisis.

Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons that the British government did not make clear to Japan that it would take necessary steps to assure adequate food supplies for her beleaguered subjects in Tientsin concession.

FBI Men Speed Search For Matson Suspect

HAYWARD, Wis., June 21.—(AP)—Sheriff George Seehuetter announced today that the federal bureau of investigation would enter the search for Ray Olson, 30, fugitive killer of two deputies, to investigate the possibility he might be the long sought kidnap-slayer of Charles Mattson, 10, Tacoma, Wash.

Seehuetter said he had asked for assistance from the FBI office at Milwaukee and had been advised that at least one G-man would come here. He emphasized that the possibility Olson might be the Mattson kidnaper was "purely speculative."

"Olson closely resembles descriptions of the kidnaper," he said, "but there is nothing definite to connect him with the case, as I informed the federal agents in asking them to come here. However, we are not overlooking that angle. We want him for two killings here and that is enough for now."

He said that as far as he knew no G-men had arrived yet in the Chippewa lake region southeast of Hayward where 300 deputies and volunteers were conducting a "dead or alive" search for Olson in a maze of dense thickets, timber and swampland.

Olson, an expert marksman and woodsman, has eluded possemen for four days. Last night he slipped through their fingers for the fourth time.

Sun Sweeps Skies As Summer Comes

Although Wednesday was not the warmest day of the year, the date of the official opening of summer was promising, with cloudless skies, and coolish Eugeneans on the streets.

The temperature at noon was 75.5 degrees.

Many Eugeneans are planning picnics again to take advantage of the sun, which, annually on June 21, sets later than any other day of the year.

Topping Wednesday for summer weather were May 13 and 14 when the temperature was 92 degrees.

Cook Saw Water Pour Into Ill Fated Sub

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., June 21.—(AP)—First direct testimony water poured into the sunken submarine Squalus through the main induction system was given today by a naval board of inquiry today by William Isaacs of Washington, D. C., the submersible's cook.

It was the first evidence offered to the board the induction system, previously blamed by some officers for the sinking, might be responsible for the disaster.

Isaacs said he saw a sheet of water comes out of the engine room's main induction duct, as he peered through a peep hole in the engine room bulkhead.

Chamber Officials Point To Separate Interests Of Region

REEDSPORT, June 21.—(AP)—Chambers of commerce along the southern Oregon coast discussed last night a proposal to join the 16-mile stretch of Douglas county's seaboard panhandle with Coos county.

Such a campaign, still in the formative stage, was supported by Reedsport, Gariner chambers and representatives of the Coos county chamber from Marshfield, North Bend and Empire.

Reedsport's application to become a member of the Coos county chamber was accepted at a banquet by Mayor George Melville of Empire, president of the Coos organization.

When Mayor L. R. Cutlip of North Bend suggested "Coos county's north boundary should be

Road Building Is Pledged

Pacific Highway Near Roseburg To Be Rebuilt

ROSEBURG, Ore., June 21.—(AP)—Assurance the Pacific highway bottleneck between Roseburg and Grants Pass will be reconstructed as rapidly as funds become available was given last night by Governor Charles A. Sprague and Henry F. Cabell, chairman of the state highway commission. Governor Sprague and Mr. Cabell were the principal speakers at a banquet given here following a trip of inspection by the governor and his party of highway department officers over the north Umpqua road.

Speaking of the commission's plans for reconstruction of the Pacific highway, Mr. Cabell declared the Roseburg-Grants Pass section will be undertaken as soon as the Siskiyou project is completed to the California line. The remaining work in the Siskiyou section, he said, probably will be started this year.

The work between Roseburg and Grants Pass will be the most expensive on the entire length of the Pacific highway in Oregon, he said, and must progress slowly due to the limited funds available, unless special federal aid is secured. In the event of passage by congress of the McDonald bill, or other program for aid to states in road construction, the Roseburg-Grants Pass section will receive first consideration from the highway commission, Mr. Cabell declared.

The bill will become law if the senate approves one minor amendment and the president signs it. The new river and harbor bill reported favorably by the senate commerce committee includes authorization for Umatilla dam.

Neutrality Legislation Again Delayed

Wednesday Is Date Selected For Action On Bloom Proposal

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP)—The administration's neutrality proposals today were given a definite spot in senate committee proceedings but the date selected—next Wednesday—meant another week's delay.

Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) said they would be made a special order of business for the foreign relations committee June 28.

His committee met today to consider the revision proposals, such as are carried in the house bill written by Rep. Bloom (D-Ky.) but agreed to a delay. President Roosevelt asked yesterday that congress act on the bill this session.

Disputing those critics who have said the bill was an "un-neutral" measure which would not pass, Pittman expressed a belief the house would approve the Bloom bill. He added he intended to go ahead in the senate, in any event.

Opponents of the administration's neutrality bill expressed doubt today it would reach the senate floor before adjournment despite President Roosevelt's request.

Senator Borah (R-Idaho) predicted after the house votes on the measure next week, congressional leaders might decide to postpone senate consideration until next session.

Nazis Ask Recall Of Anglo Envoy

BERLIN, June 21.—(AP)—The government announced today that it had requested Great Britain to recall G. St. Clair Gainer, British consul general in Vienna.

According to DNB, the semi-official news agency, Gainer was asked to leave because during a criminal trial in Vienna it was revealed he allegedly was implicated in a matter involving a forbidden news service.

The British embassy however, said it had been informed Gainer's expulsion was in retaliation to the British government's request that Walther Reinhardt, the German consul in Liverpool, be recalled. The request was granted.

Miss Rand Worries About Business, Then Imitates Bird

By ROGER JOHNSON
SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—(AP)—Sally Rand, the business executive spends her days worrying about meeting the payroll and complying with social security laws and her nights figuring out ways of increasing her business.

Occasionally Miss Rand takes a day off to address a women's club or a businessmen's convention, and, of course, she still has to inject a personal touch into "Sally Rand's Nude Ranch" at the Golden Gate International Exposition.

But, for the most part, Miss Rand works from 12 to 18 hours a day at being a business executive. She isn't the girl that Hickory county, Mo., knew her; nor the fan dancer that the Chicago fair visitors went crazy about.

DECLARING that she likes her job and will stick to it, comely, blonde Caroline Bowers Woodman, foster daughter of Dr. James Rowland Angell, president emeritus of Yale, smiles as she serves a customer at the Wet Cottage Inn, Krumsville, Pa. The runaway post-debutante departed unannounced from Smith College, became a waitress to prove she can support herself independently.

Repeated Political Query, 'Will Roosevelt Run Again?' Seen As Unanswerable

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP)—Politicians who have been hoping for some inkling from the White House about 1940 apparently will have to go on hoping—at least until President Roosevelt makes his west coast trip after congress adjourns.

Speculation on the subject continued to pop up, however. Senator Logan (D-Ky.) said today he hoped Mr. Roosevelt would not seek another term but hastened to add should he do so Logan would support him.

"I have always thought it unwise for anyone to run for a third term," Logan said. "That has always been my view and I haven't changed it. I hope the president will not run, but if he does, I will support him. I always support the Democratic nominee."

"If the president does seek the Democratic nomination, he will get it and be elected."

The chief executive made it plain at a press conference yesterday that he would have nothing to say about a third term now or in the near future.

In fact, he gave this indication on three separate occasions, despite his laughing replies to questions designed to draw him out on the political topic of the hour.

Asked flatly whether he would be a candidate for reelection next year, Mr. Roosevelt smiled and received a year-old admonition that reporters putting such queries should stand in a corner with their backs to the camera and their faces to the wall.

Columnists, he said, had made a point last week of the fact that he had omitted this "go stand in the corner" order when asked to comment on Secretary Ickes' magazine article advocating "Roosevelt for 1940." From now on he would make no such mistake, the

7 Resolutions Are Passed On Wednesday

Roosevelt, New Deal Given Endorsement Of State Labor Group

By PAUL DEUTSCHMANN
The Oregon Federation of Labor convention progressed smoothly Wednesday morning as delegates passed non-controversial measures, adopted committee reports and heard labor and government officials give brief addresses.

A preview of the battle for nomination of officers was seen in a declaration by V. P. Martin, head of the state building trades council that he would not be a candidate for the position of executive secretary, now held by D. E. Nickerson, another possible candidate. Mr. Martin had been mentioned as a candidate in convention circles and newspaper reports.

Lively debate for the Thursday afternoon session was also predicted when the constitutional amendment in regard to election of officers was scheduled to appear at 2 p. m. A vote of the convention requested that the measure be brought up at that time.

Elections Topic
The amendment would provide for election on the last day of the convention. At present only nominations are made at convention, with elections being referred to local chapters for a referendum vote.

That old age and unemployment insurance are "insurance and not relief" was stressed by Edwin Bates, informational service social security representative for the Pacific coast states, who spoke at the morning session. He requested the delegates to study the laws and urged them to propose amendments and changes.

"Labor's offer to employers" was presented by James T. Marr, in his report on offices and reports. "We are ready to forget any past sins of employers in an effort to establish a relation that may effectively cope with economic difficulties," he stated. The report pointed out that a unanimous agreement of employers could not be expected but saw the "moral value" possible in extended "amicable relations."

Resolutions Passed
Seven resolutions were adopted with a minimum of debate. Most seriously contested was the resolution to oppose rate reductions of petroleum freight rates which are

A joint senate-house conference committee reached an agreement on the measure earlier today and this compromise won senate approval.
